ROCK ISLAND STOCK PURCHASE RUINING FRISCO, J. M. KURN WROTE

President of System in Letter to E. N. Brown, Board Chairman, in 1927 Urged Sale of Holdings in Other Line.

COULD HAVE MADE $10,000,000 PROFIT

But Proposal Wasn't Accepted and Stock Selling at $113 Is Now Quoted at $2—Business Lost by Tie-up.

James M. Kurn, president of the Frisco Railroad, wrote E. N. Brown, chairman of the board of directors on July 2, 1927, asserting the railroad could not go on holding its financial interest in the Rock Island Railroad, which previous testimony has shown was secretly negotiated for by Brown, without "crucifying" itself, it was disclosed yesterday at the Frisco bankruptcy hearing.

It had been shown that the Frisco bought 183,000 shares of Rock Island in January, 1926, the directors approving the transaction after it was completed on Brown's personal order to Speyer & Co., one of the New York banking firms for the Frisco. The Frisco bought the stock at $57 a share, held on while it rose to $143 in 1929 and continues to hold it at the present price of about $2.

Brown had testified that he assumed no personal responsibility on account of the transaction, merely arranging with Speyer & Co. for their purchase of 275,000 shares on his agreement to recommend to the Executive Committee that the Frisco invest about $10,000,000 in taking two-thirds of the purchase on completion. He said the Frisco directors approved the purchase as "a wonderful trade."

Kurn's Point of View.

"Have talked to you about Rock Island in New York," Kurn's letter to Brown, which was marked "personal," stated, "but feel should again call your attention to the situation in protection of the Frisco. There either should be a consolidation of the properties or the financial interests should be separated. We cannot go along under the present condition without crucifying the Frisco, and we have been crucified ever since we became interested in the Rock Island.

"To put it plainly," the letter continued, "the Frisco obtains absolutely no benefit whatever under the present arrangement, through connection with the Rock Island. On the other hand we are losing tonnage daily on account of that affiliation.

"The only interest I have is the protection of Frisco property, and certainly think some action one way or the other should be taken without unnecessary delay, as the present arrangement has completely tied our hands and is severing friendly connections we have had for years."

The letter stated that certain railroads had turned over substantial connecting traffic to competitors of the Frisco because of its interest in Rock Island. The Frisco's interest amounted to 24½ per cent of the Rock Island common stock.

Chance for Profit.

Under questioning by Jack Lewis Kraus, New York attorney representing the Gans bondholding interests, Brown said he did not recall whether he had read Kurn's letter to the Frisco directorate.

Kraus established that the Rock Island stock was selling at 113 at the time of Kurn's letter, declaring that the Frisco by selling might have made a profit of about $10,260,000 instead of incurring a paper loss of $9,800,000 by holding it.

"Hadn't Kurn pointed out to you that by selling the Frisco could realize more than $20,000,000 and meet its corporate needs with the proceeds?" Kraus asked.

"That's news to me," Brown replied.

Brown said that although Kurn had not been told of the purchase until after it was completed Jan. 19, 1926, he was "whole-heartedly" in favor of it when informed prior to the approval of the board and the Executive Committee a short time later.

ROOSEVELT ADVISORY BOARD FOR PAYROLL TAX, GRANTS TO STATES INSURING EMPLOYED

Approves Plan Calling for 3 Per Cent Levy —Three Optional Proposals for Old Age Pensions Recommended.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—An unemployment insurance proposal based on a Federal tax on payrolls, and three optional old-age pension plans, two of which provide for Federal subsidies, were approved today by President Roosevelt's Economic Security Advisory Council.

Persons thoroughly familiar with the work of the council, but who declined to be quoted, said the unemployment insurance proposal to be recommended to the cabinet committee put the full expense of the plan on the employers through a 3 per cent payroll tax.

Pension Recommendations.

The same informants said the optional old-age pension proposals were: (1) A compulsory plan under which the states would compel employers and employes to contribute to old-age pension funds; (2) a contributory plan by which both employer and employe would pay into a general old age fund; (3) a voluntary plan under which the employe would pay a specified amount each month for regular insurance that would care for his old age.

A Federal subsidy would be provided under the contributory and compulsory plans.

In addition, the advisory council adopted recommendations dealing with hospitalization. It did not vote on proposals for health insurance.

With regard to child welfare, those familiar with the course of the council's work said that it proposed a continuance of Federal child work appropriations and aid for mothers.

Follows Wagner-Lewis Bill.

Under the unemployment insurance plan outlined by these persons the recommendations would follow closely the lines of the Wagner-Lewis bill of last year, except for a change in the manner of handling the tax collected on payrolls. The Wagner-Lewis bill proposed a payroll tax, collected by the Federal Government, to be refunded to concerns that contributed to state unemployment insurance funds.

As outlined, the new proposal provides for direct grants to states which enact unemployment insurance laws conforming to standards adopted by the Federal Government.

The theory is that the grants not only would encourage the states to enact unemployment insurance laws, but would give the Federal Government control over the form of insurance laws enacted.

Approved by Close Vote.

The plan approved by the council won over another method of insurance in a close vote. The details of the other plan were not disclosed.

The proposal that employers bear the full expense of the insurance has been advanced by the American Federation of Labor. Secretary of Labor Perkins advocated it in a speech last night. Both she and the Federation said that if the employer bore the full expense, he would pass it along to the consumer in the form of slightly increased prices and that in this manner the workers would bear a portion of the expense.

The argument was presented that since the worker made up more than 75 per cent of the buying populace, if he contributed to the unemployment insurance cost directly, he would be in a position of making a double contribution because he would help to bear the employer's share through payment of increased prices.

Council Winding Up Work.

All of the forms of unemployment insurance studied by the experts during the months they spent in assembling material for the Council and the Cabinet Committee, which will pass on the plan before it goes to the President, were based on the idea that a payroll tax would be employed.

The committee expects to finish its work over the week-end.

JURY GIVES VERDICT TO ONE SIDE, SAYS OTHER DESERVED IT

Sends Note to Judge in Deciding Damage Suit at Lincoln, Neb.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 15.—A District Court jury returned a verdict for the defendant today in a damage suit, along with a note saying it really should have been for the plaintiff. Judge J. H. Broady commented, "The jury takes all the prizes."

In the suit of Herbert Runge against Carl Ellithorpe, Runge, a youth, asked for $3500 for injuries he says he suffered when Ellithorpe's dog snapped at horses hitched to a disc last April 13, causing a runaway.

Judge Broady instructed the jurors to find for the defendant if they decided the dog had no "vicious propensities" prior to the injury complained of, or if it did and the defendant had no knowledge of it.

Several hours later the jury foreman sent out a note asking the court for definitions of the words: Ferocious, vicious, dangerous, propensity and domestic animal. The jury foreman also asked for a dictionary.

The judge did not answer and the jury returned a verdict for the defendant with a message. It read:

"We, the jury, feel that the boy, Herbert Runge, should not be compelled to stand the loss and expense occasioned by the accident. However, we feel that the case brought here is improper, inequitable and not handled in and to the best interest of the boy and the public."

WOLVES TRAIL PAIR LOST FOR FOUR HOURS IN SNOW

Man and Woman Carrying Child Finally Reach Farmhouse in Nebraska.

ALBION, Neb., Dec. 15. — Lost, trailed by wolves and carrying a child, Miss Lucille Gaskill and Louis McHenry waded through snow waist deep for four hours in zero weather before finding refuge in a farmhouse last night.

McHenry and Miss Gaskill, with the latter's nephew, Dickie Childs, 4 years old, became stalled in a snow drift. Leaving their car, they cut across a field toward a farm home. Suddenly a dozen wolves appeared before them. In attempting to circle the animals, the travelers found themselves lost in the hills, as snow obliterated landmarks.

Carrying the child in blankets, the pair plunged blindly through the deep snow. Behind them came the wolves. When the exhausted pair paused for breath, the wolves came closer, but did not attack.

Hour after hour they staggered on with the child until finally the lights of a farmhouse appeared. Nearly exhausted when they arrived, none of the three suffered any serious illness.

SIX CASES OF BUBONIC PLAGUE REPORTED IN BRAZIL

Outbreak in Northeastern Province Laid to Death of Rats in Drouth.

By the Associated Press.

RIA DE JANEIRO, Dec. 15.—Six cases of bubonic plague, the "black death" of the Middle Ages, were reported in dispatches from Fortaleza in Northeast Brazil today. The first case appeared in early November in the central regions of the State of Ceara, the second in the Prainha suburb of Fortaleza and four others, now under laboratory observation, in Fortaleza itself.

Dr. Leorne Menescal, director of public health in Fortaleza, said cases had been reported in Palmeiras, Mulungu, Coite and Guaramiranga.

The official explanation of the appearance of bubonic plague credited it to the death of rats, due to the drouth in the desert lands of Ceara.

TESTIFIES MANY COULDN'T LIVE ON AUTO PLANT PAY

AVERAGE YEARLY WAGE $400 TO $650

Commission Told of 'Speed Up' in Production—Accident in Ford Factory Laid to This Practice.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 15.—Low wages, the speeding up of operations and the inroads of machinery on manual labor in the automobile industry were described today by more than 40 witnesses, mostly workers, at a hearing conducted by Leon Henderson, director of research and planning for the NRA. Henderson has been ordered by President Roosevelt to make a survey of labor conditions in the automobile industry.

The hearing here will continue tomorrow. Hearings also will be held in other centers of production. Assisting Henderson are Richard H. Lansburgh, associate NRA director of research and planning, and Isadore Lubin, statistical director for the Department of Labor.

All of the major producers—the Ford Motor Co., General Motors Corporation and Chrysler Corporation—were under fire before the first session of the hearing ended. Wage and personnel reductions since the depression and inequalities of the bonus and piecework system were criticised.

Ford Worker Testifies.

A tinsmith at the Ford plant, William McKie, testified that of the 125,000 persons engaged in making Model T Fords, only 85 per cent were re-employed on production of Model A cars. Every change of models, he said, means a decline in the number of workers, due to mechanization and to the speeding up of the assembly line. To that same "speed-up" he attributed an accident in the Ford plant last June 8, which, he said, cost six lives.

He said that while the average daily wage was $5, the average yearly wage was only $650. The peak for Ford wages, he said, was in 1929 with an average of from $6 to $10 a day and $1470 a year.

Elzie Cramer, an employe of the Buick Motor Co., in Flint, Mich., told the commission that "many of the men in the core-making department quit their jobs because they couldn't make enough to keep their families, and went to the relief agencies for adequate support."

Harold Paget of the Dodge Motor Co., testified the average yearly wage this year was less than $800; that it was $1000 in 1933, and $450 in 1932.

Union Organizer Heard.

F. J. Dillon, organizer for the United Automobile Workers' Federal Labor Union, asserted that although the Chrysler Corporation had profits of $10,000,000 in the first nine months of this year, annual wages of from $400 to $600 were common.

Michael J. Manning, a worker in the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co. plant here, said that one man who last year turned out eight cores an hour, now is required to make 80. He said that early in 1930, 10 men produced 100 wheels an hour. Subsequently he said, groups consisting of six men and four women were required to make 156 wheels an hour.

Charlton Ogburn, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, asserted that surveys have disclosed that a subsistence level which he said must be paid "regardless of the financial ability of the employer" is from $1800 to $2000 a year.

Urges Collective Bargaining.

Although the question of collective bargaining was barred specifically in the Presidential request for the investigation, Ogburn said that "many of the ills of the industry can be cured only by collective bargaining because of the peculiar nature of the industry's problem."

"The A. F. of L. believes," he said, "that labor and capital should operate as partners, but does not believe in nationalization of industry."

A program was presented in behalf of the Federation of Labor, calling for a basic 30-hour week, which might be increased to 36 hours for a 10-week peak production period or decreased to 24 hours in slack seasons; prohibition of layoffs until plants are on a 24-hour week, and then restricting them to a seniority basis, and a basic minimum annual wage of $1500. Its sponsors said this proposal would go far toward stabilizing the industry and eliminating seasonal fluctuations in employment.

JIMMY HOGAN KILLS MAN IN AUTO; POLICE DISCREDIT HIS STORY HE WAS HELD UP

7 SHOTS FIRED THROUGH GLASS OF CAR; VICTIM HIT BY EACH ONE

Body of Lawrence Zimmer, Roofer, Found Across the Street From Former Convict's Saloon at 3100 Cass Avenue.

MAN WHO DID SHOOTING WOUNDED

He Figured in Egan-Hogan Gang Feud—His Wife and Another Witness Support His Statement Pistol Play Began in Bar.

James (Jimmy) Hogan, ex-convict, survivor of the Egan-Hogan gang war, and prominent figure in the Erris Pillow robbery and murder case of 13½ years ago, shot and killed Lawrence Zimmer, a building worker, at 6:25 last night, in Zimmer's automobile at Cass avenue and Webster street, near Hogan's saloon, the Hogan-King Tavern, 3100 Cass avenue.

Zimmer was shot five times, while Hogan was wounded slightly in the right leg. Hogan said the shooting began in the saloon, after Zimmer attempted a holdup there. However, Zimmer's body was in his car, at the northeast corner, diagonally across from Hogan's saloon, and seven bullets had been fired through the windows of the car.

Police Doubt Hogan's Story.

The police do not credit Hogan's story of an attempted holdup, although there is some other testimony that the shooting began in the saloon. A man working in the neighborhood, who would not give his name, said he saw Hogan walk across the street to the car parked facing west on Cass east of Webster, and fire into the car at short range. Another man who would not give his name said he saw Hogan and another man go up to the automobile, and heard shots in such quick succession that they sounded like a machine-gun volley. He said he saw Hogan return to the saloon, while the other man, wearing a brown overcoat, ran west on Cass.

Two shots penetrated the glass of the reear door, one the front door, one the windshield and three the rear glass of the car. Zimmer's wounds were in front of the left ear, in the left cheek, below the heart, and in both arms.

Zimmer, 32 years old, was a tar roofer, employed on the new Federal Building. He lived at 2302A Howard street. Police say he had no police record.

Hogan's Account of Killing.

Hogan was held last night by the police at Dayton street station. He is 38 years old and is a brother of Edward J. (Jelly Roll) Hogan, member-elect and former member of the Legislature.

Before the police arrested him he was treated by Dr. N. P. Thompson of 3108 Cass avenue. He told the physician and the police that he was in a washroom when a man entered the saloon and announced a "stickup." He said he got his revolver, fired at the man and followed him to the car. Later he would not admit firing any shot outside the saloon. He referred inquiries of reporters to his lawyer, Sigmund Bass.

Alfred Pepper of 1610 Elliot avenue said that Zimmer was playing pinochle with him and a third man in Hogan's saloon early in the evening, and that Zimmer, losing, grew angry and left, returning soon afterward and shouting, "Put 'em up!" Pepper did not think at the time, however, that his purpose was robbery. He said several shots were fired in the saloon.

Says Zimmer Began Firing.

Hogan's wife, Mrs. Dollie Hogan of 3043 Madison street, said she was in the saloon when Zimmer entered and began firing. After

WAR DEPARTMENT SHAKE-UP SAID TO BE IMPENDING

Grand Jury Also to Receive Information Gathered in House Inquiry Into Expenditures.

LOBBY ACTIVITIES ARE INVOLVED

Committee Report Being Drafted Will Suggest Changes in Methods of Making Purchases.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—At least a partial shakeup in War Department personnel and procurement methods, designed to decrease the effectiveness of lobbyists, was reported today to have been promised to congressional investigators.

Informed sources said a new grand jury investigation seeking the indictment of at least "two high army officers" would be begun when the House Military Affairs Committee concluded its investigation of War Department expenditures.

Committee members are drafting their final report, which will be completed by the end of the month. In it, they intend to point out lobbying practices and suggest changes in the methods by which things are bought by the War Department.

The committee does not expect to use any names, but merely to deal with general practices, turning its detailed information over to Leslie C. Garnett, the district attorney here, for presentation to the grand jury.

The committee investigators have found, for instance, that one officer in a strategic War Department post had accepted fees from companies which obtained or hoped to obtain business from the Government. They compiled much testimony that men who openly were lobbyists had or professed to have, close contact with officers high in the War Department. As a result, committee members assert, contracts were influenced.

Early this week, the committee spent several hours in conference with Secretary of War Dern, Harry W. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War in charge of procurement, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. That conference, it was said today, gave part of the basis for belief that a shakeup impended. The names of the persons involved, however, were not disclosed, although committee members have frequently expressed their satisfaction at the attitude of Dern, MacArthur and Woodring. In the conference with Dern, committee members also talked over their previous recommendation that Major General Benjamin D. Foulois be removed as chief of the Army Air Corps. Dern and the President have not yet removed Foulois, but one committee member said today: "We feel we have assurances that something is going to be done."

PAROLE FEES PAID BY ILLINOIS CONVICTS BEING INVESTIGATED

Chicago Lawyers Said to Have Gotten Large Payments, Failed to Free Clients.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 15.—Activities of eight Chicago attorneys, who allegedly accepted large sums of money from convicts in the Illinois state prison at Stateville on the promise of obtaining their freedom through parole, were under investigation today by a grievance commission, named by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Russell McCaughey, Chicago attorney heading the body, said that information obtained could not be made public. "We must submit our findings to the Supreme Court," he said.

The commission spent most of the day at the prison, interviewing 20 prisoners and talking with prison officials. Members of the group, who compose the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar Association, said they were checking the activities of "shyster" lawyers from Chicago, who allegedly failed to obtain freedom for their clients after promising to do so for large fees.

MOSLEM VERSION OF "NOBLE PSALMS OF DAVID" ARE FOUND

Dr. P. K. Hitti of Princeton U. Says Collection Is Largest of Its Kind in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 15.—Discovery of the "Noble Psalms of David," an ancient manuscript which varies from all other known Moslem versions, was announced today by Dr. Phillip K. Hitti, associate professor of semitic literature at Princeton University.

Many rare finds are included in the list of discoveries of "unique works of major importance for historic, linguistic and scientific studies," catalogued by Dr. Hitti.

The collection, the largest of its kind in the United States, contains manuscripts dating from 1092 to 1781. The translation of the Psalms was written in 1672 by Jamal-Al-Din Al-Masaddi, a Moslem from Arabia. Each of the Psalms is introduced with the formula which heads the chapters of the Koran, "in the name of Allah, th merciful, the compassionate."

"The sources," Professor Hitti said today, explaining that every section of the old Moslem world is represented in the manuscripts examined so far, "ran from Spain in the west, to Samarquand in the east, where a set of astronomical tables were prepared for its Turkish governor, Ulugh Beg, at the renowned observatory which he erected in his capital about 1428.

The oldest manuscript catalogued to date is a treatise on dialectics, copied by a scribe from Karman. The date, equivalent to the Christian year of 1092, is plainly marked in the text.

Other Valuables Taken at Altadena, Cal., Include $30,000 in Pearls, $10,000 Sable Coat.

By the Associated Press.

ALTADENA, Cal., Dec. 15.—Jewelry, furs and rugs, valued at from $175,000 to $250,000 were stolen last Wednesday or Thursday from the home of Mrs. Delphne Slattery, the Sheriff's office disclosed today.

Among the most valuable articles reported to have been taken by the robbers were: 20-carat diamond ring valued at $100,000; string of 97 pearls, $30,000; diamond bracelet, $10,000; five Oriental rugs, $6800; Russian sable coat, with nine sables, $10,000; Russian evening wrap of ermine, $5000; cash totaling $1250.

The robbery occurred during Mrs. Slattery's absence. Police were informed of the theft Friday and detectives have been working quietly on the case. The house was rummaged and ransacked in every room. There were no servants in the house at the time.

Mrs. Slattery is the widow of a wealthy Eastern clothier.

Mrs. Slattery told the officers that the $100,000 platinum diamond ring was concealed in a bow on a $5000 Russian ermine evening wrap, and that other pieces of jewelry were hidden in different articles of clothing.

TREASURY STATES POLICY ON TAX ON SURPLUS ASSETS

OFFICIALS BRING 200 TEST CASES

In Many of These, Payments Have Been Made — In Others, Appeals Have Been Filed.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. — A Treasury Department spokesman, authorized to speak for Secretary Morgenthau, scoffed today at the idea advanced by a New York financial publication that the "rising tide of dividend payments" is the result of a Bureau of Internal Revenue plan to tax ruthlessly the large surplus liquid assets of corporations and that such payments were not "an earnest of an impending sharp improvement in profits."

The tax on certain classes of surplus assets was first levied by the 1932 Revenue Act and was enlarged in the 1934 act. The latter law levies on corporations a 25 to 35 per cent tax on net income whenever it is found that the corporation "is formed or availed of for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax upon its shareholders . . . through the medium of permitting gains and profits to accumulate instead of being divided or distributed."

Treasury Explanation.

As explained at the Treasury Department, a corporation will be taxed to the full extent of the law if it is found that the executives are piling up cash reserves which, if allowed to stay in the corporation, would increase the value of the stock to the shareholders but which, if distributed to the shareholders, might be subject to heavy surtaxes on the shareholders' individual incomes.

The Treasury spokesman professed ignorance of the reported "rising tide of dividend payments," but pointed out that if corporations in which the stock is widely held were paying out dividends rather than increasing their cash reserves they were doing so without the benefit of a Treasury Department interpretation of the law.

Text of Statement.

"The wording of the 1932 and the 1934 law, as it affects surpluses," the spokesman said, "is so general that it takes in all corporations. When Commissioner Helvering took office he found that little attention had been paid to enforcing the tax on large surpluses. He found that there had been two or three court decisions which threw doubt on the Internal Revenue Bureau's interpretation of the law.

"Commissioner Helvering selected about 200 test cases where large surpluses had been accumulated by corporations, apparently in an attempt to protect the shareholders from surtaxes. Virtually all of these were holding companies of the investment type and family corporations.

"Commissioner Helvering sent out letters to these 200 corporations citing the law and inviting conferences. Many of the corporations paid the tax. Others resisted and Commissioner Helvering assessed additional taxes in the so-called 90-day letter, which gives the taxpayers another opportunity to pay the back taxes. About 90 protested the taxes and filed suits before the Board of Tax Appeals, where the cases are now pending.

"So far as I know, no additional taxes were levied against any corporation where the stock is widely held. This class of corporation was not included for two reasons; first, the difficulty of proving that the corporations were piling up cash reserves for the purpose of permitting the shareholders to escape surtaxes, and second, the difficulty in defining 'the reasonable needs of business' phase of the act. Likewise, what is a 'reasonable surplus' for one type of business might be unreasonable for another. Also one corporation might be building up cash reserves to pay off maturities, to enlarge the plant or even to enter into a related industry.

A Simple Problem.

"In the instance of holding companies for investment, the problem is much simpler. Supposing a family corporation makes $500,000 in a successful venture and seeks to reinvest the money in Government securities. The Treasury holds that this was a profit and should be distributed to the shareholders in order that it may be taxed. If the profits are put into cash reserves, we can proceed under section 104.

"Executives of a corporation, either a personal holding company or a commercial company whose stock is widely held, should have no difficulty in determining what are reasonable cash reserves. When the cases now pending before the Board of Tax Appeals are finally settled, the Internal Revenue Bureau expects to have the scope of the 1934 law defined. Particularly as to 'intent' to escape taxes and as to the 'reasonableness' of the size of cash reserves.

"No corporation, you may be sure, will be assessed this tax until it has been informed of the bureau's intention and after a hearing of the case, at which the bureau will consider every factor that a prudent business man would consider in determining what amount of surplus was reasonable for that particular enterprise."

RUMOR OF MOVE TO RESTORE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN MONARCHY

These Two Countries, the Vienna Story Goes, Will Ask for Italy's Support.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—Rumors are current here that Austria and Hungary have agreed to ask Italy to support Archduke Otto's aspirations to the throne of the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

An announcement that Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary again would visit Premier Mussolini of Italy, following his conferences now in progress with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria, gave rise to the reports.

Neutral observers think the rumors another case of the wish fathering the thought. They cited the demands for restoration of the empire, addressed to the League of Nations by the "Strattswehr," extreme Legitimist organ, on the occasion of Otto's twenty-second birthday recently, as indicating with unmistakable clearness why statesmen of the Little Entente—Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia—have so often said Otto's restoration would mean war. Satisfaction of the demands would mean the dissolution of Czecho-Slovakia and the reduction of Rumania and Yugoslavia to their tiny pre-war size. It would even mean the return to Austria of a province held by Italy, and to Hungary of a province held by Austria.

'JAFSIE' SAYS HE HAS 'GOOD NEWS' FOR AL CAPONE'S WIFE

Dr. Condon, in Florida, Refuses to Tell What Is Is; Finds Her Away From Home.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15.—Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, intermediary in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, found the wife of "Scarface" Al Capone was not at home when he called today to give her "good news." He declined to discuss the nature of the information he intends to give her. Capone's name was mentioned several times in the widespread negotiations for the Lindbergh baby's return.

"My information is based on a letter," Condon said, "that I received from a woman, whose identity I cannot make public at this time."

He said he would see Mrs. Capone before he returned to New York Wednesday.

Condon refused to discuss the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, awaiting trial at Flemington, N. J., for the murder of the Lindbergh baby. He said his Southern trip was for the purpose of checking "several unrelated clews" and investigating information given him in more than 2500 letters he has received since he tossed the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom payment over a hedge in a New York cemetery.

ROCK ISLAND DEAL CRUCIFYING FRISCO, J. M. KURN WROTE

ing firm for the Frisco, had received a 25 per cent interest in Speyer's one-third share of the transaction, Kraus inquired why Seligman got any interest from Speyer without sharing any risk.

Bankers Sold Shares.

"Didn't it occur to you," he asked Brown, "That in effect Seligman & Co., was giving its consent to the deal through its representation on your board in return for an interest?" "It did not," Brown replied, adding he did not think that was the fact.

Asked if Speyer and Seligman had not sold their holdings above par at a large profit, Brown said he did not know.

The chairman conceded in response to another question that the $50,000 salary he received as chairman of the Rock Island executive committee was created after the Frisco purchase of Rock Island stock. He became chairman of the Rock Island committee soon after the purchase with, he said, approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Kraus sought to establish that the Frisco's method of paying Speyer & Co. for the 183,333 shares of Rock Island at the price of $10,500,000 actually cost the Frisco considerably more than that, but Brown said he could not answer without referring to records.

Costs of Financing.

The attorney said the Frisco made payment with 50,000 shares of its common stock, about $5,000,000 in notes and cash of less than $1,000,000, contending that the stock had been sold by the railroad at a discount of about $237,000 under total par and that the notes were replaced by bonds sold at a discount of about $275,000.

Turning his inquiry to the Frisco's $130,000,000 refinancing of 1928, Kraus read into the record, subject to correction by counsel for Brown, a statement that the cost of the financing to the Frisco was $6,323,000, including $5,500,000 discount on a $100,000,000 bond issue, a $537,000 underlying commission on preferred stock and $286,000 in miscellaneous expenses.

Also subject to correction, he computed that the railroad's fixed charges before the financing were $2,876,000 annually and $4,500,000 afterwards.

"Didn't Speyer and its associates get $2,500,000 as an underwriting profit for handling the bond issue?" Kraus asked. "The syndicate got the bonds at $94.50 and they were sold to the public at $97," Brown responded.

The hearing, initiated by John G. Lonsdale, co-trustee of the Frisco, through his attorney, Frank A. Thompson, will continue tomorrow in the Frisco building before Federal Court Master Harding. Kurn is the other trustee.

SCIENTIST'S ASHES RECOVERED

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 15. — The ashes of Henry A. Ward, famous scientist and collector of meteorites, were recovered today. A boy who heard a broadcast concerning their theft, returned them in a fruit jar.

He said he and other boys had found them near the Genessee River in a bronze urn which had been pried from a big boulder that served as its base in a cemetery. A widespread search for the ashes has been made since they were stolen Nov. 28. The boy said the urn had been sold for junk but he had saved the ashes in a jar.

DOKE ACQUITTED, KILLED WIFE'S POET-ADMIRER

Verdict of Not Guilty at Second Trial Cheered—Jury Accepts "Unwritten Law" Theory.

By the Associated Press.

WOODLAND, Cal., Dec. 15.—The "unwritten law" was applied here today when a jury of 11 men and one woman acquitted Judson C. Doke of the murder of his wife's verse-writing admirer, Lamar Hollingshead.

The courtroom crowd cheered when the verdict was announced. With tears in his eyes, Doke, 34-year-old San Leandro (Cal.) milk inspector, thanked the jurors and shook hands with each. This was his second trial the first having resulted in a disagreement.

The acquitted man then began seeking bail on a charge of embezzling $1800 of city funds in connection with his job. This accusation developed from the investigation that preceded the filing of the murder charge.

Doke was set free after an admonition to the jury by Judge Chalmers that "the law provides ample redress for a person finding his wife unfaithful."

Hollingshead, 23-year-old University of California student, and the 26-year-old wife of the milk inspector met through their interest in verse writing.

Then a neighbor of the Dokes, Mrs. Elizabeth Englis, disclosed to the milk inspector that Mrs. Doke had entrusted to her a series of love letters to Hollingshead.

Doke put the letters in one pocket and his pistol in another and came to Woodland last July 26. He confronted Hollingshead in the bunk house of a ranch where the young poet had been working. He demanded the return of letters.

Doke said he pulled out his pistol as a matter of protection, and then asked Hollingshead to write a letter to Mrs. Doke saying all he had wanted of her was her physical self. Hollingshead refused and the pistol was fired. Doke said he did not remember pulling the trigger.

JIMMY HOGAN KILLS MAN; POLICE DOUBT HIS STORY OF HOLDUP

the first shot, she said, she was unable to remember what happened.

Pepper and Mrs. Hogan were released on $1000 bond each, to appear at the Coroner's inquest. The police are looking for the other man in the card game, who was said to be George Cosmas, 25, of 5972A Theodosia avenue.

The revolvers of Hogan and Zimmer were held by the police, both having six discharged cartridges.

One of the men in the neighborhood who told of seeing the attack on the automobile said he heard the words: "Now, we'll give it to him right," and that after the shooting he heard the command: "Now you duck through Kuhlmann's"—a garage west of Hogan's saloon. A short time after telling this to a reporter, the same man returned to the reporter and said: "This thing is much worse than I thought it was. I don't know anything about it, and neither do you."

Mrs. Viola Zimmer, widow of the man killed, said she found her husband about 6 p. m., looking for his revolver in their bedroom, and that he told her he had been in a card game where there was cheating, and that his life had been threatened. He said, according to the wife, that a knife had been held at his throat, and that he had had to beg for his life. She urged him not to return to the scene of his trouble, but said he would not listen to her, being apparently under the influence of liquor.

Freed After Killing.

James Hogan, then 18 years old, was indicted in 1915 on a charge of second-degree murder, in the killing of Charles L. Lynam, a former street inspector. At the time of his arrest, Hogan was quoted as saying he shot Lynam in self-defense after Lynam and others had beaten him in a fight. At his preliminary hearing in the Court of Criminal Correction, Judge Benjamin F. Clark discharged him, on his lawyer's plea that there was no evidence that he fired the shot which killed Lynam.

In June, 1916, Hogan was caught in the act of burglary at a North St. Louis home. He pleaded guilty but was paroled by Gov. Gardner before the date set for the beginning of his term. The Governor took this action on a certificate issued by Dr. William A. Dillon, then active in Democratic politics, later himself a victim of a mysterious murder. Dr. Dillon's certificate stated that Hogan was subject to morbid impulses, the result of the beating which he received at the time of the Lynam killing.

Hogan was paroled to Dr. Dillon, on condition that he be placed by his relatives in an institution for treatment of moral defectives. This condition was not fulfilled, and he remained at large, and was arrested several times.

A Coincidence.

At the time when Gov. Gardner issued the parole, Hogan's brother was a member of the lower House of the Legislature. He voted against a soft drink bill desired by the Governor, and said he did so because the Governor would not parole his brother. The next day he changed his vote, and the bill was passed. The parole of James Hogan was issued a week later.

April 4, 1921, Hogan was arrested when hiding near the scene of the robbery of Erris Pillow, Negro bank messenger. Pillow was attacked at Jefferson avenue and Wash street, a coat was thrown over his head, and he was carried away in an automobile. A satchel contained checks amounting to $65,000, and $155 currency, was taken. Pillow, who had seen the man who attacked him, identified Hogan as the man who had thrown the coat over his head.

Witness Shot to Death.

The night of May 9, Pillow was called from his home on Fairfax avenue by two men, who shot him to death. Two men were indicted for the murder of Pillow, but were acquitted, their lawyer pleading that the State showed no motive.

Hogan, under indictment for the robbery of Pillow, took a change of venue to Union, Mo., and was tried there five times. The first jury convicted him of the robbery and sentenced him to 15 years' imprisonment. Part of the evidence in the first trial was the testimony of six policemen, who were present when Pillow identified Hogan as the man who threw the coat over his head, and that Hogan said nothing in reply.

Hogan's lawyer objected to this evidence as hearsay. The State Supreme Court ruled that its admission was reversible error and remanded the case for a new trial. In three subsequent trials the jury disagreed, and on the fifth trial in March, 1926, Hogan was acquitted.

Murder of Gangster Egan.

Six months after the Pillow robbery, Constable William T. Egan, gang leader and enemy of the rival Hogan gang, was shot and killed by men who drove past his Franklin avenue saloon, Oct. 21, 1921. Three men were marked by Egan's followers for slaughter, according to information reaching the police at the time.

One of the men, John J. Doyle, was shot and killed by city detectives who were trying to arrest him, for questioning about the Egan murder. The others, Luke E. Kennedy and James Hogan, were fired upon in an automobile at Eleventh and Market streets, at noon Dec. 30, 1921, and Kennedy was wounded. In April, 1922, Kennedy was shot to death by two men who overtook him at a Wellston corner, 26 wounds being inflicted.

In May, 1922, three automobile parties fired shots into Hogan's home, 3035 Cass avenue, but no one was injured.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WANTS MILK AND CRACKERS; GETS CHICKEN

She and Party Visit Subsistence Homestead Project at Red House, W. Va.

By the Associated Press.

RED HOUSE, W. Va., Dec. 15.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt asked only for "some crackers and milk" on her visit to the Government's newest rehabilitation homestead project here today, but relief workers served a chicken dinner.

The wife of the President walked for several miles inspecting the 400-acre estate on which houses are being erected and plots laid out for tilling by families whose financial fortunes have left them without other means of support, and then declared: "It is the most promising project of its kind I have seen."

With workers who later will occupy the homes gathered about her, Mrs. Roosevelt told the inhabitants they may share in the profits of the enterprise as well as the labors.

The party came by automobile from Washington and after the inspection and dinner started the trip back, stopping at Arthurdale, another project started by the Government. Mrs. Roosevelt spent the night at Morgantown.

INSULL FIRM LISTED JUNK AT MILLIONS

Equity Receiver for United Public Service Co. Reports on Findings.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Testimony that nearly worthless property was carried at fictitious values amounting to millions of dollars on the books of the United Public Service Co., a $50,000,000 Insull subsidiary, was disclosed today in a special master in chancery's report filed with Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Transcripts of the testimony of Samuel W. White, equity receiver for the concern, said the books listed at $3,000,000 property consisting principally of "rusty junk" and "piles of brick."

The report quoted White as testifying:

"Under the most favorable conditions that had ever obtained since the company was formed, the underlying property could not reasonably have been expected to support the existing capitalization of those companies."

The companies referred to were United Public Service, a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities, main Insull holding concern; United Public Utilities and Southern United Gas Co., controlled by United Public Service, and 29 public utility operating concerns in the Midwest which were in turn controlled by Southern United Gas and United Public Utilities.

"No Possible Justification."

White testified that asset items aggregating millions of dollars were carried "with no possible justification." Reference was made to an ice plant in Memphis, Tenn., which never operated, as having been carried at a value of $600,000.

United Public Service, and through it Middle West Utilities, White testified, "received income that could not properly have been distributed by their subsidiaries if they had maintained a policy of conservative accounting and adequate provisions for depreciation and depletion." Immediately after he was appointed receiver, White testified, he discarded the firm's system of accounting.

The result, White testified, of an apparent attempt to "show earnings greater than possible under conservative accounting standards" was that "the companies were saddled with debts in order to continue interest and dividends on securities sold to the public in excessive amounts."

No Value at Any Time.

Middle West originally bought United Public Service common stock for $20 a share, White said, adding:

"Apparently, the stock has at no time had any value by reasonable method of appraisal, even if the appraiser looked at it through rose-colored glasses . . . having made that purchase, it apparently was the aim of the Middle West management to have those earnings appear as large as possible in order to justify the payment of bonds outstanding with the public and dividends on stock outstanding with the public, which interest and dividends were not being earned on the basis of conservative accounting."

The 200-page report was compiled by Edgar B. Tolman, acting as special master ni chancery, to determine the merits of expense claims by receiver, attorneys and others.

It recommended that White be paid at the rate of $3000 a month for his two years and two months of service. White relinquished his receivership recently when a reorganization action was filed.

30 BONES ARE FOUND IN MURDER COTTAGE

Albert H. Fish, Who Confessed Killing Girl, 10, Denies There Were More Victims.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The discovery of 30 bones, buried in the basement of the Westchester County cottage in which Albert H. Fish says he killed 10-year-old Grace Budd, was announced tonight by investigators.

Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire, supervising the search of the abandoned house, said the bones would be analyzed to determine whether they were those of human or animal.

"All I can say is that they are similar to human bones," he said. "Of course, it is possible that the people who lived in this house may have buried their dogs under the basement floor. But I would be better satisfied with that theory if we could find a few dog skulls."

None of the bones, which varied from about one to eight inches in length, fitted in with the skeleton of the Budd girl, whose remains were found buried outside the house, at a spot to which Fish led authorities.

Fish, 65-year-old painter, has denied knowledge of any of the other children who have disappeared in this area during the last few years.

Coincident with the discovery of the bones, Dr. Squire announced receipt of a report from Dr. Gilbert Daldorf, a pathologist, saying the stains on the butcher's cleaver found at the house were made by human blood. Fish has told authorities he dismembered the body of the Budd girl with a knife, a cleaver and a saw, after luring her to the cottage six years ago.

In an effort to solve the mystery of the finding of a child's body near Darien, Conn., last July, two officers from that community came to New York today and questioned Fish for half an hour in the Tombs. When they left they made no comment.

The bones unearthed at the cottage were sent to Columbia University laboratories for microscopic scrutiny by anatomy experts. The house having been thoroughly ransacked, Dr. Squire declared the search would be continued tomorrow by pumping dry two wells on the property.

PUTS OFF INQUIRY INTO GAS & COKE CORP. BOND ISSUE

Judge FitzHenry Indicates He Wants Definite Reorganization Plan Offered by Jan. 12.

TRUSTEE ASKS FOR AUTHORITY TO ACT

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 15.—A move for an inquiry into the financial transactions of the St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation, particularly its issuance in 1927 of $10,000,000 of first mortgage gold bonds, currently quoted on the New York Curb at less than 10 cents on the dollar, was held in abeyance following a hearing today before Judge Louis FitzHenry of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting by special assignment in the district court.

In this and other hearings incident to the debtor's petition under which Trustee George B. Evans is now operating the company, there was brought into dispute the right to possession of some $4,000,000 of the company's assets which passed into the hands of Utilities Power & Light Corporation of Chicago, holding company of which the Gas & Coke Corporation formerly was a subsidiary.

Hearing Continued.

Continuing the hearing until Jan. 12 and stating that he wished to save something out of the estate for the bondholders, Judge FitzHenry made it plain to all parties concerned that he expected a definite plan of reorganization to be submitted by that date if liquidation of the company, once a $27,000,000 concern, is to be avoided. An order for liquidation would cause the shutting down of the plant at Granite City, which is one of the large industries of the East Side St. Louis industrial district.

The company went into receivership in May, 1933, and after a debtor's petition under the amended bankruptcy law was filed against it last September, the court appointed Evans, who had been receiver, as trustee. Evans formerly was president of the Laclede Gas Light Co., but was retired at the time of his appointment as receiver.

At the hearing today Attorney Joseph T. Davis of St. Louis, representing the trustee, stated that if authorized by the court to do so, he was prepared to institute an investigation into the sale of the company's bond issue, and to file a suit seeking the return of coke and pig iron valued at about $4,000,000 which the Utilities Power & Light Corporation acquired by foreclosure less than a month after the appointment of the receiver.

Negotiations Under Way.

Francis E. Matthews, general counsel for Utilities Power & Light Corporation, sought postponement of the hearing for a month so that negotiations his company had under way for reorganization of the Gas & Coke Corporation could be continued. He said there was prospect of sale of the plant, which he thought would be advantageous to the bondholders.

Referring to the proposed investigation of the bond issue, Attorney Davis said he had information leading him to believe that not more than $3,000,000 of the proceeds was received by the corporation and that the remainder, nearly $7,000,000, was used for the acquisition by Utilities Power & Light of control of the Gas & Coke Corporation. Matthews denied that this was the case.

Purpose of Hearing.

The hearing today had been set at the request of the trustee to get instructions or authorization on whether he should, first, sue Utilities Power & Light for return of the $4,000,000 of coke and iron inventory; second, institute action against the same corporation to recover certain back tax assessments against the Gas & Coke Corporation; third, begin an investigation of the disposition of proceeds of the bond issue, and, fourth, shut down the plant and prepare for liquidation.

The attorney for the trustee said operation was being continued at a loss of $25,000 to $30,000 a month and that this could not be continued very long. Attorney Matthews pointed out that Utilities Power & Light Corporation had been footing the deficiency bills and had advanced approximately $330,000 on receiver's certificates. He pointed to this as evidence of the holding company's good faith in trying to effect a reorganization.

Iron and Coke Collateral.

It was disclosed that the $4,000,000 stock of the Gas & Coke Corporation's iron and coke was sold to satisfy a debt of $4,365,000 which the holding company asserted was owed to it by the subsidiary. This debt included more than $1,000,000 of the subsidiary's notes to banks which had been guaranteed and later paid by Utilities Power & Light, and other cash advances. About four and a half months before the beginning of the receivership action, Utilities Power & Light obtained an assignment to it of more than 150,000 tons of pig iron and 57,972 tons of coke as security for the debt.

After the receiver had been appointed, the holding company advertised a public sale of the collateral; the receiver threatened to get a restraining order against the sale, but under certain stipulations permitted it to go on. Utilities Power & Light bought in the iron and coke at the sale for $4,000,000, leaving about $300,000 still due it on the debt, and Attorney Matthews said it shortly thereafter resold the iron and coke, without any profit, to a syndicate in which Utilities Power & Light had no interest.

Bondholders' Contention.

It is the contention of some of the bondholders that in view of the financial condition of the Gas & Coke Corporation as disclosed by the subsequent receivership, the Utilities Powere & Light Corporation, which then controlled the Gas & Coke Corporation, created for itself an undue preference to the detriment of all other creditors, including the bondholders, when it obtained the pledge of the iron and coke as security. A part of the debt thus secured dated back over a long period, it was said.

One group of bondholders was represented at the hearing by Eric W. Passmore of Milwaukee, attorney for a protective committee of which E. M. Goodman is chairman. This committee has called for deposit of bonds and has received about $700,000 of bonds. This, however, is not the committee with which the Utilities Power & Light is dealing on the reorganization. Edwin M. Stark of Chicago is chairman of a reorganization committee with which the holding company is negotiating. This committee has worked out a tentative plan of reorganization, but agreement on some of the details is lacking.

Bond Issue in 1927.

The $10,000,000 bond issue was sold in September, 1927, through a syndicate headed by the Chase Securities Corporation of New York, and the Chase National Bank was trustee. Other members of the selling syndicate were West & Co., Pynchon & Co., H. M. Byllesby & Co., Federal Securities Corporation, John Nickerson & Co., Continental & Commercial Co., W. S. Hammons & Co. and A. B. Leach & Co. The selling price was 97 and accrued interest. The interest rate is 6 per cent.

A shift of ownership of common stock of the Gas & Coke Corporation took place shortly before the receivership, it was disclosed. All of the 50,000 shares of no par value common stock were sold by Utilities Power & Light to an individual for $2500. Also the common stock of the St. Louis Coal & Iron Co., all owned by Gas & Coke Corporation, and having par value of $500,000, was sold to the same individual for $500. Thus these companies were technically taken out of the status of subsidiaries of Utilities Power & Light. These subsidiary companies were about to default on their interest payments due June 1, 1933, and Attorney Matthews explained that under an indenture for its own issue of $50,000,000 in debentures Utilities Power & Light was obligated not to permit an interest default by a subsidiary. So the subsidiaries were disposed of before the default. Anyway, the stock had no value, Matthews said.

Utilities Power & Light Corporation, of which Harley L. Clarke is president, is the holding company for Laclede Gas Light Co., Laclede Power & Light Co. and other operating utilities.

JUDGE ORDERS BRIDE, 13, TO RETURN TO SCHOOL

Springfield (Mo.) Girl Says She Didn't Think She Had to Attend After Marriage.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 15.—Though married, Marguerite White Tate, 13 years old, found today that she must go back to school. She is in the seventh grade.

A few weeks ago the girl was before Juvenile Court on a truancy charge. She was released on the promise that she would go to school. She was back before the Court today.

"Why haven't you been going to school?" demanded the Judge. "Why, I was married last Saturday," the girl said. "I didn't know anybody had to go to school after they were married."

"You'll have to go to school until you pass the eighth grade or are of the age of 16," declared the Judge. He let her return home with her husband, Deward Tate, an odd jobs worker, who said he was 21.

The pair were married at Ozark, Christian County. The girl gave her age as 15. The mother went with them and gave her consent.

Opiates Give Only Intervals of Rest Mrs. McKee Has Had Since Last Sunday.

By the Associated Press.

ROUND GROVE, Ill., Dec. 15. — Mrs. Harold McKee, 35 years old, has yawned from 8 to 12 times a minute since 4 p. m. last Sunday. Dr. H. L. Pettit, attending her, says her life is not in danger unless her unusual malady is a prelude to some serious disease. Mrs. McKee's only interludes of rest follow injections of opiates. She can receive only semi-solid and liquid foods. Today oxygen was administered to her but it checked her yawning only temporarily.

"It would be a big help if we could provide a trained nurse to care for her or place her in a hospital," Dr. Pettit said. "Local agencies have just about exhausted their resources."

More than 2200 letters and telegrams have been received offering suggestions ranging from witchcraft to scientific treatment.

The Arena was selected as the largest available auditorium. Its maximum seating capacity, exceeding 20,000 when all floor space is utilized, will be open to the public. No tickets of admission will be required, and the doors will be opened at 6:30 p. m. The meeting will begin at 8.

A layman's guard of honor, two men from every parish in St. Louis and St. Louis County, will attend the Archbishop. The members of this guard have been asked to appear in formal costume.

Speeches felicitating the Archbishop on the approaching fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, and reviewing his episcopal period here, which began in 1903, will lead up to his address, which appears on the program as "Response by the Jubilarian."

Mayor and Governor to Speak.

John S. Leahy will preside as chairman. His opening address will follow singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." He will then present Mayor Dickmann, to give the address of welcome for the city. Gov. Park will follow with "Felicitations of the Commonwealth of Missouri." A male choir will sing "Ad Multos Annos" (Long Life.)

Frederick P. Kenkel, Knight of St. Gregory and Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, and director of the Central Verein, a Catholic organization, will speak of "Our Shepherd." After an orchestral selection Thomas Speed Mosby of Jefferson City will speak of "Our Archbishop." Dr. R. Emmett Kane will speak of the Archbishop as "Promoter of Catholic Education." Judge O'Neill Ryan will speak of "Archbishop Glennon—Citizen of St. Louis." The Archbishop's response will be followed by the benediction by Auxiliary Bishop Winkelmann.

Choral selections, Beethoven's "Nature's Praise of God" and Schubert's "God in Nature" will be given between the speeches. The meeting will end with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

The Public Service Co. will run extra cars on the Forest Park line, to accommodate the expected crowd.

Services During Week.

Three gatherings in St. Louis Cathedral, chief of the many building enterprises which Archbishop Glennon has carried out in the diocese, will take place during the week. The first, at 8 p. m. Tuesday, will be liturgical reception to the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. The delegate will arrive from Washington on a late afternoon train Tuesday. Archbishop Glennon will welcome the papal representative, who will make an address in reply, and the service of benediction will be celebrated by Bishop Winkelmann, assisted by St. Louis pastors. The Knights of St. Gregory will serve as canopy bearers.

At 10 a. m. Wednesday, pontifical mass will be celebrated for the children of Catholic schools, with the children singing parts of the liturgy. Bishop Winkelmann will be celebrant, and the Archbishop and the Apostolic Delegate will be present.

Thursday, being the actual anniversary, is the day of the jubilee mass, at 10 a. m. Archbishop Glennon will be celebrant, with Mgr. P. P. Crane assisting, and Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati will preach the sermon.

Next Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, Holy Hour will be observed in the Cathedral, and there will be similar services in other churches of the diocese. At the Cathedral, Archbishop Glennon will be celebrant, and the Rev. Martin J. O'Malley, vice-president of Kenrick Seminary, will preach.

A formal reception in honor of Archbishop Glennon and the Apostolic Delegate will be held Wednesday evening, from 8 to 9 o'clock, in music room No. 1 of the Municipal Auditorium.

Maynard M. Aldrich, 19 years old, 4216 McPherson avenue, died last night at City Hospital of head injuries suffered early Saturday when the coupe in which he was riding with four friends struck a concrete light standard on Vandeventer avenue near Market street.

The driver, Roy Bone, 19, of 4108 Maryland avenue, who suffered injuries about the body, was charged with careless driving, felonious wounding, and destruction of property. Police said the standard was knocked 60 feet.

Others injured were: Miss Susanne Newman, a waitress, 4435 West Pine boulevard, broken nose and internal injuries; Philip McNamara, a clerk, 4343 Lindell boulevard, head injury; and William Small, a salesman, 4216 McPherson avenue, head injury and fracture of the left hand. All are at City Hospital.

Seamstress, Hit by Auto, Suffers Head Injuries and Cuts.

Miss Adele Schwegmann, a 27-year-old seamstress, of 3754 Westminster place, suffered head injuries and lacerations about the legs last night when struck by an automobile when she attempted to cross Olive street, near Vandeventer avenue. She was taken to City Hospital.

The driver, Miss Estelle Alzermissen, 18, of 3651 West Pine boulevard, told police she did not see Miss Schwegmann before hitting her. Her mother, who was riding with her, said she stepped into the side of the car.

Andrew Niedbalaski, a 53-year-old farmer, of Nashville, Ill., suffered head injuries last night when the automobile in which he was riding struck another machine at Twelfth boulevard and Emmett street. Niedbalaski, who was taken to City Hospital, was a passenger in a car driven by his son, Mickel, a shoe worker, of 1010 Hickory street. It hit an automobile driven by Adolph Jecmen, a real estate broker, 2213 Arsenal street.

Poehler, driving east on Gravois, ran into a coal car of the train, according to deputy sheriffs, who said a watchman was on duty at the crossing. Poehler, who is 32 years old and attached to the Carr street district, suffered injuries of the skull and left ankle. Miss Nelson suffered a skull injury, severe lacerations of the face and head, and shock. Both were taken to County Hospital.

40,000 EXPECTED AT FREE DINNER ON CHRISTMAS

Preparations Under Way for Second Annual Feast Sponsored by Mayor in Auditorium.

Volunteer workers enlisted by Mayor Dickmann have preparations well under way for the Mayor's second annual Christmas dinner party for the poor, to be served in the big exhibition hall of the Municipal Auditorium.

It is estimated that 40,000 men, women and children will be entertained, compared with 26,000 last Christmas. Dinner will be served for eight hours, between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m., so that it may be necessary to care for 5000 an hour. Seats at long tables will be provided for 2400 persons, so that not quite half an hour will be allowed for each group to eat.

The specific time, probably in half-hour periods, at which to go to the auditorium for dinner will be marked on tickets. The tickets will be distributed through the police and political ward workers, with an effort to see that only deserving persons are supplied and make good the Mayor's declaration: "No one shall go hungry in St. Louis on Christmas."

City Employes to Serve.

Service will be provided by about 6000 city employes and political workers, who will be asked to work not more than three hours each. Street Commissioner McMahon is in charge of personnel. The Mayor's aids emphasized that party lines would be forgotten among both guests and workers. The workers have been asked to register in advance at a headquarters at the Fourteenth and Market streets entrance of the auditorium. On Christmas they will report at Assembly Hall No. 1, equipped with long aprons. The peak of the crowd is expected between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m., when about 1500 men and women will be needed to serve.

There will be no room for spectators, who will not be welcomed.

Mayor Dickmann has asked for donations of food and money for the party. Money should be sent to L. L. Will at the Efficiency Board office, 235 Municipal Courts Building. Offers of food should be addressed to the party haedquarters, which may be reached over the City Hall telephone, MAin 5560.

Institutions to Prepare Food.

Food will be prepared in the kitchens of various city institutions and taken in city vehicles to the Auditorium, where it will be kept warm or cold, as required.

Boneless ham will be the principal item of the menu and 6500 pounds of it will be needed. Some of the other important supplies on the list are: Six tons of sweet potatoes, 1200 loaves of stale bread and 2700 loaves of fresh bread, 2500 quarts of milk, 650 pounds of coffee, 500 bushels of apples, a ton of dried fruits, 150 crates of oranges, 8500 pounds of nuts, 5500 pounds of cookies, 600 pounds of onions, 250 cases of baked beans, 6000 pounds of ice, 12 pounds of pepper, 120 pounds of salt, four tons of candy and 20,000 bottles of a soft drink.

Paper plates and napkins will be provided.

Last year, tickets to the dinner were honored for free rides to and from the Auditorium by the Public Service Co. A conference of company and city officials will be held tomorrow to determine whether this shall be arranged again.

Entertainment Provided.

Radio stations and theatrical agencies have agreed to provide entertainment for the diners throughout the day.

For persons unable to go to the Auditorium because of their physical condition, dinner baskets will be prepared. It was thought 500 baskets would be needed, 200 applications having been received already. Special transportation to the Auditorium will be arranged for crippled persons.

Every child at the party will receive a bag of toys and sweets and similar bags will be delivered to children at all city institutions and in orphanages in the city and the county. Packing of the bags will be started Friday by a group of women headed by Miss Mayme Dickmann, the Mayor's sister. Cabanne Link estimated that 100,000 toys and trinkets would be distributed.

A little girl on Easton avenue, whose father is unemployed, wrote the Mayor's committee for a Christmas tree, saying the Provident Association provided the family with food and her mother's work paid for gas and heat. The committee will see to it that she has a tree, decorated.

RIVALRY OVER TEACHER IS HINTED IN KILLING

Miner Found Shot to Death in Kansas; Was to Have Been Married.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Dec. 15. — Reports of rivalry over the hand of a pretty school teacher, Anne Belom, 23 years old, were investigated today by officers seeking to solve the killing of Fedell Fontaine, 27, unemployed Chicopee (Kan.) miner.

Miss Belom, fiancee of the dead man, became hysterical when his body was located by grappling hooks in the water of a strip mine late yesterday. He had been beaten and shot to death.

Angelo Farabi, Chicopee School Superintendent, said by officers to be an admirer of Miss Belom, appeared before County Attorney Robert S. Lemon with two Pittsburg attorneys for questioning, but left without making a formal statement after his counsel rejected Lemons' request that Sheriff Robinson be permitted to interview him in private. Farabi said he knew nothing of the killing.

Sheriff Robinson said "There is no charge against Farabi, but he is believed to have important knowledge concerning this case."

LONG'S ASSEMBLY CALLED AGAIN IN SPECIAL SESSION

Legislature to Meet Tonight at Senators' Order to Amend 'Messed Up' Liquor Law.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 15.—At Senator Huey Long's request, Gov. O. K. Allen today issued a call for the Louisiana Legislature to meet in special session tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for the third extraordinary session of this year. traordinary session of this year. The call listed 21 general subjects of legislation on which the special session may act.

Long enumerated some of the purposes of the session as an amendment to the "messed up" liquor law, a clarification of the law to permit the use of surplus state funds to pay unpaid appropriations in other funds, establish ment of state supervision of industrial pensions, raising funds for the unemployment relief commission and repeal of a clause in the general license tax on Pullman cars which now are assessed at 2 per cent of their receipts as a utility.

Utility Regulation.

An outstanding item in the call was one to regulate "powers, duties and authority of the Louisiana Public Service Commission and for revenues therefor."

This was interpreted to mean that Long intended to obtain more power for the Public Service Commission in its investigation of rates of the utilities, which Long says are too high.

Other intems included building expansion at Louisiana State University, including a "powerful radio broadcasting station." Long said the university planned to build in two years a radio station that "all the world would want to listen to." He said it would be a 50,000-watt station.

The session was announced to be held to a twelve-day limit, but it was generally agreed that it would go only for five days, the length of the previous short terms.

Observers expected more than routine legislation would be offered since Long is in the habit of springing some surprise, such as he did at the last session with his two-year private debt moratorium.

Long walked into the office of Gov. Allen and said: "Governor, I don't see how we can get around having a special session. We've got to have one."

"Well, all right," replied Allen, after he heard Long enumerate some of his ideas for suggested legislation.

"We are going to have to change the liquor law," said Long in the conference. "It's messed up and it is playing hell."

He said the present act contained the provision that places selling liquor by the drink cannot sell package goods and that some of the bar dealers in liquor were selling package goods.

Then, he said, "we are going to have to clarify the law so that when a surplus exists in any fund it can be used to pay unpaid appropriations in other funds."

Long said there was at present a difference of legal opinion on whether this could be done and that Attorney-General Gaston L. Porterie was in doubt on the point.

His Industrial Pensions Idea.

Then Long said he favored an act to establish state supervision of industrial pensions that would prevent industrial companies from "firing a man a day and half before he becomes eligible for the pension roll." He said he knew of such an instance.

The Unemployment Relief Commission for Louosiana now receives $51,000, Long said, and, according to Federal Judge Rufus E. Foster, its chairman, the commission needs $67,000.

NAVAL TREATY DELEGATES CONFER AFTER GOLF GAME

American Says Resumption of Discussion Depends on Tokio's Dropping Demand for Equality.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—After a round on the Walton Heath golf course, in which the Americans, Norman Davis and Admiral William H. Standley lost a foursome match to Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira and Sir John Simon, they talked over the Washington naval treaty in the clubhouse.

Davis told the British Foreign Secretary and Matsudaira that the resumption of naval conversations next year depended entirely on a marked change of attitude in Tokio in the next few days. Davis made it clear that the American would refuse to agree to return to the conversations at any specified time unless Japan dropped its demands for naval aquality.

It would be useless to hold conversations or to go through with the conference next year, he said, unless the Japanese delegation was instructed to guarantee that Japan would agree to the continuance of the existing relative strength of the three Powers.

Incidentally, it was the first discussion in which all of the three delegations participated simultaneously.

NEW FIRE HOSE PURCHASED

City Pays $7062 for 6250 Feet at Code Price.

Supply Commissioner Roach last week purchased 6250 feet of three-inch hose for the Fire Department. The business was divided among seven firms, each of which bid the code price of $1.13 a foot. The total bill, including couplings, was $7062.50. The hose complies with underwriters' specifications, Roach said.

Specifications for three new pumpers and two aerial trucks are being prepared. The equipment, to cost about $76,000, will be paid for out of the budget appropriation for the department and will replace obsolete apparatus.

UNEMPLOYED ARTISTS PROTEST ON LOCKOUT

Class Evicted From Old Courthouse Sends Delegation to Safety Director Chadsey.

When Joe Jones, turbulent young organizer of an unemployed art class, arrived at the Old Courthouse Friday night, determined to resist the eviction order of Director of Public Safety Chadsey, he found no one there to resist. At Chadsey's order, one of the janitors had padlocked the art classroom and had departed.

But Jones, whose Communist sympathies resulted in the art class being barred, is not defeated, he told the Post-Dispatch. He's going to try Chadsey next month "before a jury of best artists and writers in St. Louis."

Chadsey may not attend the "trial"; in fact he guffawed when reporters told him about it; but he will be tried just the same, Jones said.

Meanwhile, members of the class, which meets Tuesday and Friday nights from 7:30 to 10, have been circulating petitions denouncing the director's attitude. When a delegation of them called on Chadsey yesterday to deliver their pronouncement, they already had the signatures of 14 of the 30 class members.

"We resent your action," the petition stated bluntly. ". . . . You say we are not being encouraged to develop our artistic talent. We deny this and our works are proof that our director, Joe Jones, has been a decided factor in helping us develop.

"You make an absolutely false charge that our classes are nothing but Communist meetings. We do not see any reason to inquire into the political beliefs of any of us."

Chadsey interrupted at this point to say: "As soon as you disassociate yourselves from Joe Jones and his wife, I will be glad to talk to you." Jones' wife, Frieda, was fined recently for peace disturbance in a Communistic demonstration on the City Hall lawn. Jones displayed posters in the classroom that Chadsey calls "Communist propaganda."

"These classes," the delegation leader, Donald McKenzie, 1200 North Market street, continued, "as our teacher, Miss Beatrice Bonine, and each one of us can prove, do not serve any political party but are just what they were organized to be—an opportunity for jobless workers to study art."

Chadsey broke in again to relate the conditions under which he will discuss letting the class resume its use of one of the courtrooms in the Old Courthouse, and then McKenzie read three or four more paragraphs of the protest, concluding with the challenge: "We are ready to submit our work as evidence of our sincerity, to any competent group to judge."

To this defiance the Director of Public Safety answered: "When you folks disassociate yourselves with Jones, I'll be glad to talk to you."

He busied himself with some papers on his desk and the delegation filed out.

Oriental Rugs

Prices like these, for true Orientals, sound so low, we want to tell you the background of this sale. One of the most important importers in America had a quantity of rugs packed away in a bonded storehouse. Beautiful things he had imported two years ago before the present higher prices went into effect.

A lucky thing for him, for us and for you! Vandervoort's saw them, realized their value and wanted them. We offered spot cash then and there. Rather than bother selling them piecemeal, the importer sold the whole lot to Vandervoort's at sensationally low prices. Believe us, it's something that does not happen often.

12 Months of Repeal*

ON December 6, 1933, the Repeal of the Prohibition Amendment was ratified—and found Chicago and the nation unprepared.

For many years the country had been flooded with a rising tide of bootleg liquors—some very good, some nauseous, some outright poisonous. Now overnight the sale of these highly questionable liquors became legal. And the public began its bewildered search for something fit to drink.

Hurriedly a mass of legislation was thrown together by city, state and national governments to protect their citizens. But loopholes were only too obvious to the unscrupulous men who promptly looked for them.

Should Walgreen's offer liquors?

At that time the Walgreen Drug Stores were faced with a vital decision: Should wines and liquors be offered in these stores, whose primary functions have been—and will continue to be—those of the ethical pharmacy?

There was no question but that many of our best customers were opposed to the sale of wines and liquors—and might resent their presence in our stores.

Nevertheless, it seemed to us that Chicago was in very urgent need of such protection as our special facilities were best suited to provide.

Events of the next twelve months proved that decision correct.

50% of today's liquors are bootleg

It is estimated that over 50% of the liquors consumed in the United States are bootleg liquors—made from unknown ingredients at some unknown source. Many legal brands of liquors—not definitely dangerous, but practically unfit to drink—evade the spirit if not the letter of the law.

Counterfeit bottles, labels and government stamps, plus the tactics of certain unscrupulous distillers, have left the public with only one real safeguard—a retail source of supply with an unquestioned reputation for integrity and the facilities to maintain that reputation.

AMONG SUCH SOURCES THE NAME WALGREEN STANDS OUT, UNBLEMISHED BY A SINGLE BREACH OF TRUST!

In the confusion of those first few months the Walgreen Drug Stores took no part. True, we imported choice wines from Europe, though wines had never before been transported during winter weather. They traveled in heated lighters to the holds of ocean vessels and in heated lighters to heated refrigerator cars, with temperatures carefully regulated to protect them from the chill that ruins wines. And they arrived at our counters in perfect condition.

These "wonderful bargain lots"

All this time we were besieged by men with wonderful bargain lots to offer us. You've no idea of the elaborate tales they told!

The man who took a thousand cases of sixteen-year-old Bourbon in payment of a debt—straight from the family who owned the distillery!

The fellow who picked up five hundred cases of Bacardi from the Cuban refugee! The one who took over a hundred barrels of fine old stock after his brother's warehouse failed!

But the United States Government records show the whereabouts of all bonded liquors. Each transfer is detailed in black and white. So when a plausible salesman—from Newark, for example—offered a thousand barrels of some particular brand and year, it was a simple matter for Walgreen's to learn (1) whether there were a thousand barrels of that brand and year in existence, (2) whether those barrels were in Newark, (3) whether they carried government stamps with the correct serial numbers.

Careful inspection by our representative, in company with a Federal inspector, then determined whether the barrels or the stamps had been tampered with.

A single suspicious circumstance, at any stage, would promptly eliminate the lot from our consideration.

"So they discovered other outlets"

Nowadays these people seldom come to us with their spurious liquors. They have found out that Walgreen's won't be fooled. But they have discovered other outlets—not so conscientious or so well equipped to detect fraud.

In selecting distilled liquors for our customers—either aged or more recently distilled or blended—Walgreen's require four major tests.

1. We study the source. The distillers and their representatives must be responsible business men of excellent reputation.

2. The description of the product must meet our rigid requirements as to purity and chemical content in each price range. Mere absence of harmful ingredients is not enough.

3. Then samples of the liquor are carefully analyzed in our own laboratories or by independent laboratories of high standing—to make sure it does not actually fall short of these specifications.

4. A flavor test by experts must determine that the product satisfies the sense of taste.

Finally the accepted brands are offered to our customers with a scrupulously accurate description of their quality and character.

* * * * * * * * * * *

We do not wish to imply that the Walgreen Drug Stores are the only source of trustworthy wines and liquors in Chicago. There are many others. But we know of no store, or group of stores, that has devoted so much time and thought and money to insure the honesty of its offerings beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The law is steadily perfecting its machinery toward the point where it will some day protect you from the danger that exists in every bottle of bootleg liquor, and grossly inferior blends and brands will some day be forbidden.

BUT, IN THE MEANTIME, YOU CAN SAFELY TRUST YOURSELF TO THE VIGILANT PROTECTION OF THE WALGREEN DRUG STORES.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR J. D. BRINKMAN

Student Lawyer's Secret Marriage to Inez Fitzgerald Disclosed by Death.

The Rev. Dr. Robert S. Johnston, president of St. Louis University, conducted funeral services yesterday at St. Francis Xavier Church for Jerome D. Brinkman, president of the senior law class at St. Louis University who died Wednesday of pneumonia and blood poisoning which followed a tooth extraction.

Mr. Brinkman's death disclosed his secret marriage at Warrenton, Mo., last April 14, to Miss Inez Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fitzgerald, 7269 Maryland avenue, University City.

His wife, 20 years old, a senior in Washington University Law School, revealed the secret to her family after her husband's death. The marriage, culminating a romance of four years, was to be announced immediately after their graduation next June.

An exceptional student, Mr. Brinkman, who was 23, passed the State Bar examination last June, two months after his marriage, although he was only a junior in law school. He returned to school last September to complete his studies.

His wife attended Fontbonne College for two years before entering Washington University. She is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority and the legal society of Kappa Beta Phi. She will practice law. Her father is president of the Fitzgerald & Roberts Roofing Co.

Also surviving are his father, Ben G. Brinkman of Miami, Fla., former controlling owner of the Arena and Forest Park Highlands; and his mother, Mrs. Marie Brinkman, with whom he resided at their home on Robyn road and Lindbergh boulevard, near Sunset Hill Country Club. Burial was in Mount Hope Mausoleum.

VATICAN TO KEEP 'HANDS OFF, EYES OPEN' IN SAAR

Pope Makes It Known That He Will Be Rigidly Impartial in Plebiscite in the Territory.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 15.—The Vatican has decided to keep "hands off but eyes open" in connection with the forthcoming Saar plebiscite, at which that former German area will determine its future status.

Although one word from Pope Pius might conceivably determine the outcome of the voting Jan. 13, the Vatican has decided to remain rigidly impartial, semi-official sources said today.

Catholic voters in the Saar, according to figures here, constitute 70 per cent of the total. Should they vote together, they might swing the plebiscite any way they wanted. But the Pope, it is said, wants no Vatican influence brought to bear.

Orders by Bishops.

The word has gone out quietly from the Vatican to Catholic prelates in the Saar that they are to be scrupulously neutral. Acting on these instructions, the Bishops of Treves and Speyer, whose dioceses cover the Saar, have issued orders to their priests not to participate in a political meeting of any kind.

The priests must refrain from recommending to their parishioners any political newspapers, books or reviews. They may not write for newspapers or magazines without permission from their Bishops.

At the same time, the Pope is keeping himself well informed on the developments in the Saar situation. He has sent to the Saar as Apostolic Delegate Mgr. Giovanni Panico, formerly counselor of the papal nunciature at Praha, Czecho-Slovakia, and auditor of the nunciature at Munich, Germany.

Mgr. Panico reports to Cardinal Pacelli, papal Secretary of State, as do also the bishops of the Saar region. Pacelli keeps the Pope informed.

Germany has been pleased with Panico's appointment because he was connected with the nunciature at Munich.

Attitude of Vatican.

The Vatican's attitude on the Saar, it is said, is dictated by two reasons:

1—The Vatican's reported belief that the plebiscite will result inevitably in Germany's favor. Such being the case, the Vatican would not want to influence its voters against Adolf Hitler, whatever might have been the difficulties between Hitler and the Vatican, because then the situation of the Saar Catholics would be difficult indeed and the difficulties between Germany and the Vatican would increase.

2—Hitler has decidedly put the soft pedal on the religious pronouncements of his lieutenants. Incidents show that the German government is doing its utmost to win and keep the good graces of the Vatican.

Pledge of Religious Liberty.

The German Ambassador to the Vatican, Dr. Diego von Bergen, on receipt of instructions from his government, has given the Vatican assurance with reference to the Catholics of the Saar. He has told the Vatican that "when" the Saar becomes part of Germany they will be given every religious liberty and will enjoy the benefits of the concordat negotiated by Franz von Papen with the Vatican in 1932.

Meantime this concordat remains largely inoperative owing to differences of interpretation that have arisen between the German government and the Vatican. Negotiations to remove these differences have been intermittently carried on for a year, but without result. Now it seems that they will be resumed immediately after the Saar plebiscite.

The negotiations will center around article 31 of the concordat, which refers to the Catholic Laymen's Associations. The question of whether these are to remain in their present vigorous state or be nullified in the Hitlerian system has been the thorn in the application of the concordat.

Court Rules Von Papen May Vote in Saar Plebiscite.

By the Associated Press.

SAARBRUECKEN, Dec. 15.—A superior tribunal ruled today that Franz von Papen, German Minister to Austria, was eligible to vote in the Jan. 13 plebiscite.

Anti-Nazis had contended that he was not eligible to cast his ballot. He was given the "benefit of the doubt" by the tribunal, which took the precaution to say that he "may vote but once."

Von Papen had registered on two occasions, but the tribunal held that he must vote in his home commune of Wallerangen.

The anti-Nazis said Von Papen was not in the Saar on June 28, 1919, but the Minister replied that he would have been if the French Army hadn't expelled him.

The case was decided at a secret sitting of the tribunal at which Von Papen did not appear.

Plebiscite Commission Asks for Political Truce.

By the Associated Press.

SAARBREUCKEN, Saar Territory, Dec. 15. — The Plebiscite Commission of the League of Nations appealed tonight to party leaders in the Saar for a political truce in order to avoid the imposition of martial law during the Plebiscite period.

The Commission, of which Sarah Wambaugh, the American author, is a technical adviser, asked the factions to put a five-day damper on agitation between Jan. 22 and Jan. 27, intimating that marital law might be declared if the population fails to keep order. After the Plebiscite on Jan. 13, there will be an intermediate stage under international policing while the change of government, if any, is effected.

The Commission's step toward self-discipline follows the arrest yesterday of three Germans at Wallersangen, the home of Franz von Papen, Minister to Austria. They were jailed for shouting: "Dirty Frenchmen, have you got your living quarters in France for 1935?" The three held for trial were among occupants of three bus loads of Germans which stopped before Nazi headquarters and marched to the quarters of another organization which favors an independent Saar, yelling epithets against France.

CURATIVE CARE URGED IN STATE INSTITUTIONS

Bi-Partisan Board Makes Report on Missouri Hospitals and Prisons to Gov. Park.

A recommendation that the State program for reconstruction and expansion of prisons and eleemosynary institutions, for which $10,000,000 in bonds was voted, should make full provision for correctional care and treatment of prisoners and patients is contained in a report submitted to Gov. Park and members of the Bi-Partisan State Advisory Board, by Claude B. Ricketts, a member of the board.

By authorization of Gov. Park and the State Building Commission, Ricketts recently made an inspection tour of a number of the most advanced prisons and State institutions in Eastern states. He was accompanied by medical experts and others concerned with the administration of State institutions.

An important question, Ricketts said, was whether the State should plan merely to house or confine prisoners and patients, or should provide curative and correctional facilities that would tend to place mental patients back in normal lives and prevent released prisoners from drifting back into trouble and again into prison. It has been found that about 40 per cent of the prisoners in the Missouri penitentiary have served prison terms before.

Mere custodial care is much more costly in the long run, Ricketts concluded.

"A program of providing custodial care," he reported, "according to the study of New Jersey State government which was made for Gov. A. Harry Moore by Princeton University, is so expensive as to be financially impossible. There was universal agreement with this view in New York and Massachusetts. The evidence we found seems conclusive in favor of treatment, not only from the standpoint of humanity, but especially from the standpoint of thet citizen who faces the load of mounting taxes."

Getting the right kind of personnel in the State institutions is more important than good buildings, Ricketts said. He quoted Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison as having said to him: "I would much rather have five good men on my staff than five new buildings." And Commissioner William J. Ellis of New Jersey said to him: "I would tell Gov. Park that I could get nowhere with the best buildings in the world without able, experienced and loyal employes who have enlisted for life."

"Everywhere we found administrators emphasizing the necessity for trained physicians, officers and workers, selected on a basis of merit," the report said, "where the selection has not been made ineffective by legal preferences and jokers in the civil service law."

Prison Employment a Problem.

Employment of prisoners is one of the problems, Ricketts said. He found best results where prisoners were carefully classified as to capabilities and previous occupations and given work producing articles for State use rather than in mass production of items for the general markets.

Attractive interiors are an aid in the correctional treatment of prisoners, Ricketts was informed by some prison officials.

"The question of providing beautiful interiors raises problems difficult for the layman to decide," he said, "as they mostly feel that prisoners should be treated rather harshly, and that they should work in shops and sleep in rooms severe, plain and unpleasing. Hence we were surprised to find that able, experienced wardens and superintendents of prisons and reformatories argued against this conception.

"Both Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and Calvin Derrick, superintendent of the State Home for Boys, who had served as warden at Sing Sing and as assistant warden of the New Jersey State prison, asserted that the prisoner and the juvenile delinquent should be exposed to a whole series of appeals to his better nature, so that he may respond to some of them and be able to appreciate and understand a very different kind of life than that to which he has been accustomed."

The report stated the general conclusion that it would be proper for the Bi-Partisan Advisory Board, which consists of six members, to recommend to the Building Commission and the Governor "what to rebuild, what to tear down and what new facilities to provide at each institution or branch thereof."

Dr. Stocking to Speak in East.

The Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, and Moderator of the National Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, has gone to New York to address the Congregational Club of that city, tomorrow night, at Broadway Tabernacle. He will also attend the celebration of the seventieth birthday of the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, honorary moderator, at the Church of the Pilgrims in Brooklyn Tuesday. Before returning, he will attend a meeting of the Corporation for the General Council.

WHITE HOUSE CHRISTMAS PARTIES ARE ANNOUNCED

Schedule Similar to Last Year's; Dance for College Age Group Dec. 29.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Christmas at the White House will be much like last year. One more party is planned by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Miss Barbara Cushing, whose sister is the wife of the President's son, James, and Miss Jean Martineau, whose mother is first cousin of the President, will be guests of honor at the added party—a dinner and small dance Saturday, Dec. 29. The friends of the college-age Roosevelts, John and Franklin Jr., will come to it.

The other young Roosevelts, "James and Betsey," "Elliott and Ruth," will be honor guests at the New Year's eve party.

Then there will be a children's party for Sistie and Buzzie and Sara, the presidential grandchildren, on Friday, Dec. 28.

The President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, will be there from Hyde Park, just like last year.

The President's son, James, with his wife and baby, who couldn't come until New Year's eve last year, will be in on the Christmas fun—and so will son Elliott, his wife and baby Ruth, who were across the continent a year ago.

A WORD FROM HENRY FORD

We expect to announce our new 1935 cars, and have them in dealers' showrooms where you may see and examine them, on Saturday, December 29th. The cars are coming off the line now and distribution will soon commence.

I have never been very much in favor of the custom of yearly models. Good motor cars do not become obsolete simply because the calendar turns a leaf. Our former custom was to put improvements on our cars as soon as we developed and tested them, so that there was continuous refinement and progress. The custom of introducing new models annually is justified when they are really new, and not merely equipped with new talking points for the purposes of salesmanship.

Last year's Ford V-8 was a good car, the best we had built up to that time. We don't say to any customer with a last year's car that his car is out of date. If it is giving him service, and if he is not in the market for a new car, there is no reason for him to feel that he is behind the procession. He still drives the fundamentally latest thing in cars. The new car has all the qualities and advantages of last year's car, with something added.

The improvements we offer are not experimental in any sense; they were thoroughly tried out under every conceivable circumstance before we finally adopted them. That, in fact, is our job all the year 'round—refining, improving, making new balance of qualities, always adhering closely to our principle of continuous growth in the basic purpose of the Ford car.

The 1935 V-8 engine is practically the same engine we built in 1934, because we have not learned how to build a better one. It has, however, some refinements, amongst which are the copper-lead connecting rod bearings, and the new type of crankcase ventilation.

Most of the improvements concern the riding qualities of the car. There is now more comfort both in driving the car and riding in it—and it was always a very comfortable car to drive. This year we have paid particular attention to the comfort of the back seat rider. The rear seat is now forward of the rear axle, so that all passengers ride between the axles. With the new flexible springs, this gives what has been aptly described as "a front seat ride for the back seat passengers." Besides, it has permitted changes in the design of the body which have resulted in those lines of beauty so much in favor with automobile owners today.

We have always had three fundamentals—Durability, Economy of operation and maintenance, and Comfort. Safety, of course, is taken for granted. The Durability is just what it always was; no one needs to be told at this late day that Fords are built to last. The Economy is even greater than before—an 8-cylinder engine with the economy of a four. As to Comfort, however, there has been a very considerable advance, as I think you will agree when you have tried the car out.

We built more than 20,000,000 cars previous to the V-8. We have built 1,300,000 V-8 cars. The V-8, we believe, is the proper engine for the low-price car field, which is our field.

This 1935 car will be on display December 29th, with all details ready for your information. It is entirely probable that some of our prices will be lower than in 1934. We want them lower because we expect to build a million cars and better next year, and the price must be right. If the price is right, people will buy; men will go back to work; a thousand related businesses will feel the new impulse. At least, we are trying to make 1935 a busier, happier and more hopeful year.

CAPTAIN TELLS OF RESCUE AT SEA; 11 SAVED, 17 LOST

'Men Took Lives in Hands' in Effort to Take Off Crew of Disabled Freighter Usworth.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—How 17 men lost their lives when an attempt was made to take off the crew of the disabled British freighter Usworth is told in a message from Capt. J. G. B. Bisset of the Cunard-White Star liner Ascania. His vessel and the Belgian steamer Jean Jadot responded to the Usworth's wireless call for help. Capt. Bisset said two of the crew of the rescue vessel Jean Jadot and 15 from the Usworth were drowned. The Ascania rescued nine and the Jean Jadot two. His message to the office of his line here follows:

"Received SOS from Usworth 100 miles distant. Hove to in heavy northwest gale with mountainous sea and hurricane squalls. Rushed for Usworth position making 16 knots, running before sea in continuous bad weather.

"No observations of ship's position possible, but used direction finder with great success. Belgian steamer Jean Jadot standing by at this time, but could do nothing owing to the weather.

"Jean Jadot fired rockets which we saw 20 miles distant. At 7 a. m. Friday Ascania arrived on scene. Usworth lying over to port with 25 degree list.

Picture of Disabled Vessel.

"Boats all washed away, bulkhead and hatches stove in and seas sweeping over her. She was blotted out at intervals by hurricane squalls.

"Ascania and Jean Jadot circled slowly around spreading oil to ease Usworth's condition. Between 8 a. m. and noon both ships attempted to get line on board by means of line throwing rockets hoping to send over empty boat as weather was much too bad to send boat away with crew.

"Attempts failed owing to impossibility of ships getting near enough to one another and drifting rapidly in heavy seas and rolling and pitching heavily. Usworth urgently requesting men be taken off. Situation extremely critical and ship listing more heavily every hour.

Drowned When Boat Capsizes.

"After terrific struggle Jean Jadot got into position and sent boat. Took off 14 men. Boat was swept adrift when being picked up by Jean Jadot and she capsized.

"Twelve of Usworth's crew and two of Jean Jadot's drowned. At 1:30 p. m. Ascania sent boat which got alongside after epic struggle and took off remaining 12 men, but three drowned by jumping overboard in attempt to reach boat too soon.

"Boat picked up successfully by Ascania. Boat was badly damaged and cast adrift. Left Usworth in sinking condition at 3:30 p. m. All men who manned boats took lives in hands. Campbell, able seaman, Ascania crew, had leg broken alongside Usworth."

District Attorney Again Indicted.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 15. — Earl Wettengel, District Attorney of Denver, today was indicted by a county grand jury for the second time on a charge of perjury. The charge, based on Wettengel's testimony regarding a trip to St. Joseph, Mo., is similar to the first but said by members of the jury to be based on new evidence. Both involved Wettengel's denial that he made the trip with Lafayette Utter, sought for investigation regarding his alleged interest in gambling here.

BUSINESS RECORDS ADMITTED AT TRIAL OF MARTIN INSULL

Prosecution Relies on Them in Embezzlement Case to Show Criminal Intent.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Prosecutors won a major point in the embezzlement trial of Martin Insull today when Judge Cornelius J. Harrington ruled they might introduce business records relied on to show criminal intent.

A defeat for the prosecutors would have crippled their case, they admitted.

Flaming Wax Threatens Village.

ELMSFORD, N. Y., Dec. 15. — Flaming wax, which flowed down the street of this village, caused fire damage estimated at $125,000 before it was brought under control today. The wax came from a burning wax factory which, with two hotels, two business buildings and an apartment house, were destroyed.

SENATOR CLARK DRAFTS PLAN TO TAKE PROFITS OUT OF WAR

Acts Independently of Committee Designated by Roosevelt for That Purpose.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, member of the Senate Munitions Committee, announced today he was drafting a plan to take all the profits out of war, in spite of the fact that President Roosevelt has named a committee to frame such legislation.

He said his program included taking charge of all the nation's resources—literally drafting industry as well as human beings. He said he was studying also a plan for the nationalization of military inventions.

"A man drafted into the military service doesn't have a chance to argue with the Government over hours or pay. Why should industry?" Clark said today.

Chairman Nye of the Senate Munitions Committee has said he will reintroduce his bill to impose a 98 per cent tax on all incomes above $10,000 after a declaration of war. He has demanded also the nationalization of the munitions industry without waiting for another war.

Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, also a member of the committee, is expected to reintroduce the recommendations of the old War Policies Commission, of which he was a member, to levy a 95 per cent war-time tax on all profits in excess of the average for the last three pre-war years.

For many years the War Department has had a secret plan for mobilizing industry in time of war. The munitions committee will begin a public investigation of this plan next week in the expectation that it would not prevent excessive profits.

The group designated by the President to write an anti-war-profit measure is headed by Bernard Baruch, New York financier.

Some Republican members of the Senate committee have said they regarded Mr. Roosevelt's move as an effort to bring the munitions investigation to an early end.

C. A. ANDERSON HEADS BUREAU TO PREVENT CRIME

County Prosecutor, Injured in Attack Oct. 9, Is Elected at Convention of Missouri Group.

C. Arthur Anderson, Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, was elected president of the Missouri Crime Prevention Bureau at its first annual convention, at the Majestic Hotel yesterday.

Anderson sent a message approving the aims of the bureau and accepting the office. Since Oct. 9 he has been in County Hospital with serious injuries suffered in an assault when on his way home late at night after interviewing witnesses, following his successful prosecution of the first defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case.

An attending surgeon said yesterday that Anderson's condition had noticeably improved. His left leg sustained a compound fracture. It was kept in a splint until yesterday, when an open cast was placed on it. An infection of the leg has improved, decreasing in area. The new cast caused considerable discomfort.

The Missouri Crime Prevention Bureau was formed last summer, with Al G. Lill, former Sheriff of St. Louis County, now foreman of the county grand jury, as president.

Other Officers Chosen.

Thomas Brown, Chief of Police of Richmond Heights, was re-elected treasurer. Vice-presidents chosen were: Sheriff Thomas Bash of Jackson County, Chief of Police Paul Frey of Springfield and Chief of Police D. O. Cato of Independence, re-elected, and James Finnegan, Prosecuting Attorney-elect of St. Louis, and Sheriff Phil Deuser of St. Louis County. Charles J. Hahn Jr., 6168 Washington avenue, publisher of the National Police Officer, which was taken under auspices of the bureau, was re-elected executive secretary.

New members elected to the Executive Committee were: Circuit Attorney Miller and Chief of Detectives Carroll of St. Louis, G. Impey, Prosecuting Attorney of Texas County; H. J. Mead, police chief of Joplin; Sheriff Tom Donaldson of Dunklin County, Sheriff W. W. Bolton of Pettis County, Warden J. M. Sanders of the State penitentiary, D. J. Nolan of Springfield, a special agent of the Frisco Railway, and Constable Ben Reed of Hayti.

Members re-elected were: Arch Skleton, Prosecuting Attorney of Lafayette County; Otto Schnarr, police chief of Clayton; Sheriff Les Massingham of Butler County, Grant S. Ward, chief special agent of the Wabash Railway; C. W. Tobie, St. Louis superintendent of the Burns detective agency; Constable Frank Weiss of Kirkwood and Constable H. E. Mock of Higginsville.

Resolution on Severances.

In addition to five proposed laws intended to improve the administration of criminal justice, recommended Friday, the convention voted yesterday in favor of making severances for defendants charged jointly in criminal cases discretionary with the trial judge. A proposal to prohibit severances was dropped when it was pointed out that in special circumstances it might be unfair to some defendants to insist on joint trial. A bill on this subject will be drawn by Barton Grant of Webster Groves, counsel for the bureau, who prepared the other measures.

A resolution was adopted praising the work of the State Highway Patrol and its co-operation with police and other enforcement agencies. It petitioned Gov. Park and the Legislature to increase the patrol's appropriation for 19335-36.

An expression of thanks for co-operation of the Department of Justice also was voted.

Work at State Capital.

The bureau will send Executive Secretary Hahn to Jefferson City during the coming session of the Legislature. It will furnish Sheriffs, police chiefs and prosecuting officials with copies of all bills introduced touching on law enforcement. A Legislative Committee, to visit the Capitol during the season, was appointed, consisting of Counsel Grant, Assistant Chief of Police Lee Barnes of Columbia, Frank Fenton, superintendent of the police identification bureau at Columbia; Sheriff Arthur Gaines of Howard County, and Prosecuting Attorney H. G. Chaffin of Webster County.

Attendance at the convention, which closed last night with a banquet at the Mayfair Hotel, was 65, with about 30 counties represented.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—Not to be outdone by Mrs. Matthew Kenny, leader in the Millar will $500,000 maternity sweepstakes, Mrs. Grace Bagnato, court interpreter, today was presented by the stork with her ninth child since 1926, a boy. Reports from the hospital are that both mother and child are doing well.

Mrs. Kenny on Wednesday gave birth to her eleventh child since 1926. Although Mrs. Bagnato now has borne 22 children, only nine are eligible to be counted for the prize, which goes to the Toronto mother who gives birth to the most children in the decade following Charles V. Millar's death. The millionaire lawyer-sportsman died in October, 1926.

M'NINCH TELLS HOW POWER RATES CAN BE REDUCED

Chairman of Commission Says Cuts Should Be Made Where Capitalization Is Inflated.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Discussing possibility of lower rates for electricity on a nation-wide scale, Chairman McNinch of the Power Commission said today:

"Reductions should be made in those capital structures which are inflated. Such reductions should eliminate costs incurred during the period of inflated prices and also take out obsolete and inefficient machinery and any other unreal or fictitious element.

"This would afford the basis for just and fair rates at substantially lower levels than present rates and would at the same time afford to the operating companies a return on the true, prudent investment.

"Recent conferences encourage me to hope for increased co-operation by the industry in the accomplishment of these objectives, which would result in greatly increased consumption at the lower rates and without impairment of ultimate net earnings.

"In this general direction, in my opinion, lies a sound and permanent prosperity for the industry."

2000 BUILDINGS IN COUNTY HAVE ESCAPED TAXING

Assessment Dodging Discovered by Federal Relief Workers in Survey for NEAF.

Relief workers paid by the Federal Government have discovered more than 2000 dwellings and other buildings in St. Louis County which heretofore have escaped assessment and taxation.

Until data obtained by the workers for a general revaluation of all real estate in the county may be compiled in about 10 days, said Assessor Neaf, the assessment to be placed against this group of structures cannot be told. The revaluation was directed by Neaf as a means of making the assessment thorough.

If the average assessment on each of the buildings should be only $1000, the increased valuation would be $2,000,000 in the aggregate and the county's tax revenue would be increased by $20,400 a year, in addition to proportionate increases in the income of the State and of many school districts and towns in the county.

The relief workers made a complete canvass of all structures in the county.

One Subdvision Missed.

In one subdivision in the northern end of the county were about 40 residences, costing perhaps $4000 or $5000 each to build, which were not assessed. The owners paid taxes only on the ground value, which was comparatively small. These houses, in an unincorporated area, were erected in recent years.

It was discovered that a business building of several stories in Wellston was not assessed, only a garage valued at $110, on the back of that lot, being on the tax records. The building will be assessed at about $70,000.

At a large filling station in Wellston, owned by an oil company, it developed that one building was assessed and three were not.

The chief reason that structures escaped assessment, according to the Assessor's office, was that they were erected without building permits. Heretofore, assessment in the county has been based largely on building permit records. It was said that permits were not obtained in the foregoing instances of the subdivision and the Wellston property.

Permits for Garages Only.

There were several cases where permits were obtained to build garages but large homes or other structures were erected in addition.

Discovery of unassessed buildings was made in all sections of the county and of places of varying age and usage. Neaf estimated the total number as exceeding 2000 on the basis of the reports he scanned. He knew from his experience as a title examiner before he took office in June, 1933, that some buildings were not taxed, but he said yesterday he had no idea there were so many. They will be placed on the books with valuations as of June 1, 1934, for 1935 taxes.

Before the survey was made there had been 375 instances of unassessed property found as a result of complaints by property owners whose taxes were larger than those of neighbors in unassessed places.

Plat Books Inadequate.

The plat books of the Assessor's office also have been inadequate. District assessors might observe a building and be unable to determine from the plats whether it was assessed. In addition, it frequently was several years after property changed ownership before the plats would be corrected. Neaf's relief forces has been making new, complete plats.

From last December until May there was 350 CWA workers engaged in the field, at a cost of $97,000. Since then there have been 50 FERA workers compiling the data and making plats, at a cost so far of more than $53,000.

As a result of the revaluation, the real estate assessment for 1935 taxes will be about $28,900,000 greater than the assessment of $289,000,000 for 1934 taxes, the increase amounting approximately to the constitutional limit of 10 per cent for any one year.

SIX STATES AGREE ON 5-DAY, 40-HOUR WEEK IN INDUSTRY

Congress to Be Asked to Consent to Compact of Eastern Group; Legislatures to Ratify.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 15. — A tentative agreement between six states for a maximum five-day, 40-hour week in industry, has been reached, it was announced today by Senator Henry Parkman Jr., of Boston, general chairman of the Interstate Conference on Labor compacts.

The states whose representatives signed the agreement are Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. Before the compact is finally effective, it must be signed by the commissioners representing these states and then ratified by the legislatures.

Senator Parkman said the hours of the compact would apply to manufacturing, mechanical, mercantile, and canning establishments, and in mining, quarrying and construction enterprises. The first compact was signed by the representatives of seven states at Concord, N. H., last May. Parkman said Congress would be asked to give its consent to the compact.

ACCUSED OF DISCLOSING BRITISH MILITARY SECRETS

Employe of Woolwich Arsenal Pleads Not Guilty; Firm Approached Informed on Him.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Under the official Secrets Act William Burges, computer of the Woolwich Arsenal, was committed for trial today on charges of disclosing information likely to assist an enemy.

Burges pleaded not guilty. At the hearing it was asserted Burges had an excellent war record, having won the military cross and retired from active service with the rank of Major.

The prosecution charged Burges approached Imperial Chemical Industries, after certain information for which that firm asked the War Office had been refused and indicated he could obtain the information desired. The company immediately communicated with the War Office and its subsequent dealing with Burges were under War Office instructions.

Using the name "Vincent," the prsoecution alleged, Burges called at the company's offices and handed over documents marked "official secrets." Later, it was charged, he arranged to deliver other secret information in Parliament Square, where he was arrested. The prsoecution asserted Burges suggested that he receive $500 for his services.

GOLD HOARDING CASE DROPPED

License of Jewelers to Buy Scrap Gold Ordered Canceled.

SYRACUSE, Dec. 15.—The attorney General's office in Washington has advised Oliver D. Burden, United States Attorney for the Northern New York District, to ask for dismissal of an indictment against Nathan, Philip and Otto Sonne, Utica jewelers, who were accused in December of hoarding coins in violation of the Gold Reserve Act.

In the same letter Burden was informed that the Treasury Department has instructed the United States Mint to cancel the license issued to the three brothers to buy scrap gold. The Sonne brothers were indicted after William Karp, a Secret Service agent, seized several old coins on display at their store. Nathan Sonne later wrote a letter to President Roosevelt asking him to order the agent to return the coins and to direct newspapers to retract stories of the case.

SCENTING VICTORY, PARAGUAY PAYS NO HEED TO LEAGUE

Arranging for Fresh Thrust at Bolivia, Turns Peace Offer Over to Military Experts for Study.

By the Associated Press.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 15.—Indications increased today that the League of Nations' latest plan to end the Chaco war would fall as Paraguayan and Bolivian troops faced each other in sweltering heat reaching 114 degrees in some places.

A momentary lull came in major military operations, while Gen. Jose Estigarribia's Paraguayan troops gathered their forces preparing to renew the late season drive that has carried them to the western edges of the Chaco and the very bordesr of Brazil.

It was expected Estigarribia, hopeful an invasion of Bolivian territory would provide the finishing blow to the nearly three years of warfare, would strike again at the retreating Bolivians within the next few days.

To official apathy to the League of Nations' proposal for "peace by Christmas," meanwhile, was added the open hostility of the press.

The newspaper El Diario, which is under the direction of one of the leaders of the Government party, said the League, "at the request of the Bolivian delegate, suddenly remembers that hostilities can end before Christmas, adding that after Dec. 20 Bolivia will be exempt from responsibility. . . .

"Hostilities will not cease now that Paraguay at the cost of enormous sacrifices is expelling the last invaders from its territory. Perhaps fighting will end before Christmas, but it will be with the definite defeat of the invader."

Troops engaged in the northern part of the Pilcomayo sector are in the heart of the Chaco's most inhospitable, waterless, hot and sandy region. No water is to be had for 50 miles, and the soil is so sandy supply trucks are able to move but six miles an hour.

Paraguay Informs League It "Maintains Its Reasoned Statement."

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 15.—Paraguay today acknowledged the League of Nations' request that it reply to the League's latest proposal for peace in the Chaco war before the League's Chaco advisory committee reconvenes Dec. 20.

The cablegram from Asuncion said "Paraguay maintains the reasoned statement contained in its telegram of Dec. 11," in which it informed the League that the plan had been given to military experts for study.

THOMASSON WILL DEFENSE OPENED

Two Trust Company Officers Testify to Opinion Aged Realty Owner Was Sane.

Defense testimony in the suit filed by 50 collateral heirs of Hugh W. Thomasson to set aside his will opened yesterday before a jury in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court. The petitioners closed their case, after having presented testimony for seven days. It is expected the trial will be concluded this week.

A large number of witnesses were put on the stand in support of petitioners' contention that Thomasson was not mentally competent to make a legal will. The document in controversy, executed in 1926, left the bulk of his estate, estimated at $750,000, with the Boatmen's National Bank for the benefit of the public schools of Missouri.

The last witness for the collateral heirs was Dr. Francis M. Barnes Jr., who testified he was of the opinion Thomasson was not of sound mind. He had been preceded on the stand by three of the plaintiffs, Miss Elmire Townsend, 5556 Maple avenue; Mrs. Charlotte Welborn and Mrs. Henry Bolles of 1130 Watts avenue, University City, cousins of Thomasson, who testified he was of unsound mind.

Defense witnesses yesterday were Isaac H. Orr, chairman of the board of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., and George M. Pyle, assistant vice-president of that company. They told of an earlier will drawn for Thomasson by the St. Louis Union Trust Co., which made similar disposition of his estate. Thomasson, however, refused to sign it, stating he had been informed by his attorney that it was not legal, as it created a perpetual trust. Another will was drafted to meet his objections, but he also refused to sign that, Pyle said. Both Orr and Pyle said they considered him of sound mind.

Thomasson, aged realty owner, died in January, 1933. His marriage to Mrs. Grace Mahood, a young divorcee, in July, 1930, was followed by extended litigation. Thomasson's relatives contended he was forced into the marriage. Mrs. Thomasson accepted a settlement of her claim against the estate, and since his death has been remarried and divorced.

Counsel for the heirs in the will suit are Patrick H. Cullen, Taylor R. Young and Stephen A. Boggiano. State officials who are named defendants are represented by Edward C. Crow, Assistant Attorney-General. The Boatmen's Bank is represented by Sears Lehmann and Charles Claflin Allen Jr.

POWER OF COURT TO REOPEN MOONEY CASE CHALLENGED

California Attorney-General Says Matter Is One for Legislative Rather Than Judicial Action.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 15.—Attorney-General Webb mailed a brief to the United States Supreme Court today opposing Tom Mooney's fight for freedom, an application for permission to file a writ of habeas corpus.

Mooney's 17-year fight for unconditional freedom from San Quentin Prison recently was carried to the Supreme Court on a plea that his imprisonment for the Preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco in 1916, when 10 persons were killed and 40 injured, was based on perjured testimony.

"The petitioner contends that the introduction of allegedly false evidence invalidated the valid process by means of which the trial court obtained jurisdiction," the California State official said in his brief.

Mooney's argument, said Webb, that courts should have the power to reopen cases in which intrinsic fraud is alleged is "a matter for legislative rather than judicial action." Courts are not now empowered by Constitution or statute to exercise such jurisdiction, the attorney contended.

"The only remedial powers in such cases are those of executive pardon or executive clemency," Webb asserted.

CONSIDERS ST. LOUIS FIRM'S SUIT AGAINST METHODISTS

U. S. Judge to Decide Later on Action Involving Defaulted Bonds on Hospitals.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 15.—Federal Judge Fee today took under advisement the $92,220 collection suit brought against the Oregon Conference of the Methodist Church by William G. Bitting and the St. Louis Trust Co.

Bitting sued to collect defaulted interest and principal on bonds issued by the Wesley Hospital at Marshfield. His company extended a $110,000 loan for construction of the hospital, and argued that the Methodist Conference guaranteed the issue. Methodist officials contended, however, that the hospital, alone, was responsible for the debt.

Judge Fee yesterday denied a defense plea for an order of non-suit, based on repudiation of the written guarantee of the late Bishop William O. Shepard of the Oregon Conference.

AUSTRIAN BORDER SHOOTING BRINGS NO DIPLOMATIC TENSION

Two Members of Patrol Alleged to Have Been Killed by German Nazis.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—Austria and Germany tonight seemed equally determined not to let the killing of two members of an Austrian border patrol disturb their good relations.

Although the Vienna government earlier in the day was considering making immediate representations to Berlin, it was said officially this evening the German Government was not held responsible for the death of the patrolmen, alleged to have been shot by "Austrian Legion" Nazis from Germany. The official version of the shooting, in the vicinity of Erl, was that the border patrol suddenly was confronted by three men who opened fire before the Austrians had time to remove their rifles from the shoulder straps. At the Foreign Office it was said German officials were trying to apprehend the persons who did the shooting. Berlin dispatches quoted Government officials as saying the victims were not members of the Austrian patrol, but two men who entered Austrian territory from Germany, met the patrol and were killed.

FIVE HELD IN SERIES OF EAST SIDE CRIMES

Four Young Men Said to Have Admitted Part In Robberies.

Warrants charging burglary and robbery while armed were issued yesterday against four East St. Louis youths who, police say, are members of a gang which has been implicated in three holdups, eight burglaries and two attempted burglaries on the East Side in the last two months. A warrant charging receiving stolen property was issued against a fifth member of the gang.

The men charged, all of whom have admitted participation, according to police, said they were James Palovcik, 22-year-old ex-convict and alleged leader of the group. charged with seven burglaries, two attempts and two robberies; John Krul, 21, eight burglaries, two attempts and three robberies; Frank Weilgus, 16, seven burglaries, two attempts and two robberies; Buren Dedmon, 24, an ex-convict, one burglary and one robbery, and his half-brother, Jack Dedmon, 24, receiving stolen property.

Loot valued at approximately $3000 and consisting of jewelry, automobile accessories, household appliances and a Ford automobile was stolen by the gang, police said. The automobile and about $1500 in other property has been recovered from homes of the men arrested. Some of the property had already been sold.

Aiding police in locating some of the loot last night was the 18-year-old bride of Krul. They were married last Monday, using a wedding ring taken in one of the burglaries. She assisted police in questioning Krul as to the whereabouts of the stolen goods.

The men were arrested Thursday and Friday after police learned one of the gang had tried to sell a $190 electric sewing machine for $30. The prospective purchaser became suspicious and told police. The arrests followed.

GAS COMPANY ACTS TO PASS NEW TAXES ON TO CONSUMERS

Says New York's 3 Per Cent Levy on Utility Receipts Will Add $7,561,610.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Declaring tax increases would add nearly $14,000,000 to their operating costs next year, the Consolidated Gas Co. system in New York City today moved to pass the extra burden along to the consumers. The company filed with the Public Service Commission amendments to their rate schedules containing a tax adjustment charge to be applied on a percentage basis to all bills to customers.

The sums thus realized, the company said, would be placed in a separate reserve for tax purposes.

The company estimated that the 3 per cent tax on gross receipts of utilities, recently enacted by the city, alone would increase its taxes at least $7,561,610, while the new 2 per cent sales tax would add approximately $578,850 to its bill for materials and supplies.

PWA APPROVES CONTRACT FOR CAHOKIA CREEK CANAL

Locke Tarlton's Bid Accepted; New Estimates on Engine and Pumping Equipment.

The contract for construction of the Cahokia Creek diversion canal, excepting engine and pumping equipment, was formally approved yesterday by PWA officials in favor of G. Locke Tarlton, low bidder, Stephen Kernan, president of the East St. Louis Levee Board announced.

The award was made to Tarlton at $1,993,731, a deduction of $266,202 for engine and pumping equipment having been made from his original bid of $2,259,933. New specifications will be drawn and bids secured on the remaining items.

Award of the contract has been in controversy for more than a month between the Levee Board and PWA officials, who refused to approve the engine and pump items after protests had been filed that the specifications were so narrowly drawn that certain manufacturers were excluded. The new specifications will be broadened.

Tarlton said work would be started in 10 days.

Builder of Speediest Plane Dies.

By the Associated Press.

VARESE, Italy, Dec. 15.—Guilio Marchi, aeronautical engineer who built the "Red Bullet" plane in which Lieut. Francesco Agello established a world speed record, died suddenly tonight of a broken blood vessel. Marchi built many Italian Schneider cup entries.

FAVORS DEVELOPMENT OF MISSOURI BASIN

Federal Resources Board Advises Abandoning Some Farms as Worthless.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Development of the Missouri River is among a dozen water projects which the National Resources Board approved in a report made today to the President.

The board recommended the immediate studies of the Kansas City flood-control problem. The report withheld details of other specific recommendations for development of this basin.

The board was said to have considered the problem from the standpoint of power, water supply, navigation, irrigation, recreation and with a view to flood and erosion control and for the elimination of pollution and loss through run-off and drainage.

In its report on maladjustments in the use of land of four areas are outlined in Missouri and two in Kansas for "constructive use, not to be in farms." The land so designated in Kansas lies in the extreme southwest and west of the State. The areas in Missouri are in the southeast section of the State, a narrow strip in the north central part, a triangular tract in the south central part and a smaller area in the east central part.

"Within these areas," says the report, "are farms from which farmers should ultimately be encouraged to withdraw, mainly because experience has demonstrated the land to be too poor to provide adequate family living and support public institutions and services."

In discussing the mineral policy the report says: "Few groups of our population have suffered greater hardships than the coal miners. So long as bituminous coal mining functions in surroundings of poverty, the operator has neither incentive nor the means to prevent waste. The firts and indispensable step to the solution of either the short-time problem of too many mines and miners or the long-time problem of preventing waste, is to place these industries on a basis of economic stability."

The report says: "At the present time in one field, enough gas is being blown into the air to supply all domestic consumers in the United States."

Missouri and Kansas were named among 42 of the states which have set up planning agencies at the suggestion of the national board. Universities assumed leadership in this work in Missouri.

SAYS WEISS WAS TORTURED AND KILLED BY KIDNAPERS

Woman Arrested in Philadelphia Raid Tells Police Gang Had Picked Three More Victims.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 15.—Police Superintendent Joseph A. Lestrange disclosed tonight a woman, captured in one of a series of detective raids on gangsters' quarters, had informed authorities that she had heard members of a gang say that William Weiss, a figure in night life here, had been tortured and shot to death by the men who kidnaped him.

Lestrange said the woman also had informed authorities that she heard several members of the gang—which police say they believe includes Robert Mais, fugitive killer—plotting at least three other kidnapings.

The woman is identified by authorities as Mrs. Beatrice Wilkinson, mother of three small girls. Investigators say she is the companion of Charles Zeid, sought in the murder of Detective William Feitz of Camden, N. J. Zeid was one of six men captured in the raids Thursday night.

Police said Mrs. Wilkinson had told them that Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff, sports promoter and fight manager; Albert (Buck) Mayer, associate of Weiss, and an unnamed New Jersey brewer were marked for abduction.

Mais, who with Walter Legenza, shot his way out of a Richmond (Va.) prison where he was awaiting execution for a mail employe's murder, escaped Thursday night in a pistol fight with police.

BISHOP M'CONNELL, METHODIST, DENOUNCES SOCIAL ORDER

Tells People's Lobby Conference Self-Interest Plunges World Into Depression and Want.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The present industrial social order was termed "un-Christian, unethical and anti-social" today by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Addressing a conference called by the People's Lobby to discuss "socialization or chaos," he said the existing set-up was "largely based on the profit motive, which is a direct appeal to selfishness.

"Selfishness is never morally right, never Christian and eventually never benefits anybody," he added.

"It is now clear that this moral defect produces functional incapacity by throwing the forces of consumption and production out of balance.

"A satisfactory social organism cannot grow out of an unsocial seed. Self interest is both planless and, in the larger sense, without social intelligence, thus producing the periodic economic crises which from time to time plunge the world into depression and want."

Earlier, Prof. John Dewey, president of the organization, urged socialization of land to "give the unemployed an opportunity to work."

CHICAGO GANGSTER KILLED

Three Men With Machine Gun Shoot Him Near Cigar Store.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—George (Little Rabbit) Connell, whom police associated with gang activities since the time of the late Dion O'Bannon, was killed tonight by three men with a machine gun as he walked near his Halstead street cigar store.

Connell died in a physician's office where he was carried after the three men drove away. Known as "Little Rabbit" to distinguish him from his older brother, Joseph (Big Rabbit) Connell, who was killed in his Goose Island saloon on Aug. 10, 1932, Connell was an ex-convict with a long record of arrests.

LLOYD GEORGE TO LAUNCH "NEW DEAL" IN ENGLAND

Ex-Premier Says It Will Follow President Roosevelt's "Wise Lead."

By the Associated Press.

CHURT, Eng., Dec. 15. — David Lloyd George plans to launch a British "new deal" early in 1935. A campaign for nation-wide reconstruction, developed after conferences with bankers, industrialists, economists and business men is to be sponsored by the war-time Premier, he said in an interview here today.

Following President Roosevelt's "wise lead," Lloyd George even has his own "brain trust," composed of farmers, bankers, business men, scientists, politicians and economists who have been busy several months working out the "new deal" program.

Lloyd George denied his program would bolster up "Liberalism, Socialism, Capitalism or Naziism," asserted there was "nothing revolutionary" about it and said he purposes to form no new party. A plank in his platform is nationalization of the Bank of England. He also favors spending large sums of public money for public works and other purposes. He says Britain is getting nowhere with present plans for unemployment relief and charged the national government with being afraid of schemes big enough to meet the emergency.

BLIND BOY BECOMES FIRST-CLASS SCOUT

Edwin Motter, 15, First to Attain Such Rank in History of St. Louis Council.

Passing the tests required to become a first class scout is something of an accomplishment for a young boy; too much of an accomplishment, in fact, for many boys, who drop out of the organization before attaining first class rank.

But boys who take their scout work seriously keep studying and working until the first class pin is awarded to them, as it was awarded to Edwin Motter of Troop 109, Missouri School for the Blind, at a court of honor Friday night.

Motter, who is 15 years old, and joined the troop three years ago, is the first blind boy in the history of the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, to become a first class scout. Scoutmaster J. H. Botts, who is also principal of the high school at the institution, thinks he is the only blind scout in the country who has attained that rank.

Most of the first class tests the boy passed in the same way as scouts throughout the country. An exception was made, however, in the mapping requirement, and instead of pacing off distances and making a sketch map Edwin made a clay map of Missouri showing rivers and principal cities. He came to the school from Kansas City.

Second class pins were awarded to four members of Troop 109: James Hood, Leslie Cameron, Albert Hall and Earl Rush. Second class requirements in their cases were modified so that instead of the tracking test they examined a number of articles with their fingers and later named them from memory.

The scout roundup, which was originally scheduled to end yesterday, has been continued to Dec. 31 by Earle W. Beckman, scout executive, who says he expects the drive to bring more than 2000 new scouts into the movement.

Each troop in the council pledged a certain number of new scouts and advancement of its members in rank for the roundup, and, as a result, nearly 100 troop courts of honor, a record number, were held last week. Requests for pins, badges and court of honor application blanks poured into Scout Headquarters in the Chemical Building in unprecedented numbers.

A special board of review for all districts will be held at Elias Michael School, Forest Park and Euclid avenues, at 9:30 a. m. next Saturday to pass on merit badge qualifications for the roundup.

The program of the Silver Jubilee Boy Scout Circus, to be held in the Arena Feb. 8 and 9, lists 14 major events, of which the most important will be a pageant depicting the history of scouting. Other events will show scout activities and accomplishments. The show will conclude with Indian and pioneer acts.

Troop Notes.

Eugene Wolf, scoutmaster of Troop 114, Baden School, was awarded a scoutmaster's key in recognition of his five years of continued service and completion of the five-year program of leadership training Friday night. Only 36 of these boys have been awarded by the St. Louis Council.

Two troops celebrated birthdays last week. Troop 155, McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church, observed its tenth anniversary with presentation of 10-year veteran awards to Scoutmaster C. S. Pollock, Committee Chairman Walter Tubbs, committeeman C. S. Johnson and his son, Assistant Scoutmaster Hugh Johnson. Five-year veteran awards were made to Committeeman P. W. Shull, his son, Assistant Scoutmaster Warren Shull, and Assistant Scoutmaster Preston Williams.

Troop 168, St. Pius Church, celebrated its sixth anniversary with a Fathers and Son dinner attended by about 150 fathers, scouts and guests. The camping award earned at Irondale last summer was presented to the troop, as was the standard troop streamer for the fifth consecutive year.

An industrial hike, on which 25 members of Troop 115 visited Police Headquarters and a nearby power plant, was held last week.

NAZI PRESS GAG IS RESISTED BY MANY GERMANS

Even Party Members Frankly Say They Read Foreign Newspapers for Uncolored News.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—A Nazi drive to keep Germans from reading foreign newspapers has met with stout resistance, it was learned today. Two Storm Troop men, one a wine clerk, the other a Chamber of Commerce secretary, told canvassers for Nazi newspapers today they preferred newspapers from abroad to the strictly-censored local organs.

These cases, it was reported, were typical of the attitude of educated Germans in general; either they subscribe to Swiss, French or English newspapers or they frequent cafes where foreign newspapers are kept on file.

"I learn what's going on in Germany about 14 days after things have happened," one German commented, "when I receive the Chicago Abendspost with its dispatches from Berlin."

Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels' gag on the German press has led to an unprecedented influx of foreign newspapers and the leaping circulation of Swiss and other foreign newspapers is giving Nazi authorities real concern, the Deutsche Wochensau said.

This weekly said the men and women who buy foreign papers are refusing their co-operaton to the regime, and termed them evil-minded negative characters.

"What business have these papers to be offered in metropolitan centers like Berlin or, as is happening of late, even in small towns?" it inquired. "Why should they be displayed in the Friedrichstrasse or on the Kurfuerstendamm of Berlin or the Odeonsplatz of Munich?" The weekly said that, in addition to the "moral damage" which these foreign papers did with their "atrocity propaganda" and their reporting of alleged facts which the German press does not carry, there is an economic aspect to the problem.

"If we may believe the assertion of the foreign publishers the sale of Swiss papers alone amounts daily to thousands of marks, which means that in the course of a year the sum swells to many hundreds of thousands," it said.

The weekly suggested that this sale of foreign papers means a considerable drain of foreign exchange, and recommended that Germany in future trade agreements insist that in return for this patronage of foreign papers the countries in question take additional German exports.

OFFICIAL FREED OF KILLING

Texas Man Found Not Guilty in Death of A. P. Borger at Borger.

By the Associated Press.

CANADIAN, Tex., Dec. 15.—Arthur Huey, county tax collector, was acquitted tonight of a charge of murder in connection with the killing of A. P. (Ace) Borger, by a jury which deliberated two hours and 20 minutes.

The state had asked the death penalty for the killing of Borger last August 31 in the postoffice of the town which bears his name. Huey declared he shot in self-defense. Borger had faced charges in the closing of Borger State Bank of which he was president. Huey sought prosecution of Borger for the failure. In turn, Borger backed a rival candidate in the tax collector's race.

HOLDUP MEN TERRORIZE THREE OHIO TOWNS; ROB TWO BANKS

Gang Escapes With $2000 at North Fairfield, $3000 at Adelphi.

By the Associated Press.

WILLARD, O., Dec. 15.—A gang of bank robbers that terrorized the village of North Fairfield for three hours and escaped with loot estimated at $2000, after blasting the vault of the North Fairfield Savings Bank, was hunted tonight.

Sheriff David A. Berry said the burglary was executed by the same men who two days ago broke into the Armstrong Bank at Adelphi, O., escaping with $3000 in negotiable bonds, and that took possession of the town of Cygnet, Nov. 15, but fled when officers approached in response to a telephone alarm.

The gang cut telephone wires at North Fairfield. At Cygnet a similar plan was followed, but the gunmen failed to sever one wire, which left an outlet for the alarm. At Adelphi they succeeded in cutting off all communication lines. Estimates of the number in the band vary from six to 15.

Sedalia Student Hurt in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 15.—Wilson J. Ferguson of Sedalia, Mo., Dartmouth College senior, and Miss Frances Corwin of Winchester, Mass., student at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N. She suffered an injured ankle, and Ferguson a fractured bone in the leg and cuts.

NEGRO COMMUNIST'S WHITE WIFE IS HELD

Mrs. Jane Newton, Daughter of Banker, to Be Examined by Psychiatrist.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Jane Emery Newton, one-time University of Michigan student, and daughter of John G. Emery, former national commander of the American Legion, tonight sat in a police cell, awaiting a psychiatric examination.

Since she received her degree from the university and left the comfortable home of her father, a Grand Rapids (Mich.) banker, she has been married three times the last marriage to a Negro, has lived in Chicago's Bohemia and has become an agitator for the Communist party. She is 26 years old.

Monday she will appear for an examination in the office of Dr. David Rotman, municipal court psychiatrist. She was ordered there by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green, who learned of her background from Attorney Marvin J. Bas, a schoolmate, who recognized her in court.

The drably dressed woman was evicted from her home with her infant and her Negro husband, Herbert Newton, a Communist leader. Apparently unembarrassed by her situation, she puffed a cigarette as she discussed her marriage, at the city jail today. She said:

"I met my present husband in the spring of 1933 through our mutual interest in Communism. I've been disgusted with the Government of this country for a long time . My husband and I went to meetings together before our marriage. We were married Sept. 1, 1933, by a Negro minister here in Chicago, I don't know his name.

"We've been on relief since about the time the baby was born. That's why this eviction from our rooms is so absurd. Being on relief, our rent was provided for us. I attribute our trouble to race prejudice. My marriage cost me many of my friends. The baby, Michael, was born Nov. 30, 1933.

"Now that they've found out my respectable background, I'm to be given special consideration, a psyciatric examination and that sort of thing. I'm to be considered not quite in my right senses for my marriage and the Communistic principles I profess. Well, all right, if that's the way they look at it——."

A chance recognition by Attorney Marvin J. Bas, former schoolmate of the girl, disclosed her real identity in court. Judge Green postponed judgment on Mrs. Newton, who faced jail because of a violation of probation. When she and her family had been evicted by court order, fellow Communists moved their furniture back into the flat.

OPPONENT OF SENATOR CUTTING SAID TO HAVE LEGAL REMEDY

State Canvassing Board Asserts He Can Contest If Illegal Votes Were Cast.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 15.—An adequate remedy, through a contest in the courts, is available to Congressman Dennis Chavez if any illegal votes were cast in his contest with United States Senator Bronson Cutting, the New Mexico State Canvassing Board asserted today.

The board's statement was filed with the State Supreme Court which, on Chavez' petition, had issued an order to the board to show cause why the official vote in last month's senatorial contest should be certified. The vote gives Cutting, Republican independent, a majority of about 1300 votes over Chavez, Democrat.

The case will be argued Dec. 21.

STALINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Dec. 15.—Former Prince Machizariani and two associates were sentenced to death today by a special collegium of the provincial court here on a charge of stealing socialist property valued at 200,000 rubles.

The thefts were said to have been accomplished through inducing railway employes to falsify bill of lading.

Real Estate REAL ESTATE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SECTION For Sales

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 16, 1934. PAGES 1—18C

'White Way' Structure at Loop in University City Bought by Sydney Real Estate Company.

Completion of a deal by Henry R. Weisels, president of the Henry R. Weisels Co., last week, was of a magnitude hardly equaled, and certainly not surpassed, on the St. Louis real estate market within the last five or six years. The value involved was not less than $200,000, and the transaction is looked upon as definite indication of revival of investment demand for properties in the immediate St. Louis area.

As reported by Weisels, the Delmar Garden Building, on the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Kingsland avenue, was sold to the Sydney Real Estate Co., for the Loop Building Corporation, represented by Thomas F. Stephens. It is understood that the purchasing interest is mainly centered in Sidney M. Schoenberg.

The Delmar Garden Building, so named because of its location on a part of the site of that former conspicuous institution, has a front of 95 feet on Delmar, 100 feet on Kingsland and 95 feet on Enright avenue. It is a modern four-story fireproof structure, attractive architecturally, the main hall being finished in marble, with floor of mosaic tile, and the corridor halls are carpeted throughout. It contains nine stores, 6687-93 Delmar, 610-12 Kingsland, and 6692-96 Enright. The upper floors are arranged in 36 apartments, each one of three-room efficiency. The equipment includes elevator, vacuum system of steam heat, electric refrigeration, gas ranges and in-a-dor beds. It is located at the apex of the white way that has attracted wide attention to University City, and its shopping district. There is also the advantage of a busy transfer point, being at the terminus of the Olive-Delmar and Creve Couer car lines and the United Service automobile system. Standing as a sort of sentinel at the gateway to the impressive residential district of University City, it has also, and directly opposite, the attractive grounds and buildings of the high and grade schools of that muncipality.

The Weisels Co., which has for a long while had the management of the building, will continue in that capacity for the new owner.

LARGE INDUSTRIAL SITE IN NORTH ST. LOUIS SOLD

The Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co. in conjunction with Arthur S. Martin & Son, report that during last week they closed the sale of 200x145 feet of industrial ground on the south side of Angelica street, east of Hall street, to the Stanley Rea Serum Co., now located at the foot of Chouteau avenue. Its business is the manufacture of serums and kindred products for live stock. The company has virtually completed plans for erection of a building on this site early next spring. The property is considered exceptionally advantageous for this company, being located opposite the Mississippi Valley Stock Yards, and also has railroad switching facilities. The transaction was negotiated by Arthur S. Martin & Son, representing the purchaser, and the Francis-Perry-Ruth Co. as representatives of the D. R. F. Co., the seller.

REMINGTON-RAND CO. LEASES NEW QUARTERS ON LOCUST ST.

The Remington-Rand Co. has taken a long-term lease on the second and third floors of the five-story building at the southwest corner of Tenth and Locust streets, being 315 North Tenth street. The company will occupy the new quarters about March 1, after completion of extensive alterations. Remington-Rand, dealing in general office equipment, has branch establishments in many of the large and small cities of the United States, and also in foreign countries. Its St. Louis establishment, for about 10 years, has been at 1113 Locust street. The lease was made for Elizabeth S. Delaney, the company being represented by the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co.

REALTY MEN PLAN STAG PARTY DURING HOLIDAY

The St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, "aided and abetted" by the broker's division of the same body, has announced what the "literature" terms a "holiday season stag, luncheon and frolic," to take place Thursday, Dec. 27, at 12:30 p. m., on the eleventh floor of the American Annex Hotel.

Further specifying, the announcement, distributed last week by Clarence E. Lang, executive secretary, says: "No speeches; good eats; fine entertainment; stacks of fun; invigorating refreshments; smokes. The kind of a party that takes out the 'pip' and puts 'pep' in you."

The ticket price is given at $1 flat, with no reserved seat, and none to be sold after Wednesday, Dec. 26. The box office is the Real Estate Exchange.

R. E. EQUITY CO. CLOSES 2 DEALS FOR $130,000

Initial Investments Include Waterman Ave. Apartment Building and University City Business Property.

As its initial investment, and one of two made last week, the recently formed Real Estate Equity Co. acquired a three-story apartment building at 5079 Waterman avenue, the other being a two-story business structure at the northwest corner of Pershing avenue and Jackson boulevard in University City. The total outlay as reported was $130,000. Both properties were acquired from the Farm & Home Savings & Loan Association, in liquidation of its real estate holdings.

The Waterman avenue building has thirty 3, 4 and 5-room efficiency apartments, equipped with modern conveniences, including electric refrigeration and occupies a lot 63x200 feet. The announced price of the realty was $75,000, of which $25,000 was paid in cash. A mortgage for $50,000, bearing interest of 5½ per cent and maturing in five years, was executed for the remainder of the purchase price. The mortgage contains no pay-off provisions. The building is 100 per cent rented. At the price at which the property was acquired, the minimum income on the equity was 14 per cent during what is termed the "worst" twelve months of the last three years, and now is currently around 23 per cent, according to an official of the Real Estate Equity Co. The original cost of the building, including the site, valued at $12,000, was $158,000, more than twice the amount involved in the present transaction.

The University City building comprises four stores and five apartments. The lot has 92 feet 5 inches on Jackson boulevard and 102 feet on Pershing. Rental returns are sufficient, after all charges, to permit a return on the equity of approximately 24 per cent, it was stated. The reported purchase price was $55,000, of which $14,500 was cash, the balance being covered by a mortgage for $40,500.

Business holdings in this section of University City are under restrictions.

Franciscus-Meginn, Inc., the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. and the August H. Gerling Realty Co. participated in the negotiations involving both properties. Management of both has been placed with Franciscus-Maginn, Inc., as exclusive rental agent for the Real Estate Equity Co.

Capitalized for $100,000, the Real Estate Equity Co. was organized to deal in equities in properties in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

BETTER HOUSING PLEDGES CROSS $8,000,000 MARK

Total Secured Last Week by Field Force Announced at $903,501—Houses in Contract Soon to Be in Place on Plaza.

The Better Housing Campaign being conducted in St. Louis and St. Louis County by the Federal Housing Administration, in co-operation with the St. Louis and St. Louis County Chambers of Commerce, passed the $8,000,000 mark last week, when pledges to make expenditures aggregating $903,501 for repairs, alterations and modernization were received from property owners.

A minimum goal of $10,000,000 in expenditures for improvements had been fixed for the campaign, which will end officially on Jan. 31. Up to Thursday night, pledges to expend $8,174,419 for improvements had been received, and officials expressed the view that if the present ratio is maintained the minimum goal will be exceeded by the end of the month.

Up to Tuesday night, the field force of men and women contacting property owners, to encourage their participation in the campaign, had canvassed 147,462 of the 210,000 business and residential buildings in the city. Pledges to make expenditures were received from 25,350 of them. The pledges included a wide variety of jobs.

Officials of the campaign said yesterday it was expected that the way would be cleared this week for the removal of two old houses from Papin street to the Municipal Plaza, for the purpose of demonstrating the value of building modernization. One of the houses is to be repaired, remodeled and completely furnished and equipped, while the other will stand in its dilapidated condition to show the contrast between the two. The city donated the houses for the campaign, instead of wrecking them to make way for the new express highway. Various architectural, plumbing, heating and other groups, representing all building interests, have agreed unanimously to contribute services and materials for modernization of the one house without charge, and various stores have offered to furnish it as a model home. Only the question of moving the houses remains to be settled.

INDUSTRIAL BOND INDEX LEVEL BEST SINCE 1931

Stock Prices Back Away From Their Recent Tops During Week — Trading Slackens Somewhat.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Stock prices backed away from their recent tops this week while waiting for a clearer view of 1935 prospects, but industrial bonds pushed up to new highs for the recovery.

Trading slackened somewhat, and save for a brisk flurry or two, selling in stocks was in modest volume. The market had a good cushion in the week's business news, which included a rise in steel production to the best level since June, sharp gains in retail trade, and a jump in freight movement above 1933 levels for the first time in weeks.

Some brokerage quarters were inclined to attribute the sag in stocks to greater activity on the part of the securities and exchange commission's market watchers. Some professional traders were rumored to have pulled in their lines. But about all that could be learned definitely, however, was that the commission's investigators are active, and Wall street is more convinced than-ever that when the commission said, in effect, "no monkey business," it meant it. Many quarters in Wall street say the commission is doing a constructive job.

The week's turnover in shares in the Stock Exchange declined to 5,309,227 from the previous week's total of 6,232,451. The Standard Statistics Co.'s price index of 90 stocks dipped 2.1 points to 72.6, which is 3.3 points under the autumn peak reached the previous week.

Bond Market Mixed.

The bond market was mixed, with gilt-edged issues generally steady to firm. Standard Statistics Co.'s. price index of 20 representative industrial issues rose 0.4 to 85.7, a new high since March of 1931, but the index of 20 rails dipped 0.6 to 83.4 and the index of 20 utilities barely held steady, closing at 89.0, off 0.1.

The railroad bond market was a little confused by remarks of Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, who said in an address in New York that roads that must be reorganized must not put it off too long, and that the Government cannot indefinitely carry the burden for roads that cannot earn their interest charges. On the other hand, he added that if Congress extends the life of the RFC it will continue to lend to any railroads that can put up suitable collateral.

The commodity markets were mixed. Grains reacted from their peaks of the past fortnight. Wheat registered losses for the week of 1⅜ to 2⅛ cents a bushel, and corn of 1 to 1¼ cent a bushel. Cotton, however, showed gains of 25 cents to $1 a bale, and more distant deliveries rose rather briskly in response to the heavy vote in favor of continued crop restriction polled in the referendum of cotton growers.

Week-End Market in Rut.

Varying trade current swayed a few stocks at week-end session, while the market generally stayed in a rut. Tape-watchers detected a better tone to the share list. On the surface, however, average final prices showed little change.

Typical week-end peace prevailed in most markets. Turnover in the Stock Exchange totaled 464,060 shares, compared with 458,740 last Saturday, but much of it was in a handful of issues, notably Radio common. With traders marking time awaiting political and business developments, the bond market merely held its ground and leading commodities fluctuated uncertainly within narrow limits.

Some fair-sized selling orders in Radio, coincident with persistent buying of senior shares, lent color to rumors. As to plans for meeting dividend arrears, the common closed off ½ of a point at 5, while both the A and the B ended more than a point higher, the former touching a new top for the year above 55.

Wilson & Co. shares rallied a little after their fall in the preceding session on disclosure of the company's recapitalization proposals.

Mining shares expanded previous gains moderately for no obvious reason in the day's news. Gains of fractions to more than a point were recorded in Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Dome Mines, Howe Sound and U. S. Smelting.

Eastman Kodak and Liggett & Myers B, two outstanding issues on the recent advance, each yielded 2 points. Hudson & Manhattan preferred also dropped 2.

Some Wide Gains.

Gains ranging up to 4 points were recorded by an assortment of preferred stocks in thin trading. General Motors, U. S. Steel, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, General Electric and other pivotal issues reflected the better tone of the market, most of them finishing a shade higher.

Du Pont slipped a fraction.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks worked out at 72.6, up two-tenths of a point.

Leading utility issues were virtually stationary. Rails also were inert. Some low-priced merchandise issues, including McCrory, were benefited by the retail trade news.

Wall street's information from some steel centers suggested more gains for that industry. But the progress of heavy industry as a whole left much to be desired and little enthusiasm was manifest for stocks representing the major suppliers of capital goods.

Sterling finished with a gain of ¼ of a cent at $4.95 and the French franc was up .00¼ of a cent at 6.59½ cents. Belgian Belgas, Holland Guilders and Swiss francs held an advance of .01 of a cent each at 23.38 cents, 67.63 cents and 32.39 cents, respectively. Canadian dollars firmed 1-16 of a cent at 101.09⅜ cents.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: Radio Corporation, 64,500, 5, down ½; Radio preferred B, 15,600, 44⅞, up 1⅜; General Motors, 13,500, 31¼, up ¼; Minn. Mol. Imp., 6700, 4½, up ⅜ ½ Radio Keith, 6400, 2⅛, up ⅛; Cerro de Pasco, 5500, 43, up 1¼; du Pont de Nemours, 5400, 92⅞, down ½; City Stores, 5200, 1, down ⅛; Chrysler, 5100, 38⅝, up ⅝; Wilson A, 5100, 28¾, up ⅛; Baldwin Locomotive, 5000, 5¾, up ⅝; United Stores A, 4500, 7⅝, down ⅛; Loew's, 4400, 35½, up ½; American Woolen preferred, 4400, 43, up 2, and McCrory Stores, 4100, 9¼, up ¼.

Special 3 Pct. Dividend.

Cass Bank and Trust Co. has declared a special dividend of 3 per cent, amounting to $9000, on the 3000 shares outstanding, payable Dec. 24 to stockholders of record Dec. 20.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Raw sugar was quiet today, but it developed that late yesterday a local refiner bought 25,500 bags of Cubas for January use at 2.60, a decline of 3 points. The same refiner obtained some Cubas from store, said to be about 21,000 bags at 3.08½. Today there was further buying interest for January processing at 2.60, but holders were asking 2.63.

In futures price movements were narrow and confined to a range of 1 point with the market closing 3 points lower on the spot month and 1 point lower on all other active positions. Sales 3550 tons.

Announcement that trading in the spot month until further notice would consist only of liquidation of old accounts following yesterday's decision by the board of managers requesting every clearing house member who has an open position in sugar in December 1934 contracts to appear before it on Monday, had no apparent effect in the spot month which sold at 1.90 or unchanged.

Later deliveries eased a point under liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections.

Spot Dec. was 1.87 bid at the close and offered at 1.90, with March at 1.78, July 1.85 and Sept. 1.89.

COTTON CHANGES SMALL AND IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The prospects for continuance of the Bankhead Control Act next year and relatively firm Liverpool Cables, were reflected by advances in cotton in the early trading today. Realizing and Southern selling caused reactions and the market closed steady, at net declines of 2 points on January and October, while other months were unchanged to 3 points higher.

The opening was 2 to 7 points higher in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and reports that farmers yesterday were voting 10 to 1 in favor of continuing the Bankhead Act during 1935. Profit taking was prompted by an advance of 6 to 9 points and prices reacted after the more urgent demand had been supplied with later fluctuations rather irregular. The relatively easy tone of January was attributed to liquidation partly from abroad, while yesterday's reduction in the October discount evidently attracted some selling of that position and readjustment of switches.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 115,000 bales against 107,000 last year.

Spot steady; middling 12.80.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 15.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 12.40c, unchanged from yesterday. Sales amounted to 5655 bales.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—Spot cotton closed steady, five points down. Sales, 796; low middling, 12.12; middling, 12.77; good middling, 13.22; receipts, 4037; stock, 734,888.

FOREIGN NEWS IS BEARISH; GRAIN FUTURES LOWER

Losses for the day were recorded by wheat and corn on domestic exchanges despite an upturn at one period. Foreign news exerted bearish influence.

Locally wheat was nominally inclined in direction of that grain at Chicago.

Liverpool closed ¼@⅜d higher, after ⅛d higher opening.

Winnipeg opened unchanged and closed ⅛@⅜ lower, after selling fractionally higher early.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—An end-of-the-week selling flurry late today much more than wiped out price gains scored earlier both by wheat and corn.

Wheat fell 1½ cents from the day's top, and landed abruptly at the day's bottom. Profit-taking sales for holders caught the speculative pits, minus any aggressive buying support in the final minutes, with some notice being taken that for the second time in 48 hours a new low price record for the season had been reached in the Rotterdam wheat market today.

Wheat in Chicago closed weak at about the day's low point, ¾-1⅛c under yesterday's finish, May 100⅞@101, corn ½-¾ down, May, 86⅝@¾, oats ⅜-⅝ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to 5 cents advance.

A tendency to sag showed itself at the outset in the Chicago wheat market owing to the fact that Liverpool quotations reflected only in part yesterday's rise this side of the Atlantic. However enlarged speculative buying here developed on early price setbacks, and led to moderate advances in each of the leading cereals, with some notice taken of word of frost in Buenos Aires province, one of the largest grain producing districts of Argentina. Temporarily, too, in absence of any material selling pressure in Chicago was an incentive to buy.

It was further pointed out that premiums for domestic cash wheat were strong, with disappearance of wheat into consumer channels continuing and with reports suggesting that feed use of wheat had increased. Friends of higher prices emphasized also that wheat futures last years experienced further wide swings during the holiday period when a number of influences were somewhat similar to those in evidence now.

On the other hand, a bearish factor was announcement that 10 boats were being loaded in Argentina with heavy grain and oats for shipments to the United States.

Unfavorable weather prevailing in the domestic corn belt served as only a transient stimulus to buyers of corn. December oats, wanted by shorts, advanced to within ½ cent of the highest level of the season, but the oats market gave way at the last with corn and wheat.

Provisions were easy, responsive to a downward slant of the hog market.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 15.—In the local cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Supply was somewhat smaller and consisted of lower grades mainly, for which the demand was just fair. There appeared to be some inquiry for choice straight grade wheat, but the selection was limited. Hard wheat was nominally 1¼@1¾c lower. There were no offerings. Inquiry was fair. At the close No. 2 was figured at about $1.07½@1.08. Corn was unchanged. Offerings were light, but the demand was slow, and it was not until near the close that any transactions were made. Feeders and an elevator bought. Oats were nominally unchanged. There were no offerings. No. 3 white was figured at 58c.

SUSPENDS TRADING IN DECEMBER SUGAR

Short Interest Estimated at 35,000 Tons With Warehouse Supplies 8000 Tons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Suspension of trading in December, 1934, contracts in sugar was announced today by the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange. The action was taken "in view of the emergency arising from the possible shortage of sugar available for delivery."

The suspension, which will be in effect "until further notice," applies to all trading except liquidation of contracts made prior to today.

For several weeks the sugar trade has been wondering what steps would be taken to avert a threatened "squeeze" in the contract about to expire in view of the estimated short interest of 35,000 tons against a warehouse supply of only about 8000 tons.

Most of the short position is said to have been taken several months ago in hedging operations by traders who expected to deliver actual sugar this month, but later found themselves unable to meet the contracts owing to the Cuban minimum price and refiners' agreements.

American sugar refiners are pledged not to deliver any sugar here at a price below the official minimum of 2.18½ cents a pound established by Cuba, and Cuba in turn is bound not to sell any sugar here below that price.

The agreements will terminate at the end of the year when several hundred thousand tons of sugar will be available against the 1935 quotas of the Philippines, Cuba and Puerto Rico from stores already assembled here under bond.

With the price of December sugar at about 1.90 cents a pound, an advance of more than ¼ cent might occur, it was said today, before the shorts would be able to obtain any sugars for delivery against their outstanding contracts.

Large Mining Dividends

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 15.—Higher metals prices, particularly for silver, brought increased wealth to owners of mines in North Idaho and British Columbia in 1934.

An unofficial tabulation of dividends paid by the leading producers in these two regions showed today that stockholders in Idaho mines were paid nearly three times as much in dividends this year as compared with last, and holders of stock in British Columbia mines nearly twice as much in dividends paid to date.

The Sunshine Mining Co., operating one of the largest silver properties in the world near Kellogg, Idaho, was responsible for the great increase in dividends for the North Idaho region. This mine paid $1,200,000 in 1934. This was three times the amount paid last year.

The Hecla company increased its 1934 dividends to $400,000 in 1934, compared with $100,000 last year.

The Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. was responsible for an increase in dividends of British Columbia properties. This company paid $1,827,759 in 1934, compared with $949,044 last year.

INDUSTRIAL BOND INDEX AT YEAR'S HIGH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The bond market jogged through today's brief session without getting anywhere in particular.

Prime investment issues maintained a steady to firm tone despite the fact that banks and private subscribers had to pay some $1,000,000,000 into the Treasury for the new Government bonds and notes.

Some other loans, as in recent dealings, were somewhat erratic, but, except in scattered instances, no great pressure was noticeable in these departments, a few utilities improved and the industrial composite edged up to another new top for the year. Losses and gains in the rail division were rather evenly divided.

Transfers amounted to about the same as last Saturday. They totaled $5,869,000, par value, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged at 86. On the week this average was off one-tenth of a point. The industrial average showed a net gain of four-tenths of a point, that for the rails was off six-tenths and the utilities eased one-tenth.

Among the few gainers today of 1 to 2 or more points were Tennessee Copper 6s at 86⅛, Alleghany Corp. 5s at 63, Central Illinois Electric & Gas 5s at 68¼, Erie convertible 4s at 77, General Cable 5½s at 87⅜, International Great Northern first 6s at 31, Keith Corp. 6s at 67, Morris & Essex 4½s at 93 and New Jersey Power 4½s at 93.

At the same time Warren Bros. 6s dropped 3½ points to a new 1934 low at 30. Other losers of a point or so included New Haven 3½s at 35¼, Mead Corp. 6s at 78½ and Denver & Rio Grande 5s at 20.

U. S. Government securities were dull and slightly mixed. The new 3⅛s of 1949-52 appeared on the list for the first time. They were relatively active between 101.5 and the closing price of 101.7.

In the foreign group advances of fractions to more than a point were recorded by obligations of Argentina, Carlsbad, North German Lloyd, Norway, Prague and Rumania.

SCATTERED IMPROVEMENT ON THE CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Scattered improvement, largely in specialties, occurred on the curb market today. Dealings were fairly large for a two-hour session. Leading utility, oil and metal issues were narrow.

The list was steady at the opening and prices shifted about within a fractional range throughout the trading period.

Transfers approximately 112,000 shares compared with 137,000 a week ago.

There is not a day, dear sister,
We do not think of you.

Sadly missed by EDWARD, ANNA and LETA MAY HUMMEL.

MIKUS-VERNERD—In memory of my dear husband and father, who died Dec. 19, 1932. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

RYAN, IVA—In loving memory of our darling mother, who passed away Dec. 14, 1933:

Surrounded by friends I am lonesome,
In the midst of my joy I am blue;
With a smile on my face I've a heartache,
Longing, dear mother, for you.

SURPRISES NEVER CEASE
This time it is a fairly new house with living room, open fireplace, sun parlor, dining room, kitchen, south bedroom and tile bath and staircase hall on first floor. Two bedrooms and ½ bath on second floor. Hardwood floors both floors and stairs. Automatic heat, garage in basement. Fireproof roof. Concrete street and curb. Located within 1½ blocks of transportation and school. Owner vacating Dec. 15 because $3500 straight mortgage matured last month and property owner unable to carry on. Believe for a buyer with $500 to $1000 down payment we could arrange for balance of indebtedness on property to run from three to 11 years.
The purchaser of our last "surprise" was immediately offered a nice profit from another prospect we showed the property to the day before. We recommend this property as a first-class residence for a buyer with cash or with income of $200 per month or more. This owner also might sell at a price where you too would shortly be offered a profit.
For Sunday inspection or further information leave telephone number at REpublic 0776 and you will be called back promptly.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The small farm home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

By Lloyd A. McMaster.

Sportsman's Park is the place: two o'clock this afternoon is the time, and the game for the Missouri professional football championship between the St. Louis Gunners of the National League and the Kansas City (formerly St. Louis) Blues of the American League, is the big show. It's been talked up as the best gridiron card this city ever heard of and it will be the last chance for lovers of the game to see either team in action this season, according to present plans of the respective managements.

The Gunners, coached by Chile Walsh, formerly of St. Louis University, will be giving away four pounds per man, according to announced weights. The Blues will have a weight advantage in the front line, but will be slightly lighter in the backfield. John (Choppy) Rhodes is coach of the Blues, and the record of his team is seven victories and one tie in American League games, three exhibition victories, including one over the Cincinnati team of the National League, before it was taken over by the Gunners, and a single defeat—by the Chicago Cardinals of the National.

Comparative scores and point totals mean nothing, because the clubs were playing in different fields.

Aerial Attack Likely.

The game figures to be a test of an aerial attack by the Gunners, with Arnold Herber from Green Bay and Charley McLaughlin doing the passing, augmented by Swede Johnston's plunging, against a mixed offensive by the Blues, featuring the running of George Grosvenor, quarterback, and Tony Kaska, fullback.

It is expected that Dick Frahm and John Breidenstein, two backfield men of the Blues, who formerly played with the Gunners, will be putting forth extra efforts to stand out on the side opposite from their one-time mates.

Four months ago the Blues, with St. Louis backing and under the managership of J. W. (Bud) Yates, came to light with an announcement that they would be in the field, as a member of the American League, a new organization composed mainly of Southern cities. The Gunners' with three years' in-

BROWNS TO PLAY CARDS SIX-GAME SPRING SERIES

It begins to look like old times, with the Browns and Cardinals scheduling a six-game series next spring. Time was when the two clubs, neither of them then "in the money," played seven games in the merry old springtime. Then, the depression even hit the spring series, and it was cut to two games, which, as a series, was seldom decisive.

According to present plans, as announced last night by L. C. McEvoy, vice-president of the Browns, games are scheduled on the Saturday and Sunday and the following Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, before the opening of the major league season in April.

It was 13 years ago that the last seven-game spring series between the two teams was played. The following year, two games were played by the two clubs in New Orleans and two in St. Louis. Since 1923, and beginning that year, the clubs met twice, both games being played in St. Louis up to last spring when five games were scheduled but only being called off because of cold weather. Each team won two games.

Summary—Score at end of half: Westminster 20, Washington 14.

Official—R. E. Orr (Iowa State).

By Harold Tuthill

Washington University's ex-footballers learned that it takes longer than five days to switch from a gridiron to a basketball floor, when the Bears dropped the opening game of the season to a swift Westminster five, 35 to 24, last night at the Field House. The attendance was estimated at 1000.

Just a week ago yesterday, eight of the nine Bears who saw action last night, finished their football campaign. The transition to the court game was too much for them to overcome and Westminster showed early that it was going to take advantage of the numerous Washington misplays. The Bluejays led at the half, 20 to 14.

The Bears showed a lot of promise, no mistake about that. They looked like the kind of a team that will start slowly and steadily improve, for with experienced men like Roy Martintoni and Charley Droke in the lineup, the Bears at times seemed as if they might click. However, there were too many simple errors, like missed set-ups, fumbles, no trailers and few follow-up shots, for the team to play with any co-ordination.

While Washington was having its troubles, the Bluejays jumped into a nice lead, scoring five points before Washington tallied any. Zeke Berryman, Westminster center, used his height with telling effect under the basket to shove in four field goals, which with his three free throws gave him high scoring honors on the Bluejay team.

Roy Martintoni, Washington forward, did what he could to salvage a close score out of the wreckage by pacing the Bears with 14 points. He was ably assisted by Droke, who paseed to Martintoni twice, for baskets. Droke's five points, Ozment's three and Hudgens' two accounted for all the other Washington points.

Notes of the Game.

It was victory No. 4 for Coach Eugene Kimbrell's Bluejay team. For once it is proper to call the Westminster team a "five," for that's all that played.

Coach Don White sent the injured Capt. Glenn Moller into the lineup

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Canada, Dec. 15.—An overtime period failed to break a 1-1 tie between the Montreal Canadiens and the St. Louis Eagles in a National Hockey League game here tonight before a crowd of 4000.

Carl Voss put the Eagles out in front when young George Mantha was serving a penalty for tripping n the second period. The Eagles had five men up the ice and in a wild scramble inside the Canadiens' defense Voss took a double pass from Glen Brydson and Sid Howe.

The Eagles put up a tough defense in the third period and it looked as if they had the Canadiens beaten until Joe Lamb took a minor penalty with about five minutes to go. The Canadiens were all up the ice. Wildor Larochelle slipped the puck to Armand Mondou and it was relayed to Aurel Joliat. The clever little Canadian left wing snapped a quick shot into the cords from 20 feet out, beating Beveridge easily.

They struggled through the overtime with no score. The Canadiens were carrying most of the attack until Tony Savage was banished with a minor penalty and they had to look to their defense in the face of a five-man St. Louis onslaught.

Bowman and Frew Unrelieved.

Scotty Bowman and Irvine Frew played an 80-minute game on the St. Louis defense and acquitted themselves very well indeed. With the Eagle forwards back-checking strenuously and Frew and Bowman tossing around stiff body-checks, the Canadiens' sharp-shooters had a hard time of it. Billy Beveridge gave an outstanding performance in the St. Louis nets, robbing the Red Shirts of many apparently sure goals when they came in on him five at a time after crashing past Frew and Bowman through sheer weight of numbers. Carl Voss and Sid Howe were stars on the St. Louis forward line.

Desse Roche, ex-St. Louis wing but now with Canadiens, faced his brother Earl Roche of Eagles in a league battle. Desse joined the Canadiens last Saturday night.

The Canadiens carried most the play for the first few minutes but got few shots at Beveridge. The Canadiens were passing smartly but the Frew-Bowman defense tossed them back repeatedly from the blue line. Lepine missed a shot from close in on a play with Wildor Larochelle, Joe Lamb and Jerry Shannon were stopped at the Canadiens' defense. Voss and Brydson staged a hot skirmish inside the Canadiens' blue line but Cude cleared the puck to a corner.

Frew and Joliat Penalized.

Gerry Carson turned a fast rush and rocked Beveridge after faking a pass to Crutchfield. Frew and Aurel Joliat were penalized for rough work along the boards. Shannon brought Cude to his knees with a trick shot from the left boards. Carson broke up a rush by Shannon and Lamb. Larochelle skated in and back-handed a shot at Beveridge. Joliat and Frew returned. Joliat stick-handled dizzily inside the St. Louis defense but Bowman cleared to a corner. Howe was beaten by Cude on a shot from close in. Sylvio Mantha got a minor for tripping and the Canadiens were a man short. The Eagles rushed the Canadiens defense five strong but the Canadiens' defense was too stiff for them and held them around the blue line. Mantha came back to even it up again. The Canadiens all raced up the ice in a grand assault but Beveridge turned them back. Desse Roche almost beat him on the next rush with a quick snipe shot.

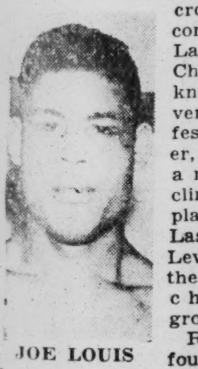
Climbing Fast.

FROM an almost unknown amateur to a world heavyweight championship factor in a year or less, is the remarkable progress made by the youthful Detroit Negro, Joe Louis.

Last March, Louis came to the national amateur championships here with a fine home-town reputation—and that was about all. But he won the light-heavyweight crown in convincing style. Last Friday, at Chicago, he knocked out a very clever professional fighter, Lee Ramage, and thereby climbed to a plane with Art Lasky and King Levinsky, two of the heavyweight challenger group.



JOE LOUIS

Ramage had fought both Lasky and Levinsky, and, while he was outpointed, they failed to stop him. Louis smeared Ramage to the point of helplessness in eight rounds.

Despite his showing, it is very unlikely that he will take precedence over Lasky and Levinsky in the race for a title fight with Max Baer. But that he is destined for far greater things than either seems reasonable to believe.

He's Only 20 Years Old.

LOUIS is not yet of age. In his fights he has shown both boxing skill and poise. In his appearances here for the amateur title he injured one of his hands. That made no difference to Joe—he won with the other.

He can hit hard with either fist and he seems to have all that it takes to make a real championship factor, including an instinctive knowledge of what to do.

For his engagement with Ramage, Louis weighed 194½ pounds. In nine months he has gained almost 20 pounds. In the course of the next year, as he reaches maturity and full strength, he should scale at least 200 pounds in condition—enough to make him a formidable match for the best.

He may be the answer to the boxing promoter's prayer for a

No Beer After Today for German Olympic Athletes

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.

FIVE thousand German men and women candidates for the 1936 Olympic games here will pronounce in a solemn ceremony tomorrow the following oath:

"I renounce all the joys of life (no smoking, no beer, no night lift) for the time of training—It will be my duty to educate and strengthen my courage and my body and devote myself completely to the great task of being worthy of competing for my Fatherland."

It was noted as significant that the athletes will not pledge unconditional fidelity to Hitler, but to the Reich sports leader, Von Pschamerosten and his subleader.

A nation-wide radio hookup will transmit the ceremony from the Charlottenburg Opera House. with the athletic candidates assembled at various places in the country. Three hundred Berlin candidates will take the oath in unison, followed by echoes from various corners of the land.

Louisiana State Trails, 13-0, Then Beats Oregon, 14-13

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 15.—Snapping back with scoring thrusts after being outclassed for nearly half the game, Louisiana State University's gridmen overcame a two-touchdown lead today to shade Oregon, 14 to 13.

The accurate extra-point kicking of Ernie Seago, plus an Oregon decision that put misjudged faith in a pass instead of a kick for conversion, directly accounted for Louisiana's triumph.

From the first play until the middle of the second quarter the Louisianans were subjected to a power battering and a dazzling air attack that made them look bad.

Oregon's Early Lead.

Oregon's emerald-jerseyed warriors, playing smart, fast football, and led by the dashing backs, Michek and Van Vliet, hammered and passed to touchdowns in the first and second periods to lead L. S. U., 13 to 0.

After their first touchdown, which came when Michek skidded around left end for three yards after an air bombardment and line smashes put the ball in striking range, the Webfeet tried to pass for the extra point instead of kicking. A pass by Van Vliet fell dead behind the goal.

Early in the second period, Van Vliet, as if to make up for the missed point, broke through left guard from the Louisiana 26-yard line and dodged State tacklers to the goal. This time Walker, substitute end, kicked the point.

Then Captain "Biff" Jones, State coach, after sending in his reserves, who kept the Oregonians at bay for a while, gave his first stringers some bench pointers and shot them back in. From then on it was a different game.

Mickal began zipping passes to Barrett, L. S. U. end and crack receiver, and worked the ball to the 4-yard line. From there Mickal slipped a flat one to Barrett over the goal. Seago converted.

With the gam end nearing, and with Mickal out, Fatherree tore around left end for 39 yards and a touchdown that knotted the count. Seago same through again with an extra point, and the game was won.

TIGERS NOT LIKELY TO WIN 1935 PENNANT, HORNSBY SAYS

"Cleveland Strongest Club in the League; Brownies Improved"

By J. Roy Stockton

Rogers Hornsby considers the Cleveland Indians the strongest club in the American League and he doesn't expect the Detroit Tigers to win the 1935 pennant. The manager of the Browns, back from the major league meetings at New York, yesterday discussed the prospects of his team and others in the circuit.

"Mind you, I don't say the Cleveland club is going to win the pennant," the Rajah explained. "But it is the strongest club in the league. It has a fine defense and the best hitting strength in the circuit. Besides that the pitching staff is about the best, so what else does it need? Pytlake didn't have a good year in 1934, but if he comes back next season, the Indians ought to win the pennant—if the strongest club ought to win."

Why didn't Hornsby expect the Tigers to repeat?

"Everybody had a good year for Mickey Cochrane," the Rajah explained. "That's what made it possible for the Tigers to win. If anything had happened to that infield, they couldn't have won. It was these infielders all clicking at once that gave Detroit the championship. And it ain't in the books for a club to have that kind of luck two years in succession.

Tigers Had Fine Spirit.

"But I will say for the Tigers that the team had the best spirit in the league. Mickey had them hustling all the time and that's another thing that won for them. With everything about even, it's the hustling team that wins. But Detroit should have help in a couple of places and better reserves."

How about the Red Sox? Tom Yawkey's money has added considerable strength to the Boston club since he entered the picture.

"They won't go anywhere," Hornsby replied. "Cronin is a good shortstop and the club will be all right on that side of the infield, but he hasn't got anything on the other side of the diamond and you have to have a good first baseman and a good second baseman to go anywhere important in a big league race. No, I don't see anything in Boston to frighten anybody.

"New York and Washington? They're on the down grade, that's why I don't expect the Yankees or Senators to win a pennant. Too many old players who are about ready to crack up. If all the old players click together a team made up that way can be hard to beat; but it's hard for players like that to travel at top speed all through a season."

With a hard road ahead for Detroit, Washington and New York not dangerous and the Red Sox still out of the contending class, it might be an open race for the 1935 pennant.

Fine Chance for "Dark Horse."

"Yes, indeed. It sure looks that way to me, said the Rajah without hesitation. "A great year for a team to add just a little strength and get into the thick of the race. Of course I'm not saying the Browns are going to do that. But we wouldn't need much help. We're in better shape now than we were at this time last year. Stronger in the outfield and we ought to have more hitting strength with Burnett available for infield work.

"This Bell, who led the Texas League in hitting, ought to help us in the outfield, too. In spite of averages I'm satisfied with my pitching. It's our strongest department. Clift and Strange will have the benefit of a year in the league and if Clift can learn not to try to guess up there at the plate, he'll be a good hitter. He has plenty of power. But he tried to guess and struck out more than anybody else in the league."

Hornsby expects to turn a trade or two, but is prepared to follow a watchful waiting policy. He gave his terms to the Red Sox, White Sox, Yankees and Tigers and figures that he will hear from a couple of managers before the spring training period ends.

"I have some players who would help other clubs more than they would the Browns," Hornsby pointed out. "In St. Louis we have to look ahead a couple of years. I'd be glad to take players who need development and take a chance on improving their hitting and fielding. And when the Red Sox and some of the others get around to June and see what they're trying to get along with, I'll hear from them."

New President for Browns?

Louis B. von Weise, president of the Browns, who recently moved his residence to New York for business reasons (ice business) will be in St. Louis in a few days for the annual meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis American League club.

It is understood that von Weise feels that he is too far away from headquarters to serve satisfactorily and will ask Bill Cady, son-in-law of the late Phil Ball, or L. C. McEvoy, to take over the presidency. While von Weise has not interfered or blocked any deals, the time element has been a handicap. When a baseball deal knocks at the door, delay can block it, so von Weise is smart in wanting to have the club president where he will be always available for consultation.

McEvoy, a capable baseball man, and highly regarded in big league circles, is the logical man for the presidency, but the directors may want to give the job to Cady for sentimental reasons.

Terry Ends Feud With Writers of N. Y. Baseball

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.

BILL TERRY, manager of the Giants, signed a peace pact with New York baseball writers today just before heading South to Memphis and his new 100-acre farm.

Terry called the scribes, with whom he has been feuding for years, around the luncheon table. Both sides laid their cards face up in two hours of grievance airing.

In the end Terry agreed that perhaps he has been ultra-independent, which condition developed largely because of his unfamiliarity with handicaps and conditions under which newspaper reporters and photographers labor.

When it was brought out that during the training trip to Miami last spring some of the reporters were not able to contact Terry for as long as two weeks at a time, Terry agreed to receive the press at least once a day during the forthcoming training jaunt.

Also he promised to ditch the edict which barred photographers from snapping the Giants at the Polo Grounds later than 1:30 p. m.

Sam Gray, a "Very Sick Man," Thinks He Can Make Comeback

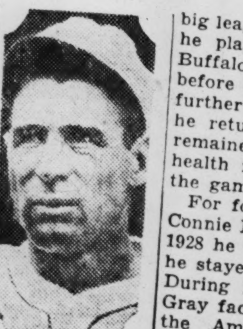
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Dec. 15.—Sammy Gray, who for more than a decade pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns, today lies in the U. S. Government Hospital here, gamely fighting for his health, loss of which forced him from baseball last year.

Gray, now 35, drew his release from the Browns in 1933 but was immediately signed by the Milwaukee club of the American Association though illness kept him from playing.

Today Gray is only a shadow of his former self. He weighed more than 180 pounds while in training, but illness has brought him down to 117 pounds. Despite his great loss of weight, however, he has never given up hope of returning to the mound and being back on the firing line for the Brewers next season.

Starting his professional career with Sherman, Texas, of the old Texas-Oklahoma League back in 1921, he wasn't long in reaching the big leagues. The first year, in fact, he played with both Detroit and Buffalo of the International league before being returned to Texas for further seasoning. The next year he returned to the big show and remained there until his failing health forced his retirement from the game he loved.



SAM GRAY

For four years Gray pitched for Connie Mack and his Athletics. In 1928 he went to the Browns where he stayed through the 1933 season. During his long and vivid career Gray faced the toughest batters in the American League including Ruth, Foxx, and Gehrig but of the three he dreaded the latter most.

"Big Lou never had a weakness that a pitcher could work on," Gray said.

"They can't keep me out of baseball even if I have to work out with Muskogee next year," the former big leaguer said. And the hospital officials only smiled for they knew the spring training season was a long way off and that Sammy was a very sick man.

"I'll Trade You Our Bat Boy for Dizzy Dean and Cash"

Hadley Leads High School Rifle League

Hadley scored its second victory and took sole possession of first place in the Greater St. Louis Rifle League, according to the standings released last night by R. C. Wilson, president of the league. The Vocation School defeated Christian Brothers, 681 to 571.

Burroughs entered a real upset when it handed Cleveland its first defeat, 683 to 679. The marksmanship of Charles Rice, who led Burroughs with 185, the highest individual score recorded so far this season, was the feature of the match.

Webster Groves won from University City, 655 to 650, and Beaumont defeated Western Military, 676 to 621.

SUBSTITUTION MADE IN LIGHTWEIGHT BOXING TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Madison Square Garden's plans for a lightweight elimination tournament were upset this afternoon when Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., who was to have boxed Sammy Fuller of Boston on Dec. 28, informed Promoter Jimmy Johnston he wanted a higher percentage of the purse. Ambers was rated by the New York State Athletic Commission this week as the leading contender for Barney Ross' crown.

"Ambers saw Fuller whip Eddie oCol last night and it looks as though he doesn't want to fight the Bostonian," said Johnson. "As a result we are throwing Ambers out of the tournament and replacing him with Harry Dublinsky of Chicago."

Dublinsky will fight Fuller Dec. 28 and Tony Canzoneri, former champion, meets Frankie Klick, San Francisco, on Jan. 11. The survivors then will clash for the right to engage Ross.

Eagles Play 1-1 Tie With Montreal Canadiens

slid a forward pass to George Mantha, who sped in fast from the left wing and upset Beveridge with a hard drive to his chest. Voss raced down the ice and let go with a fast, low shot which Cude kicked out smartly., Armand Mondou got two shots at Beveridge from a scramble inside the Eagles' blue line. Voss raced down and tossed a long one at Cude from the blue line. Joliat and Lepine started a scramble in front of Beveridge. Shannon skated in on the right wing, but overshot the net.

Desse Roche rushed with Jenkins and gave Beveridge a hot back-hand shot to handle. George Mantha went off with a minor for tripping. The Eagles rushed up the ice and started a scramble inside the Canadiens blue line. Voss scored from just inside the blue line, picking off the upper corner. Sid Howe and Glen Brydson drew assists on the play. George Mantha came back into the game and the Canadiens started pressing again. They put up a furious scramble in front of the St. Louis goal but Beveridge kept the puck out.

Eagles on Defense.

The Canadiens were putting up a steady offensive, rushing in five strong on the St. Louis defense and batting the puck around inside the Eagles' defense. The Eagles took to banging the puck down the ice. Shannon rushed but was checked by Jenkins. Lamb and Shannon went down together but their pass went wrong. Cude cleared smartly as Voss fired at him from the blue line. Bowman carried the puck and dropped a back pass to Howe. The shot was over the net. Pete Lepine got in close and Beveridge outguessed him with a smart save.

Sylvio Mantha bounced one off the St. Louis goal post at the start of the third period. Frew broke up a Canadien rush. The Canadiens were doing most of the rushing, attacking continuously in the hope of tying it up. The Eagles were back-checking relentlessly and Bowman-Frew defense body-checked the "Flying Frenchmen" around heavily. Joe Lamb broke quickly after grabbing a loose puck at the Canadiens' blue line, but Cude stepped out and cleared the shot with a cleverly-timed falling save. Lepine flashed a shot to the corner that almost had Beveridge beaten.

Candiens Tie Score.

The Canadiens kept up the pressure with their third line, Raymond, McGill and Crutchfield but had no luck at all, being held at the St. Louis blue line or in the corners. The Eagles were heaving the puck up the ice at every chance and it was dull hockey. The crowd started stamping and whistling for action. George Mantha wormed through to the edge of the crease but his shot glanced off Beveridge's pads. Voss nearly had another goal after a quick break-away with Howe. Brydson tested Cude with a dropping shot from center ice.

The Canadiens scrambled again in front of Beveridge, who had to stop a hard one from Jenkins. Lamb was penalized for holding and the Canadiens had a one-man advantage. The Canadiens put four forwards on the ice and Beveridge was kicking out shots from all sides. Finally Joliat tied it up with a shot from 20 feet out. Larochelle and Mondou drew assists for their part in the scramble that preceded the goal. Lamb came back into action and they played on even terms till the gong sent them into over time.

Canadiens kept hustling from the start of the overtime session but were thrown back on the defensive at times as the Eagles abandoned their defensive style anl started bombarding Cude. Shannon just missed the cage with a quick shot on Voss' rebound. A penalty to Savage for tripping left the Canadiens a man short and the Eagles sent five men to the attack. Cude saved smartly from Earl Roche, dropping on the puck to stop a dangerous scramble. He fell again to save from Brydson. Joliat led the Canadiens in stubborn defense that held Eagles off till Savage was back in the game.

Both teams were playing with caution that slowed up the play with long periods of poke-checking at center ice. The Canadiens scrambled again in front of Beveridge. Mondou fired a long one at Beveridge from center ice. Riley started another scramble and Finnigan dashed down alone but did not get a shot. They were struggling inside the Canadiens' defense when the whistle ended the game.

"Suicide," Says Zuppke of Plan To Open Offense

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 15.

COACH ROBERT ZUPPKE of Illinois today termed "suicide" suggestions to open up the offense of college football.

"Increasing the scoring by stressing the offense will not help the game," he said.

"Why are the professional teams and strive only toward showmanship? Add a fifth down, remove all the shackles from the forward pass and you coach your quarterback to play with one eye on the box office.

"The greatest games I ever saw were 0 to 0 ties or 3 to 0 scores. Give the offense more guns and the underdog will be whipped even more. You will annihilate the weaker teams. That would be suicidal."

Zuppke also offered the opinion that Minnesota's 1934 team could have beaten the Chicago Bears or the New York Giants every time they played.

FENENGA ELECTED OFFICER IN STATE COACHING GROUP

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 15. — Reaves Peters, of Northeast High, Kansas City, was elected president of the Missouri High School Athletic Coaches' Association, organized here today.

Other officers elected were: Bert Fenenga, of Cleveland High, St. Louis, vice-president, and C. E. Potter of St. James, secretary-treasurer.

Nine district presidents were elected as follows: Fenenga, Potter, Billy Lyons of Marshall, C. W. Thomas of St. Joseph, Harley Selvidge of Kansas City (Paseo High) Bob White of Lebanon, H. A. Bernard of Flat River, D. A. Pierce of Moberly and Fred Schwengle of Kirksville. District heads for St. Louis County and the Cape Girardeau area, yet unorganized, will be chosen later.

The 35 coaches attending the meeting, voted to study football rules of the National Collegiate Association and the National High School Federation to determine which should be adopted in Missouri, and to investigate and recommend changes in the present method of conducting the State High School Basketball tournament.

Suggestions to lower high hurdles from 42 to 39 inches, and to reduce the distance of low hurdles from 220 to 200 yards, spacing hurdles at 18 instead of 20 yards apart, were approved.

Frank Carideo, resigned head football coach at the University of Missouri, was voted a life membership.

SIDNEY WOOD IS RANKED AHEAD OF SHIELDS IN EASTERN TENNIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — Frank Shields' tennis stock, weakened by an unimpressive season this year took its first fall today as the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association, announcing its rankings for 1934, demoted the tall New Yorker to No. 2.

Shields' demotion in the Eastern rankings, which placed Sidney B. Wood Jr., of New York at the head of a list of 25 ranked players, is expected to be followed by a similar reduction in his standing in the National "first ten," which he topped last year. Nationally, it is generally figured that Shields will drop to third place.

The elevation of Wood to No. 1 vied for importance with the lift of Berkeley Bell, the erstwhile Texas Firebrand, from No. 6 to No. 3 and the dropping of Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., from No. 2 to No. 5. Bell staged a spectacular comeback on turf before Clifford Sutter in the national championship. Despite the defeat he was ranked a notch above Sutter.

Mangin, admittedly a better player on boards than on turf, even lost his grip on his indoor game, dropping the national championship to Lester R. Stoefen, and generally had an "off" season, partyl occasioned by an eye ailment.

The Eastern "first ten," announced by a committee of which W. M. Fischer is chairman, follows:

No. 1—Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York.
No. 2—Frank X. Shields, New York.
No. 3—Berkeley Bell, New York.
No. 4—Clifford Sutter, New York.
No. 5—Gregory S. Mangin, New York.
No. 6—J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J.
No. 7—Dr. Eugene McAuliff, Yonkers, N. Y.
No. 8—Edward W. Feibleman, New York.
No. 9—Leonard Hartman, New York.
No. 10—Frank J. Bowden, New York.

Sutter, a native of New Orleans, is a new addition to the Eastern lists. In 1932, as a representative of Tulane University, he won the intercollegiate championship and the following year he teamed with Dr. McCauliff to capture the national indoor doubles crown. In 1933 he was ranked fourth nationally and this year he made New York City his business residence.

Dorothy Andrus Tops Women.

Dorothy Andrus, the Stamford (Conn.) millionairess, deposed Baroness Maude Levi of New York as the foremost women's singles player. The first five ranked players in this division are: No. 1, Miss Andrus; No. 2, Baroness Levi; No. 3, Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, Short Hills, N. J.; No. 4, Norma Taubele, New York; No. 5, Grace Surber, New York.

John B. Behr was ranked the leading junior singles player and Helen Pederson was given a similar designation in the junior girls' division. Henry H. Daniels, 15, topped the boys' group.

SPORT SALAD

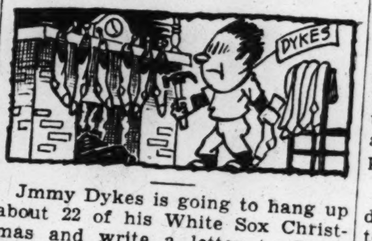
Once a Babe Always a Babe.

ROG HORNSBY on a winter's day,
In the lobby paused to say
That for the Browns he needed youth,
And that he'd like to have Babe Ruth.

Though Babe with Rogers may not sign
His name upon the datted line,
When he returns from where he went,
He'll thank him for the compliment.

Though not so young, they still regard
The Babe as quite a drawing card;
So by the Yanks he's been reserved,
Which indicates Ruth will be served.



Jmmy Dykes is going to hang up about 22 of his White Sox Christmas and write a letter to Santa Claus asking him to put pennant-winning ballplayers in them.

THE patron saint of little tykes might lend a hand to Jimmy Dykes,
And in his White Sox place a team
To realize a cherished dream.

If Temple wins that Sugar Bowl game, the boys will think they have earned their "T." And the Tulane boys may have the same thing in mind.

The International Boxing Union has recognized Max Baer as world heavyweight boxing champion. That's fine. Max is a great guy when you get to know him.

"Du Pont Firm Made $2,000,000 in War Investments."

Thar's gold in them thar wars.

We take it that the baseball fans of Boston would rather see "Rabbit" Maranville cutting his capers as usual at Braves Field than an electric bunny beating out a bunch of greyhounds.

Though Lyle Sage has been bent double since 1918, the fact that he conducts a successful tailoring and cleaning establishment indicates that he isn't broke.

Having signed Dizzy Dean to a 1935 contract, Sam Breadon has nothing to worry about except Dizzy Dean. Riding herd on Dizzy is a man's job.

Jimmy Londos, who defends his title three or four times a week, has been made to look like a slacker by Max Baer, who proposes to defend his twice in one night.

The two major leagues decided to make no change in the 1935 baseball. If any changes are made the manufacturers will make them and defy the cock-eyed world to prove it.

As usual, it will be the same old duel between the pitcher and batter to determine just how much rabbit there is in the ball.

It requires a ball with plenty of rubber in it to stretch outfield flies into home runs.

Ford Frick, who was inducted into office as president of the National League, got off on the right foot. He put it down on dog racing in ball parks.

Max Baer's proposal to defend his title twice in one night has much to recommend it. It would eliminate one training period, although he would have to train twice as hard.

BLUES AND GUNNERS PLAY TODAY FOR STATE PRO TITLE

dependent activity behind them, under changing management, immediately came forth with the declaration that they would go into the National League. They did, in time to play a league game on Nov. 11, and two other league engagements, as successor to the Cincinnati team.

The Blues at that time moved to Kansas City, and the fans wondered which was the better team, the while the managements engaged in no correspondence and exchanged no greetings. The Blues went on to win their league championship, and played a close game with the Chicago Cardinals, leading by 7—0 until within four minutes of the end of the game until that seeming bugaboo of pro football, the intercepted pass, gave the Cards two touchdowns and the decision. The Gunners won from Pittsburgh and lost to Detroit and Green Bay in National League encounters. They won again from the Pirates and lost to Brooklyn in exhibitions.

For this big game, Bobbie Cahn of Chicago, who referees National League games regularly, has been hired, and he will be assisted by two officials well known here—Glen Filley of McKendree and Archie Klein of Missouri.

The coaches of the two teams had a previous meeting. In 1932, Rhodes was coach at University of Wyoming, when that school played St. Louis U. here, the Billikens winning by 20 to 6.

Play will begin at 2 o'clock and it has been announced that there will be no broadcast.

SCOTT TO BE IN FLYERS' LINEUP AGAINST TULSA TONIGHT

ST. LOUIS CLUB CAN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE BY WINNING

ST. LOUIS.	Pos.	TULSA.
Murray	G.	Karakas
Carbol	L. D.	Halderson
Matte	R. D.	Headley
McPherson	C.	Des Jardinis
F. Paddon	L. W.	Wakeford
Teel	R. W.	Bailey

Spares, St. Louis—P. Palangio, T. Palangio, R. Paddon, DePaul, Radley, Scott. Tulsa—Hughes, Gilmour, Powley, Kucher, Chouinard, Wood.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Strengthened by the addition of Laurie Scott, center, obtained after the Duluth Club of the Central League threw up the sponge for the season, the St. Louis Flyers will tackle the Tulsa Oilers at the Winter Garden tonight.

As Tulsa defeated St. Paul, 3-2, last night, a victory for the Flyers would give them a tie for first place in the standing. Prior to Tulsa's victory the two clubs were tied for first.

Scott is familiar to St. Louis fans, having played here with various American Association teams for the past several years. He is an experienced and tricky player who should help the Flyers' offense considerably, because he will be a capable alternate for Coach Alex McPherson.

Last Sunday the Flyers defeated Tulsa here and as they play more games in the Winter Garden the Flyers should have an increasing edge over visiting teams because of the greater familiarity with the small ice surface and the rounded ends of the bank boards.

Harry "Yip" Radley, defense man, who has played two games with the St. Louis team, has proved a powerful defender with his bulk of 200 pounds and his hard shot.

The Flyers' club yesterday announced that Henry Matte, brother of Joe, and Bus Perrault, two amateurs, who had been here on trial, has been sent back to Canada for further seasoning.

Tulsa, with Vic des Jardins, veteran center, leading the attack, and Mike Karakas in goal, presents a very good team and one which, according to Des Jardins, is seriously handicapped on the limited area of the Winter Garden. Tulsa's fast forwards require plenty of space to pick up speed and play their passing game.

However, big, husky defense men are a considerable help here and Tulsa has two of them in Bob Hughes and Slim Halderson. Halderson, of course, is reaching the end of his career but Hughes, although slow, is, as St. Louis fans well know, a hard blocking player.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION AND CENTRAL LEAGUE IN MODIFIED COMBINE

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 15.—Announcement was made here today of an agreement between officials of the American Hockey Association and the Central Hockey League whereby in the compilation of standings the former would be known as the "Southern Division" and the latter as the "Northern Division."

Teams of both circuits engage in home-and-home games under an arrangement made last fall.

In making the announcement, William F. Grant, president of the American Association, said the agreement was entered into to clarify compilation of the standings of both circuits.

Some confusion has been voiced, he said, by fans and sports writers on how to score inter-league games in league standings.

Under the arrangement announced today, all games, whether inter-league or regularly scheduled league encounters, will be listed in the "won" and "lost" columns of both loops.

At the end of the season, Grant added, the first and second place teams in each league will engage in a playoff series of two out of three games. The league winners then will meet in an inter-league championship series, the winner to be decided on the basis of three out of five games.

The revised standings: (At close of last night's game-:

(American Association).

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	G.	OG.
Tulsa	5	2	0	10	12	8
St. Louis	4	3	1	8	15	16
Kansas City	3	6	0	6	10	12
Oklahoma City	2	6	1	4	15	24

DeMolay Stars Play Quads in Grid Game Today

An interleague championship football game will be played this afternoon, when the Quadrangular Club Quads face the De Molay All-Stars at 2 o'clock at Sisler's South Side Park, Kingshighway boulevard and Chippewa street.

The Quads won the title in the Greater St. Louis Football League, which performed at the Maplewood Athletic Park. They won five games and lost two. Instead of pitting the Carondelet Chapter team, De Molay League winners, against its rival, league officials decided upon the all-star team, which lists 25 players, and represents four of the five teams that battled for the title.

Coach Boise Potthoff, the former Washington University star gridder of years ago, who piloted the Harmony Chapter team to second place, was put in charge of the squad, and spent the entire week in sending the pigskin toters during series of formations. The Quads, composed of former college aces, likewise spent a busy week under the direction of H. D. Walsh.

Coach Potthoff will rely on the efforts of Earl Hahn, Charles Burgess, Bill Amelung and Courtland Schultz as his starting quarter of ball luggers. These four men were the chief touchdown makers for their squads during the regular season. Don Munch, former Illinois quarterback; Keith, St. Louis U.; Weingart, Washington, and Jacks, U. C. L. A., are slated to open up in the backfield for the Quads.

The probable lineups:

DE MOLAY.	Pos.	QUADS.

Hermanns and Strohs Begin World's Match-Game Bowling Title Match Here This Week

One of the outstanding team bowling matches in years will begin at the Rogers Recreation alleys, next Saturday, when the Hermann's of St. Louis, and Strohs Bohemians, of Detroit, meet in the first block of a match for the world match-game championship. CHICAGO BEARS TRIUMPH OVER PHILADELPHIA

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—Red Grange's advertised last gridiron gallop turned out to be just a romp for Bronko Nagurski and a couple of other Chicago Bear backfield men today as they punched out a 28 to 14 win over the Philadelphia Eagles in a post-season professional football struggle.

While the one-time galloping ghost of the Illini was ringing down the curtain on his playing career with a more-or-less drab performance, Nagurski led a four-touchdown parade in the first three quarters, after which the Bears proceeded to relax and give the local team a chance to make good in the closing minutes.

For the most part the contest resembled English rugby far more than the American powerhouse game, as each club presented an aerial attack—forward and lateral—that had the fans wondering where the ball was much of the time.

The game opened as a one-man show by the line-smashing Nagurski, but after the "Bronk" from Minnesota scored his two touchdowns in the early minutes, the power football for the day was ended.

Bernard Masterson, ex-Nebraskan, and Jack Manders, former Minnesotan, took up the torch there and tossed the pigskin all over the lot. One of these overheads, by Masterson, resulted in a touchdown as Lucke Johnson, former Northwestern wing great, took it and stepped over the line.

The final Bear touchdown came at the end of another of those dizzy forward-lateral-backward pass plays, with Bill Karr, an end from West Virginia, taking the ball from Masterson.

Swede Hanson, Temple's one-time fullback ace, led the Eagles' attack in the closing period. The first Philadelphia touchdown was tallied on a pass, Lackman to Joe Carter, former Southern Methodist end, and the second was a buck through the Bears' forward wall by Hanson. Both touchdowns were the result of intercepted Chicago passes.

MUNY SOCCER LEAGUE BEGINS SECOND HALF OF SCHEDULE TODAY

The Municipal Soccer League enters the second half of its program with a ninth round of games this afternoon. The first-half campaign was one of the closest in the history of the league in 23 years.

Eight rounds and 136 contests have been played and of these games 116, or 86 per cent of the total, have resulted in low scores. There have been 108 contests in which the score was either a tie or in which the margin of victory was by two goals or less.

All games which resulted in a margin of victory by three goals or better total only 28. When it is pointed out that six teams—the Russells, Leos, Happy Hollows, Loops, Belmontes and St. Edwards—have not scored a victory this season, have turned in only eight tie decisions, have counted but 20 goals while allowing the total of 124, the statement of a close season becomes increasingly evident.

There have been 83 shutouts recorded. Twelve have been scoreless ties, leaving 71 resulting in victories and of this number only 12 were as one-sided as 3-0. Fourteen were from this score to the season's record of 7-0.

Forty-five games, or one-third, were decided by one goal—29 by 1-0, 12 by 2-1, three by 3-2 and one by 4-3.

Only one game today will involve a first-place team against a second-position eleven—the Wellstons, undefeated, oppose the Balsanos, whipped only once, in the 2 o'clock opener of the Fairground Park No. 4 doubleheader.

WRAY'S COLUMN

fighter who can not only box, but hit hard—a natural fighter.

Louis' climb has been entirely different from that artificial build-up which young Buddy Baer is now being put through. Buddy is being fed a lot of pushovers. His record shows more knockouts than Primo Carnera's but what of it? They mean nothing.

Louis, since he turned professional, has been fighting opponents of increasing importance. In three previous bouts he knocked out Charley Massera, Stanley Poreda and Art Sykes.

In another year Louis probably will be the "logical contender" for the championship, if he isn't given too many tough assignments early in his development.

The Gunners-Blues Debate.

AMONG the great debates of history, please note the one which will reach a climax this afternoon on the gridiron at Sportsman's Park, where the Kansas City Blues and the St. Louis Gunners, pro football teams, will settle the discussion physically.

For the past week any one with forensic ambitions had only to declare that the Gunners—or perhaps the Blues—would win to get plenty of argument. Taverns and smoke shops have resounded with discussion of this subject. Proprietors had to send out for ear muffs.

The fact is no college game played in this city for some time has caused as much public interest as the clash of the professionals has developed.

That is partly because some promotional bitterness has developed and partly because each team has built up a considerable local following, although the "St. Louis Blues" took their franchise to Kansas City in mid-season, after the Gunners had joined the National League. While the present names of the teams indicate an intercity rivalry, the factional interest is strictly local.

In addition there is a league rivalry as between the National and the American Leagues. The Blues won the championship of their group while the Gunners won only two of the five National League games they played.

And so it remains a debatable question whether the champions of the American League are stronger than lowly placed Gunners of the National.

On the only available "form," the Blues are claiming an advantage, but it is of the hair-line type. It is arrived at through the Chicago Cardinals.

The Blues were barely nosed out by the Cardinals, in a game that had a last minute climax. On the other hand the Chicago Cardinals twice defeated the Green Bay Packers, who, in turn, defeated the Gunners.

It's a weak prop and if you are indiscreet enough to voice it in Gunner company before the game today, don't forget to duck. It's not a safe talking point in enemy country.

An Unpleasant Choice.

"HARVARD," quoth Eddie Casey in resigning from Harvard as head football coach, "will never have anything but a mediocre football team, unless it changes its present attitude."

This attitude, Casey explained, consisted of a perfectly legitimate belief that scholastic entrance standards should be high, that no subsequent scholastic concessions should be made because of athletic prowess and that financial inducements such as rebating tuition, bestowing scholarships, finding jobs, etc., are not ethical.

"Everybody knows," continued Casey, "that college football is attracting highly specialized players through inducements; but Harvard will not alter its position, and it is right in this. But it can't hope to compete with eligibility codes less severe."

Harvard is really on the spot, and those who determine its athletic policy have a difficult choice. In a collegiate world obsessed with a victory complex, a mediocre athletic standing seems humiliating to undergraduates. That makes for a defensive attitude on their part and eventually decreases enrollment.

On the other hand to compromise with the obviously honorable and correct viewpoint which Harvard is trying to live up to, is something the faculty can not see its way to do.

Converting the student body's attitude to coincide with the faculty viewpoint is one of the big jobs confronting the institution's heads. We have all seen with what faint enthusiasm the student bodies of various universities have received efforts at de-emphasis.

But, if Eddie Casey's view is correct, Harvard will carry on without scholarships or other bait, whether the Crimson team wins a football game or not.

However, in an institution with an enrollment as large as Harvard's there should be enough good football material available to produce a good team now and then, without the aid of the usual recruiting devices.

He Might Do It.

CHAMPION MAX BAER'S proposal to fight two challengers, Steve Hamas and Art Lasky, in the same ring the same night has caused a merely cynical lifting of the eye-brows.

"More clowning," was the observation usually heard.

But suppose Max really meant it and agreed to carry it out. The result would be a gate-crashing outpouring and one of the most novel shows in pugilistic annals. Defending the same world's championship twice the same night has never been attempted before.

But that's not saying it could not have been done. In fact there have been several occasions when a champion might have taken on his three leading rivals the same evening and been none the worse for it.

Jack Johnson, for example, could have whipped any three white hopes that might have been put before him, in 1911 or 1912. Also opponents for Jack Dempsey were so weak that between 1921 and 1926 he fought only twice.

But we are far from convinced that it would be a safe thing for Max Baer to meet both Lasky and Hamas in one ring, if the fights were to go as title bouts and extend for the title limit of 15 rounds each.

A Risky Proposal.

IF Lasky happened to be the first of the pair, Baer might be embarrassed. This Lasky is a fine strong, young fellow, only a trifle smaller than Baer, in great condition always and with a knowledge of how to protect himself. It is by no means a certainty that Baer would stop this fellow—and if he failed, then what would happen? A fifteen-round fight takes a lot out of an opponent; and then to have to come back against a fresh foe—well, it doesn't sound reasonable. In fact, Ancil Hoffman and Jack Dempsey should have their heads examined if they permit such a thing.

However, the money hasn't been pouring in to the Baer coffers as was expected. The exploitation of the champion was something of a flop. The fact that Max is now a come-on man for Brother Buddy's kale gathering tour seems to indicate that Max was a financial disappointment on his own barnstorming trip.

That being the case, Baer may really welcome a double-header title go, because of the sure rewards. But it is reasonable to believe Max first will take on Primo Carnera in a return bout, and then the double bill thus making sure of both jackpots.

Glove Work Starts In Post-Dispatch Boxing School

First glove work for the 800 and more boys enrolled in the Post-Dispatch's free boxing school for novices, will start tomorrow night at Mullanphy gymnasium, when the class convenes at 7 o'clock.

The 75 new sets the Post-Dispatch ordered for this season's class have not all arrived, but there will be enough gloves to go around at Mullanphy and by Tuesday, when the Concordia Center meets, the whole shipment will be available to the future Jack Dempseys.

Sherman Park, which also has its class on Monday, will not get its taste of glove work until Wednesday.

According to Ben Kessler, who with his three brothers—Harry, Sol and Irwin—is conducting the school, there have been very few withdrawals this year. The boys are sticking it out so as to receive the graduate medals which are given at the close of the schools.

Eliminations, which will begin in about three more lessons, will be worked in this manner:

Those boys who are eliminated will remain in the classes and continue the instructions; those who survive will be divided into five groups, depending upon where they live in the city, so that those boys who are in the Mullanphy district will represent that district, those near Sherman Park will be entered under that banner, and so on. Besides Mullanphy and Sherman, the other centers that will be represented are Concordia, Buder and Soulard.

All eliminations will be held at Sherman Park and then when the tournament progresses to the semi-final stage, it will be moved to the Arena where the championships will take place. Over 12,000 people were attracted to the Post-Dispatch boxing school's finals last January.

"7 Years Ahead" MOHAWK TIRES

TWO FOREIGN BRED HORSES IN FIELD; TOP ROW FAVORED AT 3-1

SAN MATEO, Cal., Dec. 15.—California will revive the color and turf pageantry that was traditional in another horse racing generation with the running tomorrow of the $25,000 Bay Meadows Handicap, the richest in the history of the State.

The one-mile and one-eighth feature, climaxing the first meeting of the New Bay Meadows track, will pit 12 outstanding thoroughbreds and America's greatest jockeys for a purse that nearly doubles the highest satkes offered during the Golden turf era from the '80s to 1909.

On the basis of a reasonably fast strip, Time Supply and Azucar, otherwise considered unlikely starters, were expected to be at the post. For the same reason Top Row, holder of the world's one-mile and one-sixteenth record, was restored to favoritism in the overnight odds.

Top Row, by Peanuts and out of Too High, cut one-fifth off the listed record for a mile and one-sixteenth a week ago with a clocking of 1:42. The former mark was set by "Dot" at Belmont Park in 1923.

Maurice Peters, leading jockey in the country this year, was slated to ride Top Row at 106 pounds and this combination found the A. A. Baroni three-year-old heading the field at odds of 3 to 1.

Faireno of the Belair Stud, assigned top weight of 124 pounds, and Time Supply, winner of the $25,000 Narragansett Special last October, were second choice favorites at 4 to 1. Time Supply had an impost of 123 pounds with Tommy Luther, who rode Top Row to the record, in the saddle. Willie Saunders was named to ride a horse with money earnings of $184,000 and a second place finish against Equipoise in the mud last month.

The F. M. Alger entry, Azucar, English bred, was assigned third nigh weight of 122 pounds with Georfe Woolf in the seat. The Western hope, Riskulus, drew 115 pounds with Don Meade as the rider.

Another foreign horse, Pillow Flight of New Zealand, was in at light weight with Jack Westrope, leading jockey of 1933, riding at 106 pounds. He was quoted at 30 to 1.

Entries for the Bay Meadows Handicap:

KARL HODGE RANKED NO. 1 IN DISTRICT TENNIS

By Davison Obear.

Karl H. Hodge, Triple A Club player, heads the men's singles ranking of the St. Louis District Tennis Association for 1934, according to the official list announced last night by Donald J. Beebe, chairman of the ranking committee. The members who served with Beebe were Dr. F. E. Diekneite and Monrose C. Lewis.

The ranking committee placed Wray Brown and Hodge at the top of the men's doubles ranking. A total of 19 players were named in the men's singles with five teams selected in the men's doubles.

Since coming to St. Louis from Kansas City in 1923, Hodge has steadily climbed the ranking ladder until he reached the top. He has been a player of first ten ability during the past six years and his winning of the St. Louis District men's singles title at the St. Louis Country Club last September earned him the No. 1 position.

Charles McMillin, former Cleveland High School star, and also a Triple A Club member, was ranked second in the men's singles list. He won the Clayton Open championship and was a finalist in the St. Louis County championship.

The No. 3 position was given to Robert Weinstock, former District junior titleholder, who has made rapid strides in the senior division. Weinstock won the St. Louis County and University City closed championships.

Gus Boehmer, former St. Louis University player, wh headed the district ranking last year, was placed No. 6 this year, being below Raymond Wiese and Herbert Weinstock, former Washington University tennis stars.

Brown and Hodge won the St. Louis District men's doubles championship and reached the finals of the Missouri Valley sectional doubles tournament at Washington University last June. Hodge appears again in second place with Herbert Weinstock as a partner. Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes, former District titleholders, were placed third.

The District rankings for juniors, boys and girls, have been announced previously. The rainy weather in September prevented the holding of the District women's event so that there is not likely to be any ranking this year.

Duck Season Nearing Close.

THE open season for migratory fowl will close next Sunday after a rather unsatisfactory season from the duck hunters' viewpoint. The week-end shooting, which prevailed for 10 weeks this year, under 1934 conditions, was not generally regarded as an improvement over recent years.

While the Federal duck stamp figures are not yet available for Missouri, it is now considered likely that duck shooting interested few more than 10,000 Missourians this year. Persons located on flight routes reported good shooting, when birds were concentrated; but with upland ponds and small lakes dry from last summer's drouth, a dwindling number of migrating birds were seen far from the main water courses.

With funds now being collected from the duck stamp of $1 from waterfowlers it is hoped by Missouri conservationists that the work of establishing breeding and resting areas within this state will get under way by next spring. Several locations in the state have already been examined by Federal agents.

One of the most recent sites looked at by U. S. Biological Survey officials is 25,000 acres on the Proctor Creek arm of the Lake of the Ozarks. Others, previously examined, are the Mingo Swamp and Little River tracks in Southeast Missouri and Squawk Creek bottoms in Northwest Missouri.

Missouri Wild Life Waning.

Speaking before a recent meeting of the Missouri Academy of Science at Columbia, Dr. Rudolf Bennitt, wild life technician for the National Park Service in Missouri, said "quite frankly, there is very little in the history of Missouri game to inspire optimism in the outlook for wild life in this state. At the same time, certain things are happening now which make many of us hope that there are better times ahead.

"There is actual danger that wild life, which is a normally self-perpetuating resource, will become so greatly diminished in numbers and variety that many of our most valuable and picturesque species will, in Missouri, go the way of the passenger pigeon, the badger and the black bear. Already the ruffed grouse and the otter are on the verge of extinction in this state (yet the otter is still legal fur in Missouri) and in the case of beaver only the importation of northern stock by the state has restored a few to the Ozarks."

Bennitt said that the only species that "come anywhere near to holding their own in Missouri" are rabbits, squirrels, foxes, skunk, opossum and quail.

Prairie chicken, deer, woodcock and wild turkey have been "fearfully" reduced in numbers, but may be slowly increasing, Bennitt said.

Racoon, mink, muskrat, civet and weasel are not only reduced in numbers but also seem to be decreasing still further, Bennitt believes.

Factors having important influence on the game condition in Missouri are increased killing, agricultural and lumbering operations, fire, legal difficulties obstructing adequate game management, and apathy on the part of the public, Bennitt reported.

"Save coverts of quail for next year's seed," pleads the State Game and Fish Department in its weekly bulletin. "Next year's shooting can be completely ruined by over shooting this season," the bulletin suggests, and urges that the quail covey should never be shot below six or eight birds.

Developing Ozark Lake.

Missouri's newest recreational area, the Lake of the Ozarks, is receiving considerable recognition from Washington in the national reconstruction programs. In addition to these Federal activities, other private interests and State work is going forward.

Among the things now under way or soon to be started in the Lake of the Ozarks region are a national regional recreation area of approximately 30,000 acres on the Glaize arm of the Lake of the Ozarks now being developed by the CCC, a proposed national park which has been recommended by the Missouri State Planning Board, a 50,000 acre wild life refuge, and a proposed scenic parkway around the lake. It is understood that the U. S. War Department expects to make channel markings on the lake next year to make navigation on the lake safer.

In the feature race, Sun Archer took the lead in the stretch and won by three lengths with Sand Baby second and Bahamas third. The time was 1:46 2-5 for the mile and 70 yards. Mutuel payments were: First, $4.40, $3.60 and and $2.40; second, $5.80 and $3.20, and third, $2.60.

The track was drying out well for tomorrow's $25,000 added handicap race.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15.—Florida's 92-day racing season opened today with the nerve-tingling thrill of a neck and neck finish as Philip Sanford's Candescent romped home winner in the first event at Tropical Park, before 10,000 spectators.

It was estimated $110,000 was bet on the seven races.

Sabula, owned by Fred Alger, Jr., stepped off a mile in 1:38 3-5 to win the Coral Gables Handicap feature event. He paid holders of a $2 ticket $6.20 for his whirlwind victory over C. J. Bild's Band Wagon.

Meanwhile, some 1500 horses awaited a placeon later cards in the Tropical meeting, scheduled to last until Jan. 16, then open again March 11 after nearby Hialeah Park concludes its season. The second part of the Tropical program is to end April 1.

Today's opening was two weeks ahead of previous years as the Gables Racing Association, headed by William Dwyer, gambled on the early tourist rush at Miami making the venture pay.

Candescent paid $5.80 on a $2 ticket to win. He tired at the end but was able to beat off the stretch drive of C. A. Hanson's Gallic.

ZELTMANS TO OPPOSE TOBINS AT SOCCER

Old King Winter Presides At the Bogey Club Dinner For Miss Nancy Mitchell

Red and Blue—Green Murals of Penguins, Reindeer, Wolves and Rabbits Transport Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell to the Arctic Regions.

KING WINTER, with a snowflake at his feet, presided with paternal majesty over Miss Nancy Mitchell and her young guests Friday night at the Bogey Club, and seemed not a whit embarrassed by the rising sun behind him, which threatened destruction to his icebound realm of penguins and reindeer and wind-swept colossi sounding the horn of plenty.

The red and electric blue-green of the murals in the west lounge of the club was repeated in the decorations of the two large U-shaped tables, one of which was set across the entrance hall in the east room. American Beauty roses and branched candelabra holding white tapers set off the floor-length tablecloths which were blue with white tasseled cords knotted against them.

In the east room and along the walls silver-white fir trees stood sentinel. Two tall baskets of roses adorned the stairway, which was made more festive by boughs of balsam secured to the balustrade. Half way up the stairs, a Hawaiian trio, in flaming orange leis, strummed all through dinner and until tables were cleared away and the orchestra struck up an invitation to the dance.

Christmas cheer in tangible form was dispensed over gold and black buffets at either end of the south porch, which had been enclosed especially for the party.

In the sunroom to the west of the main lounge, Miss Mitchell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell, entertained several of their friends, including Mr. and Mrs. William B. Jones, uncle and aunt of the debutante; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Atwood Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton G. Van Cleave, Mrs. Van Cleave's sister, Mrs. R. C. Wyland of Rawlins, Wyo., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Hawes. These guests were seated at a large round table decorated only by a simple centerpiece of red roses and tall white candles.

This dinner dance was not really Miss Mitchell's coming-out party. She made her formal debut Nov. 7 at a large reception which her parents gave at their home, 6 Windermere place. Friday night she received her friends again, standing with her father and mother before a background of calcimined evergreens and red roses.

Mrs. Mitchell was gowned in white taffeta made with bouffant skirt and tight-pointed bodice, the low decolletage of which was outlined in fresh gardenias. Miss Mitchell's robe de style was also of taffeta, striped in soft shades of rose, blue and gray. The voluminous skirt fell from a closely shirred bodice, unadorned except for the jeweled crown brooch which Miss Mitchell wore low at her neck—a symbol of the signal honor bestowed on her earlier this season by His Majesty the Veiled Prophet. Wristlets and a garland of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots in her hair were her only flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and their daughter extended greetings to more than a hundred guests, among whom were several of the older girls in addition to a limited group of debutantes and their beaux.

Before the evening party at the Bogey Club, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Carlisle Pangman entertained a group of the young people at their home, 4654 Pershing avenue, in honor of Miss Anne B. Woolsey, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ross A. Woolsey, 6350 Waterman avenue.

Coming Parties For Debutantes

Invitations will be issued soon for two parties for Miss Barbara Brodhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Hiemenz of Ladue lane will give a supper for Miss Brodhead Sunday night Jan. 13. A similar party for the debutante will be given by Mrs. Lawrence F. Miller, 4448 Maryland avenue, Sunday, Jan. 20.

Edwards of Grace Episcopal Church will read the service, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. John's Methodist, South. Miss Natalie Moffitt will be her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Mrs. Joseph W. Holliday of Kansas City, will be here with Mr. Holliday for the wedding.

The Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy will give its annual benefit ball Saturday, night, Feb. 9, in the Gold Room of Hotel Jefferson. Mrs. Bruce Elliott is the general chairman. The committee in charge met Monday at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Hay, 9 Windermere place.

ST. LOUIS GUEST FROM HEIDELBERG

MRS. E. M. GROSSMAN, 426 Lake avenue, and her daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Aletha Grossman, have as their guest Miss Annemarie Henle of Heidelberg, Germany. Miss Henle, who obtained the degree of doctor of philosophy at Heidelberg, has been doing post-graduate work in fine arts at Radcliffe College.

She is making a tour of the United States and Mexico. Thursday she attended a reception at the Park Plaza given by Reinhold Freytag, the German Consul, and his wife.

Now the 'Dawn Breakfast Dance' And Why Not? It May Be Answer To the Tired Debutante's Prayer

THE Leonard J. Wyeths of New York have decided to present their daughter, Priscilla, to society at a "dawn breakfast dance." This departure has a dual advantage—it may whet the jaded appetite of the younger beau monde and force them to arrive on time for "once in their dear, crowded, idle lives."

St. Louis hostesses might well pray for such an outcome. Just last week, one of the season's most feted debutantes, made obeisance to her hostess two hours after the time scheduled. At a dinner dance or a Sunday evening buffet supper such a failure of courtesy might be explainable if not excusable, but hardly at a breakfast, called for a late enough hour anyway.

At a recent dinner dance with the guests expected at 8:30, the hostess herself did not put in an appearance until well after 9. One guest had taken pains to be prompt. He had foresworn the breaking of bread with his family, had had no cocktail or collation. Now he will drink beforehand, he will dine handsomely with his family, he will even take a nap or perhaps see an early movie before he bothers to dress for all-night affair at a country club. So the next hostess suffers.

In such circumstances managers and servants grow restive. Extra assessments for every plate served more than half an hour late have been attempted but stirred up too many objections and were discontinued. No practical solution to the vexatious problem has been worked out.

ONE prominent hostess blames the persons entertaining. She feels that if guests were sufficient-

Debs to Share Honors At Week-End Parties

THE debutante's social calendar for the week-end includes two large parties and informal affairs, at which several of the buds share honors.

Last night Maj. and Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert entertained at the Saturday night dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club to honor Miss Blair Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Boyle, and Miss Adelaide and Miss Katherine Mahaffey, daughters of Birch Oliver Mahaffey.

The debutantes and their escorts were at one large table arranged in the private dining room to seat 65 guests. Maj. and Mrs. Lambert's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Henry Boehmer, entertained 14 guests and the host and hostess had 10 guests at their tables. The debutantes' table and the two smaller tables were decorated with clusters of pink roses and babys breath and lighted by ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

The following debutantes were present: Miss Roberta Pierce, Miss Frances Bates, Miss Alice Sullivan, Miss Mary Marshall Metcalfe, Miss Peggy Cabell, Miss Jane Wells, Miss Anne Frances, Miss Martha Ann Day, Miss Gladys McRee, Miss Jacqueline Busch Jones, Miss Helen Franklin, Miss Louise Primm, Miss Lois Burkham, Miss Florence Curry, Miss Louise Kennard, Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer, Miss Nancy Mitchell and Miss Gladys Turner. Miss Turner is the daughter of Mrs. William H. Walker of the Park Plaza.

MISS MIRIAM GRUNER (left) and her sister-in-law, MRS. JAY K. GRUNER JR., leaving the St. Louis Woman's Club where they celebrated their birthdays, and where Miss Gruner's engagement to Dr. J. Rogers Wellman was announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and Miss Turner arrived two weeks ago from Santa Barbara, Cal., where they have been living, to make their home in St. Louis.

YOUTH FIRST IN WHITE HOUSE HOLIDAY PLANS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15.

YOUTH will reign in the White House during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt will have a Christmas party and, as has been the custom in their household for many years, President Roosevelt will read Dickens' "Christmas Carol" to start the Yuletide observance.

Anna Roosevelt Dall and her two children, Sistie and Buzzie, who make their home at the White House, will be there. Franklin Jr., and John will join their parents for their school vacation and will have some of their friends with them. Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt and their small daughter, Sara, will come from their home in Boston Christmas night. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who live nearby in Leesburg, Va., with their young daughter, Ruth, will join the house party.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain two young groups. They will give a dance Saturday, Dec. 29, for Franklin and John in honor of Miss Barbara Cushing and Miss Jean Martineau, who will be White House guests for a few days. This party will include just friends of the two boys. Miss Martineau, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyral Martineau and for many years has lived abroad, is spending the winter with her parents in Tuxedo, N. Y. Mrs. Martineau is a cousin of President Roosevelt.

New Years' Eve, James and Betsy Roosevelt and Elliott and Ruth Roosevelt will give a small dance.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, and Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt, the President's half-sister, will arrive on Christmas night.

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, Sara Roosevelt, and baby Ruth Roosevelt are to have their own party the Friday after Christmas, Dec. 28, with Mrs. Dall as hostess.

It is the President and Mrs. Roosevelt's custom to go to church on Christmas Day and their yuletide celebration will end with their dinner party that evening.

The Roosevelts, who established precedent last year, will hold a reception either Christmas Eve or Christmas afternoon for the White House servants, chauffeurs, policemen attached to the executive mansion, and the members of their families.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt's Christmas dinner will be strictly a family party.

ly embarrassed a few times by their own tardiness they would soon learn to take seriously the now negligible line in the lower left, "Dinner at 8:30." But what mother of what debutante wants to raise the issue at the risk of undermining her daughter's popularity? Hostesses without eligible daughters may well afford to be independent; but how many even of them care to jeopardize the success of their first party in years to work a reform with the beaux and belles—especially if the party is being given as a kind of business venture in honor of some tycoon's niece? One hostess, famed for her insistence on the courtesy of promptness, is still remembered for seating her dinner guests within half an hour of the time set, to the embarrassment of late comers, but she could afford to be independent, for she has no daughters. This same arbiter never waits more than 15 minutes for guests in her own home because she owes more to those who come on time than to those who arrive late.

Is there really a reason for the inveterate tardiness? One more lenient hostess—she happens to have a debutante daughter this year—says "yes." The children have too many parties to go to, they cannot possibly arrive at any one on time.

Here is how the picture reads for the girls. The day begins with late luncheon, followed by a tea which keeps those assisting until 6 at least. Then home for a quick transformation and off across the city for cocktails. By the time the debutante and her escort reach their final appointment it is sure to be at least 9 o'clock. Perhaps an exchange of escorts in passing had to be manipulated. If the ultimate party is a ball, dinner, very late, at still another end of the city, intervenes to make the delay even longer.

For the men, the picture is as full of variety. Many of them must remain at their business until well after 5. The fatigue curve hits its low about that time and slows up dressing. For a young man who lives in the county and must call for a debutante in Westmoreland place and go to Brentmoor for cocktails, and exchange girls, and get to dinner in Ferguson, arriving at a ball before midnight is virtually impossible. Transportation facilities will not permit it.

BUT why must there be so many parties? ask the beleaguered hostess, the debutantes and the men on the list. Because St. Louis has too many aspiring socialites for the brief season. How is it humanly possible for 50 and more girls to entertain and be entertained in the space of three short months? The extension of the season would seem to be out of the question, because Lent puts its damper on festivities in a city with a strong Catholic tradition.

But why not a spring season? Why not fewer "mixed teas," those products of the depression, which compel hostesses to seek entertainment of the greatest number at least cost? Why not a staunch stand by the hostesses, whose parties the cocktail undercuts? Why not a strike of the white-collared squires to whom a 7 o'clock rising hour comes hard after th enight before? Why not rebellion on the part of the debutantes whose lusterless eyes and chlorotic complexions and listless conversation attest utter fatigue?

Why not, in short, the "dawn breakfast dance"?

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

THE opulence of Central Park these fine fall Sundays is one of the most amazing manifestations of Babylon-on-the-Hudson. No city in the world can show a more glittering parade of smartly upholstered citizenry, lavish motor cars, handsome horse flesh and the generally recognized symbols of urban civilization. The day the new zoo opened a short time since, was all very gala-gala. Plug-hatted and Ascot-tied burghers waved gold-headed walking sticks at the lions and pondered upon the improbable yak. Folks in brilliant sports clothes passed on all sides at a trot or a restrained hand canter, keeping a wary eye on the mounted gen d'armes. Decorous urchins were supervised at their top spinning and hoop rolling by French maids in long blue veils and less decorous small fry screamed and hurrahed on roller skates in the Mall. Crowds surged in and out of the municipal beer parlors, where the sheepfold used to be; there was a leitmotif of popping champagne corks in the new bar at the Casino. Life was all very tolerable.

Many years ago Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish accomplished what amounted to a social revolution in Manhattan when she actually required her guests to finish their dinner in time to get to the opera. Instead of serving course after course, she had only eight courses and served champagne throughout the meal. There was a deal of screaming from outraged sticklers for convention, but with clockwork precision the servants removed each gold-plated course, and the sparkling wine helped accelerate the pace of the meal, so that a new low of an hour and a half was set for dinner, and everyone got to "Aida" in time for the French horns and elephants.

Now another now all-time low of 40 minutes from caviar to cognac has been set by Mrs. Laura Corrigan, Cleveland's ambassadress to London, Paris, Gotham and the world in general. Fifty footmen, one to a guest, fairly whisked the plates on and off the table at a recent dinner party. A major domo, head pantry man and timekeeper, armed with stop watches, supervised the routine, which is reported to have been military in its precision. As one hastily fueled dowager remarked on the arrival of the party at the opening of the Cole Porter show, the only way Mrs. Corrigan can better her time is to have servants do the eating for the guests.

Closely approximating the boom the hotel and restaurant trade is enjoying these weeks, the jewelry business along Fifth and Madison avenues has more customers than have passed through their heavily guarded portals in years. For one thing, the women's fashions of the season again call for lavish displays of gems in bracelets, necklaces and hair ornaments and evening gatherings everywhere flash and sparkle with an almost oppressive extravagance of sapphires and diamonds and platinum. Mrs. Dick Knight is practically sheathed with emeralds when she turns up at Jack and Charlie's. Mrs. William Wetmore showed up at the theater the other evening with a fortune around her neck in the form of a new necklace of rubies and carved jade, and the Torlonia family is reported to have placed a fabulous order with a private designer for gems against the marriage of Prince Allessandro Torlonia to the Infanta Beatriz, eldest daughter of the former King of Spain.

And speaking of elegant jewelry, you should see the evening watch that Townsend Martin bought himself with some Monte Carlo winnings. Black enamel and platinum with an open crystal back to show the works and a heavy milling of square diamonds around the edge. Keeps time, too.

A commentary upon the relative fame and popularity in Manhattan of film stars and celebrated box fighters was offered the other evening at the New Amsterdam opening of "Revenge With Music." The celebrities who strolled down the long lobby to bow to the assembled and gaping populace included Gene Tunney and Lily Damita, the latter of whom was rigged out in a farrago of sequins, lame and monkey fur fit to be seen as far as Governors Island. The resplendent Lily was given an enthusiastic go-by by the crowd, but when Tuney and this department stepped down the street for a glass of beer fully 500 loungers assembled outside the bistro to watch the former world's champion wipe the suds off his whiskers.

ALONG THE BOULEVARDS: Lloyd Smith woke up the other morning with a memorandum written on his dinner shirt to himself beginning with the salutation "Dear Me." . . . A new social magazine, "The Smart World," has been started to take the place of "Town Topics." . . . Tony Williams is advising young men about town to have their new dinner jackets built of dark blue basket weave. . . . The St. Lawrence associates, gourmets, are planning an all-American dinner with pepper pot, terrapin, Alabama ham, pumpkin pie and New York cheese. . . . Stanley Walker's "City Editor" is breaking all records for a non-fiction book on a specialized subject. . . . Ethel Merman is a rag doll collecting fiend. . . . Julius Fischer, the wine merchant, is installing a "wine library" in his shop with a bottle of every known beverage. . . . Damon Wack remarks about a prominent push-face that he is "studying to become a snob." . . . ..

Council to Regulate Charitable Activities

A ROSTER for charitable activities of women's organizations will be maintained by the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women as a means of preventing the making of conflicting dates for social and civic affairs.

The council is a clearing nouse for 141 organizations representing 150,000 women in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

In addition to its major work of supervising the Child Health Bureau, the council established the Glennon Scholarship in 1923 at the National Catholic School for Social Service at Washington, D. C., covering a term of two years.

Seven college graduates have been awarded the course in that time. They are Miss Ann Gallagher, supervisor of Mullanphy Travelers' Aid; Mrs. D. M. Hollingsworth, formerly Miss Mary Hagerty, Board of Children's Guardians; Mrs. John J. Riley, formerly Miss Margaret Mowery, Volunteer Service, Catholic School Health Bureau; Miss Dorothy Wertz, Desloge Hospital Clinic; Miss Rio Oortega, Mexico Social Service; Miss Adelaide Murphy, Social Service Visitor, Children's Department. Miss Katherine de Laney will be graduated from the National Catholic School for Social Service in June.

London Wedding Activity Dies Down

LONDON, Dec. 1.

THE Duke of Kent and his Duchess are enjoying an undisturbed honeymoon at the Earl of Dudley's country residence, Himley Hall, and society gossips are already busy planning their future.

Most of the royalty that gathered in London for the wedding has departed and the special branch of Scotland Yard, responsible for their safety, is breathing easier.

Diplomatic, aristocratic and political circles are gossiping over the snubs administered the Greek, Spanish and Soviet Ambassadors at Tuesday's pre-wedding reception in Buckingham Palace.

While King George and Queen Mary displayed their usual charm and courtesies, many deposed members of the royal families of Greece, Spain and Russia sailed past the ambassadors with noses high in the air.

Princess Marina's mother, Princess Nicholas, who is of Russian birth, pointedly ignored Soviet ambassador Maisky, while the Greek Minister received the curtest acknowledgments from Grecian royalty. The Spanish Minister had a chilly reception from the Spanish royal relations of the King and Queen.

Among Americans who will be prominent in fox hunting circles this season are Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Clark, who have taken Marjorie, Miss Marjorie Leigh's hunting lodge at fashionable Melton Mowbray; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawrence Brewster of New York, who have selected Dover, Kent, in order to ride with the East Kent Pack, of which the Earl of Guildford is master.

One-Act Plays At Toy Theater

THE Morse Players will present an evening of one-act plays as the third of a series of programs of one act plays at the Toy Theater tomorrow and Tuesday nights under the direction of Joseph P. Peek.

The plays to be given are, "The Clavers"; "Now We're Alone"; and "The Little Feller." Included in the casts are the following: Leo Lederer, Jeanne Morrison, Don Harlow, Richard Kuehne, Louise Williams, Lonie Mae Adams, Beverly Best, Tilly Kaufman, Alice Hunt, Jeanne Bray, Estelle Lee, George Lange and Grover Farris.

In addition to the one act plays at the Toy Theater this week two plays for children, "The Clown of Doodle Doo" and "Christmas Eve," will be presented by the children's classes Friday night at 8 o'clock.

THE Post-Dispatch cannot undertake to guarantee the safe return of unsolicited photographs.

CITY COUNSELOR C. M. HAY ADDRESSES INDIANA BAR

Says Lawyers Should Be "Architects of Government" Instead of Agents of Big Business.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 16.—Addressing the Indiana State Bar Association last night, City Counselor Charles M. Hay of St. Louis said lawyers should again become "architects of government and pilots in the storm" instead of agents of big business pointing out methods of evading protection afforded society by the Constitution.

"Before the Civil War," he said, "Government drew into its service the country's ablest lawyers. Since then business, offering enormous fees and emoluments, has made a stronger appeal. The lawyer who could submit the longest list of things the Government could not do to control and direct the processes of society and business was heralded as a great constitutional lawyer. The lawyer who dared to propose a program of business regulation and social service under the Constitution was branded a heretic, a visionary or a Communist.

"We need an increasing number of constitutional lawyers who can find out what the Consitution permits. We need an American Bar Association less wedded to the conception that the Constitution is but a frame in which to fix and preserve a social or economic order whether right or wrong, and more persuaded to the view that it is a plan through which to organize the social processes for the establishment of justice and the promotion of the general welfare."

Mussolini Explains His Policy On Church and State: "Both Are Sovereign in Own Fields"

Sometimes the Two Forces Meet and, in Such Cases, He Declares, Collaboration Is Proper Course.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI,
Premier of Italy.

ROME, Dec. 15.

ALL history of Western civilization, from the Roman Empire to modern times, from Diocletian to Bismarck, teaches that when the State undertakes a fight against a religion it is the State which will emerge defeated in the end. A struggle against religion is a struggle against the incomprehensible and unreachable. It is a struggle against the spirit in its most intimate and profound form and it is now proved that in the struggle the arms of the State, even the sharpest, do not succeed in inflicting mortal blows on the church which—especially the Catholic—comes out triumphantly from the hardest of tests.

The state can be victorious only in conflict with another state. It can then conclude its victory by pressing a change of regime, for instance, a territorial cession, the payment of an indemnity, the disarming of the army, or a determined system of political or economic alliances.

When the fight is against a state, the state is confronted with material reality which can be seized, struck, mutilated or transformed, but when the fight is against a religion one does not succeed in picking out any particular target.

Simple passive resistance of priests and believers is enough to render the attack of the state inefficient.

What Bismarck Did.

Bismarck, in the eight years of his Kulturkampf—determined by the proclamation of the dogma of the infallibility of the Pope in religious matters—caused the arrest of scores of bishops, closed hundreds of churches, disbanded many Catholic organizations and even sequestered their funds.

The campaign of anti-Roman ideas broke out with the motto "Los Von Rom." The result of this persecution was to bring the number of Catholic deputies in the Reichstag to a hundred, to render the figure of Windthorst popular throughout the whole world, and to improve the moral resistance of the German Catholic world.

In the end, Bismarck, I say Bismarck, the founder of the German Empire, capitulated before Leo XIII, calling on him as arbiter in an international controversy and writing to him a letter which began with the word "Sire."

The policy of Napoleon I with regard to the church was just as unfortunate. One of the most serious errors of the great Corsican was that of having wished to "brutalize" two Popes and the Vatican. For one who was as superstitious as Napoleon it was a matter for profound reflection when his first defeat, that of Assling, happened almost immediately after his arrest of Pius VII.

The Fascist Conception.

In the Fascist conception of the totalitarian state religion is absolutely free and, within its ambit, independent. The capricious idea of founding a state religion or of subjecting to the state the religion professed by the totality of Italians has never passed into even the ante-chamber of the brain.

The duty of the State does not consist of trying to create new gospels or other dogmas, in overthrowing the old divinities in order to replace them with others which are denoted by blood race, "Nordism" and such.

The Fascist State does not have a theology; it has a political science which is fundamentally different. The Fascist State does not conceive it as its duty to intervene in matters religious, or, even if it should happen, only then in the case that the religious factor touched the political and moral order of the State.

In modern times and in the contents of white civilization, the State can assume but two legal attitudes before the constituted churches: either ignore them while tolerating them all, as happens in the United States, or regulate the relations with the churches by a system of conventions or concordats, as in fact has been done so profitably in Italy.

The history of the relations between church and State in Italy is particularly to the point from 1870 to 1929. The Italian states, having enacted the so-called laws of guarantees, which were never accepted by the Pope, adopted the policy of ignoring the Catholic Church.

The already insufficient formula of Cavour—a free church in a free state (insufficient in a Catholic country like Italy, which has besides the privilege of being the seat of a religion which counts 400,000,000 adherents in all parts of the world)—was followed by the geometrical formula of Giolitti, who defined the church and state as two parallels which stretch to the infinite and never meet.

Outside the above formulas, the so-called Left parties were specializing in an anti-clerical activity of a demagogic and vulgar nature which touched and rendered some city zones violent, but did not penetrate the great mass of Catholics who were refractory to such propaganda.

It was an untenable situation. The semi-official contacts between the Quirinal and the Vatican imposed by the necessities of life, in common with determined circumstances, as for example the meeting of the Cardinals to elect a successor to the throne, were not lacking, despite the separation.

Agreement of 1929.

In 1929 there was an end to all of that with the treaty which solved the Roman question in a definite and satisfactory manner and with the concordat which determined by a series of a few dozen articles the relations between the Italian State and the Holy See.

Since Feb. 11, 1929, six years have passed. On the morrow of the agreements skeptical and catastrophic voices were not lacking. These same voices rose to the sky when, in the summer of 1931, the pacts were subjected to the test of a conflict in which the question of the education of the young was in play.

The conflict had different phases, some of which were very acute and lasted several months, but in the first days of September the problem was regulated, with reciprocal satisfaction.

That controversy can be considered as the test under fire of the Lateran pacts. From then on nothing has come to disturb the religious and civil peace which the Italian people enjoy. One can add that a cordial collaboration has been developed between the two Powers which regard the same object as basis, man.

The Fascist Doctrine.

The Fascist doctrine in the matter is clear: The State is sovereign and nothing can be outside or against the State, not even religion in its practical outward manifestations, and that explains the Italian Bishops' oath of fidelity to the State.

On the other hand, the church is sovereign in that which is its specific field of activity, namely the care and salvation of souls.

There are moments when the two forces meet. In such cases, collaboration is desirable, is possible and productive.

The Great Mellon Tax Case

Revenue Bureau's Claim of $3,722,000 Additional, With Penalties, Soon to Be Tried—How Former Secretary of Treasury Is Alleged to Have Shrunk $15,900,000 Income for One Year to $5,500,000.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.

SHORTLY after the first of the new year Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering and his legal staff will go before the United States Board of Tax Appeals in an effort to compel Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury under Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, to pay $3,722,622.59 in additional taxes and penalty on his 1931 income.

While this is a sum of money to gain the respect even of the Federal Government, which deals customarily in billions, there is a far more important stake involved. If, Government attorneys point out, the ultimate decision is against the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, then it will have been unmistakably demonstrated that men of great wealth cannot be made to live up to the intention of the present income tax law.

It will be possible, the attorneys point out, for men with sufficient financial resources to put their incomes through the same process that is alleged in the Mellon tax briefs, involving the sale of stocks at a large "paper" loss and the transfer and nominal sale of securities to subsidiary and dependent companies. The Government charges that these complex transactions were mere gestures, made to evade payment of tax.

A Fight to the Finish.

To put it as simply as possible, the Government says that Mellon ran his gross income of $15,951,568 through the wringer of fictitious sales and other devices and squeezed out all but $5,552,874 of "ordinary net income," subject to taxation. Such a wringer could be lawfully created, attorneys for the Bureau of Internal Revenue say, by any man with a large enough income to make it worth while if the United States Supreme Court should rule against the Government in the Mellon case. In all probability the case will be appealed to the highest court in the land. For both sides are in this fight to the finish.

Although Mellon will be 80 years old next March 24, his friends here say that, never in better health, he is preparing, with all the extensive legal resources at his command, to resist the Government's claims. They say that he is even prepared to take the witness stand and defend his income tax return.

If he is cross-examined it will be for the first time in his life, which is all the more remarkable when one remembers that he has built a financial and industrial empire—in aluminum, oil, coal, sulphur and a half-dozen other basic commodities—that has entailed, inevitably, endless litigation. Not only will he defend himself from the claims of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, he will push his own charges that he overpaid his income tax for 1931 by $139,045.

Government's False Start.

The Mellon tax fight had its beginning in March of this year, when Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings announced that he had referred to grand juries in the respective districts in which they lived tax cases involving Mellon, Thomas S. Lamont, young Morgan partner, son of Thomas W. Lamont; Thomas L. Sidlo of Cleveland, law partner of Newton D. Baker, and Jimmie Walker, former Mayor of New York. These were all big names and an immediate harvest of publicity followed.

Assistant Attorney-General Frank J. Wideman, head of the newly-created tax division of the Department of Justice, was prepared to assist Federal district attorneys in pushing these cases.

A Federal grand jury in Pittsburgh very quickly disposed of the case, exonerating Mellon of all charges. Lamont and Sidlo settled with the Government, paying the full amount claimed, plus 50 per cent penalties. The amounts were not made public. The Lamont case was not presented to a grand jury in New York; neither was the Sidlo case in Cleveland. The Attorney-General's order resulted in no new grand jury action in the Walker case, but the ex-Mayor's income, in connection with other phases of his record, has been under grand jury scrutiny intermittently since June, 1933. No indictments have been returned and the inquiry is still going on.

This is now conceded to have been a false start, chiefly because the impression resulted that the long arm of the Federal Government had reached out to persecute poor old Mr. Mellon.

Two Principal Charges.

Having lost the first skirmish, the Government prepared with the utmost care the next step before the Board of Tax Appeals. While the Government's tax case against Mellon is a tangle of complicated transactions, there are two principal charges at its base. One is that Mellon's sale of stock in Pittsburgh Coal Co. "was not actual, but pretended." The other is that he created a family corporation, the Coalesced Co., to "serve as a medium for the transmission to his children of a large part of his personal fortune. . . ."

ANDREW W. MELLON

But the Coalesced Co., the Government charges, besides serving as a conduit to pass the elder Mellon's wealth on to his son and daughter, served as one of the "instrumentalities in fictitious transactions designed to evade the provisions of the internal revenue laws and to establish alleged losses for Federal income tax purposes." Thus the Coalesced Co. plays a highly important part in the case.

The company was organized by Mellon on Dec. 2, 1929, the Government's brief says. In that year he transferred to Coalesced property valued at $9,445,998, taking in return 94,460 shares of Coalesced Co. stock, the entire issue.

"In December, 1931," says the brief, "there were pending in Congress proposals for the enactment of a gift tax and for increasing the rates of estate tax, which proposals were well known to the said A. W. Mellon. On or about Dec. 18, 1931, and prior to the earliest date whereon the pending gift tax could be made effective, A. W. Mellon reorganized the Coalesced Co., transferring to it additional securities valued by him at $58,689,585.75, and taking the entire capital stock of the Coalesced Co., after reorganization, consisting of 200,000 shares of preferred stock and 200,000 shares of common stock.

"Immediately thereafter A. W. Mellon gave one-half of the common stock to his son, Paul Mellon, and the remaining one-half to his daughter, Ailsa Mellon Bruce, retaining for himself the entire issue of preferred stock of the par value of $20,000,000."

The board of directors of this company consisted of the Mellon children, Ailsa and Paul, and three Mellon employes; Henry A. Phillips, "confidential agent" of Andrew Mellon and his brother, the late R. B. Mellon, was president; the vice-president and treasurer was H. M. Johnson, for years the "confidential secretary" of A. W. Mellon, and the secretary was D. D. Shepard, Mellon's Washington tax attorney.

Price and Market Value.

It so happened, the Government charges, "that the quoted market values of most of the securities which petitioner desired to transmit to his children through the medium of the Coalesced Co. were in excess of the cost of these securities to Mellon, "so that good faith sales of said securities would have resulted in taxable gains." "The outstanding exception to that general rule," says the Government, was the common stock of the Pittsburgh Coal Co.

"Accordingly, A. W. Mellon determined to utilize the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh as a medium through which to effect a transfer of such common stock to his children, in a manner, however, which would have the appearance of a sale to the Union Trust Co. and a subsequent resale to the Coalesced Co., so that he might also be enabled to claim a substantial loss and reduce his income taxes for the year 1931."

Thus, the Government charges, Mellon sold the Pittsburgh Coal stock to the Union Trust at a susbtantial loss that he deducted from his gross income. Then the Union Trust resold the stock to the Coalesced Co., so that, the allegation runs, not only did the children possess this share of the Mellon property, free of estate and gift taxes, but the Mellon income was considerably reduced for purposes of income taxation.

The Union Trust Co., the Government contends, is "also a Mellon enterprise." Mellon, in his answer to the Government's brief, denies this, stating that he disposed of his stock in the Union Trust, along with all his other business connections, in 1921, when he became Secretary of the Treasury. But the Government contends that this was only "the form of a sale of said stock and other bank stocks to his brother R. B. Mellon." R. B. gave a note to Andrew, "but no part of said note was ever in fact paid." This was for Andrew's 3300 shares of Union Trusts stock.

Transfer From R. B. to Paul.

Eventually these shares were transferred from R. B. to Paul Mellon. "Paul Mellon paid no consideration for the transfer to him of 3300 shares of stock, but merely assumed the note theretofore given by R. B. Mellon to A. W. Mellon notwithstanding said stock had increased enormously in value since 1921." Subsequently Paul transferred 1000 shares of Union Trust to his sister, Ailsa, and in April of 1932 Paul and Ailsa each put a thousand shares of Union Trust into a brand new company, the Smithfield Securities Corporation, a subsidiary of the Coalesced Co. Thereupon, the note for the 3300 shares which Paul had obligated himself to pay to his father, was cancelled and "Paul Mellon purported to execute a new note to A. W. Mellon with respect to the remaining 1300 shares of said stock."

Further in support of the contention that the Union Trust was merely another "Mellon enterprise" and therefore subject to the financier's orders in this deal, the Government contends "At all times since the purported sale to R. B. Mellon in 1921 to and including the

Lloyd George Says Agreement By France and Germany on Saar Is Omen of Peace for Europe

Member of "Big Four," Framers of 1919 Treaty, Discusses Probable Outcome of Plebiscite.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
Former Prime Minister of Britain.

LONDON, Dec. 15.

TREATMENT of the Saar problem provoked the most dramatic debate that occurred in the little council of four that framed the peace treaty of 1919.

The orations delivered by President Wilson and M. Clemenceau on that occasion were most typical specimens of their respective styles of speaking. There was a serious conflict between them, in which I supported President Wilson's views. Clemenceau claimed the Saar mines for France. The President and I opposed the demand on the ground of the essentially German character of the population.

It ended in a compromise which established a temporary regime in the Saar for a period of 15 years under the aegis of the League of Nations. During that interval, the French had time to restore their damaged coal mines in Picardy. At the end of it the Saar population were to decide for themselves where they wished to go. Hence the coming plebiscite.

Agreement Omen of Peace.

The 15 years are now up. The fate of European peace may depend on the impending election. That is why the committee has been sitting in Rome for weeks to settle the procedure for the referendum. So difficult and prolonged were its negotiations that the extraordinary council of the League of Nations which was summoned at Geneva to deal with its findings had to be postponed for nearly a fortnight.

The report of the committee now issued, which shows that an agreement has been reached as to the terms whereon the Saar mines should be acquired by Germany in case the Saar should vote to return to the Reich, is the most encouraging omen that has appeared in many months past for the peace of Europe.

Meanwhile, alike on the French and German side, there has been furious activity of propaganda, not only in the Saar territory itself, but world-wide, to influence opinion towards the solution they respectively desire.

It is worth while reviewing briefly the nature of the situation in the Saar and the reason why it occupies at present its curious, uncertain position.

Saar Preponderantly German.

The population of the Saar is practically solid German. The statement flung out by Clemenceau in 1919, when he was struggling with President Wilson and myself to get the Saar ceded to France, that there were 150,000 French in the Saar was the utter invention of M. Tardieu's statisticians.

The 1910 census showed 400 people in the present Saar whose mother tongue was French. To-day the only French speaking people there are engineers and officials and the administrative staff brought in by the French for their work on the mines. Otherwise, the whole population is German and German-speaking.

Had the referendum been held prior to Hitler's Germany-wide ascendancy, it would certainly have been 95 per cent, probably 98 per cent or more, for return to Germany.

The Nazi regime caused a strong revulsion of feeling. The population is mainly industrial. At the most, 20 per cent are peasants. The remaining 80 per cent are engaged in industry and commerce. Partly they belong to the Catholic party, partly to the Communist and partly to the Socialist.

The advisory Landesrat, which has 30 members, consisted at its last election (1930) of 14 members belonging to the Catholic Center party, eight Communists, three Socialists, while the remainder were Nazis and representatives of various citizens' groups.

There was never a French candidate, nor would anyone standing to represent French interests in the Saar have the ghost of a chance of being elected.

Part Hitlerism Plays.

The anti-Nazi parties in the Saar were naturally greatly troubled when the Nazis in Germany suppressed their fellows there. But, after a time, the majority swung back to the view that, whatever happened to their parties as a result of rejoining Germany, they would still in any case become Germans again. A minority still clings to the idea of remaining independent until Hitlerism collapses.

The Deutsche Front numbers more than 94 per cent of the people entitled to vote in the Saar referendum. This is in personal membership, not just counting them in groups of alleged sympathizers.

But, while almost the whole population has joined this movement, some have done it because it was politic, and one cannot guarantee that they will all vote for Anschluss.

Trades people and those with property are rather afraid of the economic results which would follow from joining up with a Germany in dire economic straits. Leaders of the separatist movement in the Saar have none of them got a vote. They are not native to the territory at all.

Attitude of Workers.

The workers may not be Nazi, but they are not alarmed by it. The reason has its significance for intellectual socialism in all lands. The German Social Democrats were so wedded to the theory that capitalist industry was doomed to collapse, that they were adverse to bolstering it up by making the lot of workers under it more tolerable. Hitler, having no such theoretic ax to grind, has gone right out to improve the lot of the worker by numerous drastic measures.

That section of the Socialist intelligentsia in the Saar which might favor continuation of its present regime will not, therefore, carry with them the bulk of their followers. As for the Catholics, they are German to the core, and there will, I learn, be no appreciable secession among them from the Deutsch Front.

No one—not even the French—supposes for a moment that the Saar populace will vote for annexation to France.

Hopes for Decisive Result.

What will the issue be? All friends, not only of Germany, but of France herself and of general peace in Europe, must join in hoping that, whatever the result, it will be sufficiently overwhelming to deter partisans, whether inside or outside the Saar, from resorting to violent measures to reverse the decision.

The result that would be most propitious for European peace, would undoubtedly be a clear vote for return of the Saar to Germany and prompt and pacific settlement terms under which the mines shall be taken over from the French.

For the alternative—permanent severance of the Saar from Germany and its erection into an independent German state on Germany's frontier, a gathering round for all those who sought to intrigue against the German Government and a plague spot of festering ill-will between Germany and France—would be the worst possible issue for both countries and would make peaceful settlement of Europe impossible.

To Germans, the Saar would become what Alsace-Lorraine for 40 years was to the French. To

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Decay of Self-Reliance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MANY who would hold inviolate the tenets of the old economic regime now bemoan the decadence of self-reliance in the American people. The pioneer spirit so admirable during our early commercial development is, under the New Deal, being ravished. Something it seems is being substituted not yet justified by its achievements.

Are we to conclude that those who so ardently deplore the decay of individualism, accept in their entirety the views of our great Emerson in his essay, "Self-Reliance"? Emerson said: "I tell thee, thou foolish philanthropist, that I begrudge the dollar, the dime, the cent I give to such men as do not belong to me and to whom I do not belong." Unquestionably Emerson here was referring to the needy of our commonwealth, for in this connection he mentions the objectionable demands of miscellaneous public charities, the education of college fools, alms to sots, and the thousandfold relief societies.

It is clear that Emerson failed to realize, as do many who would now revert to the old regime, that what may be admirable in the individual, such as self-reliance, rugged individualism, the fulfillment of dreams of power, prestige and wealth, inevitably reacts unfavorably upon the common good. During pioneer days, when natural resources were plentiful, and geographical space uncrowded, the effect of unregulated competition was not so pronounced. Now, however, a more liberal view is essential. James Truslow Adams realized this when he wrote: "A nation composed solely of go-getters bent on individual gain, regardless of how obtained, of people trying to get as much for as little as possible and refusing to perform duties unless heavily paid, can come to but one end." The end is wholly undesirable, as confirmed by our present misery and social distress.

However distasteful it may be from the viewpoint of the individual, if we are to prevent or ameliorate recurring periods of severe maladjustments, more and more must we become our brother's keeper. Those who go down in the commercial struggle cannot now make use of that pioneer spirit and self-reliance, formerly so spectacular and awe-inspiring. Without industrial regulation and the establishment of a high plane of business and professional ethics, we may experience another major or minor period of national prosperity.

Nevertheless, at best it can be but evanescent. Invincible fate is certain to place in our paths another abyss of misery. Is it pleasant to contemplate a fatal revolution; the loss of our cherished democratic institutions? Irrevocably we must accept the humanitarian viewpoint or unutterable woe, anguish and distress will be our fate.

Tribute to Senator Clark.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AT this season of the year, when "Peace on earth, good will toward men" so often comes to mind, it seems appropriate to send an expression of gratitude to our illustrious Senator from Missouri, Bennett C. Clark, who has taken so prominent and effective a part in the munitions inquiry. When we have such sincere and capable workers for the public welfare, we can at least let them know that we recognize them as such. Let all those who would strive for world peace, regardless of their method, be thankful for the successful effort that has been made to turn the spotlight on that evil force that has been working under cover for so long.

Balancing the Budget.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR correspondent, "Taxpaying Citizen," implies that only a portion of the citizens are taxpayers. Every citizen is a taxpaper. The small-salaried citizen pays comparatively more taxes, and contributes the largest volume thereof. He also does the least whining.

This bogy, "balance the budget," is the boloney regularly fed the public. Balance the budget means to conduct the Government on the basis of providing an army to intimidate the people, judges to throttle them, and a small enough number of compliant public officials not too zealous in watching the public interest. All cost is to be placed on the backs of the working people, and the rich relieved of taxes. Above all, it contemplates a severe restriction of public services essential to the general public interest.

The march of social progress demands broad expansion of governmental activity, and the delegation to governmental control of functions and powers too vital to public welfare to be left in the hands of private individuals for their exploitation at the expense of the public weal.

The average man is opposed to balancing the budget on the basis of requiring a minimum of return to the public treasury by those who hold the wealth he has created, thereby crippling his Government and destroying its effectiveness to act as his protector and servant.

Finally, the average man is not interested in private profit in industry at his expense. He is interested in getting his needs supplied at a minimum of cost.

POOR FISH.

The Revolt of the Investor

Thanks to the Railroad Reorganization Act (section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act), machinery has been provided by which the investor can at last defend himself against the species of financing that has disgraced the railroad industry in the United States and cost the people billions of dollars.

The investor is availing himself of his opportunity, and his appearance in the field of railroad finance is one of the heartening signs of the times. Reorganizing the finances of railroads has too often been a racket. The investor has been helpless. Reorganization has usually been handled by the very interests which sent the road to receivership. This has been true in so many cases that Congress took up the cudgels for the investor. Hence the Railroad Reorganization Act, which enables the investor to act independently.

Both the Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis-San Francisco railroads, which have their headquarters in St. Louis, are in receivership. Efforts to reorganize their finances are being made in the usual way by the usual people; that is, both these great railroad systems have been landed in the hands of receivers by ruinous financial practices. Both systems have bought the stocks of other railroads; both systems have had to supply funds to cover purchases made for them by the bankers who controlled them, albeit these purchases were sometimes not in the interest of the roads themselves but in the interest of their financial controllers.

An excellent illustration of this has come out in the Frisco hearing which was resumed here last week. Mr. Brown, the financial head of the system, bought 25,000 shares of the common stock of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad. He did not have the authority of his directors to do this. The Frisco had no opportunity to control the Gulf, Mobile & Northern even had it wished to control. The Burlington had effective control of the road when the Frisco bought its stock. Yet 13 months after this stock was bought the Frisco was compelled to take it over at some $36 a share. It was selling in the market at that time at something like $13 a share. Twenty-one months after the Frisco board approved this purchase the bankers withdrew the cash price of $1,000,000, at a time when the road was borrowing Government money to pay taxes. This was one month before the receivership.

The testimony in the Frisco case has brought out a series of such stories. They read like the tales of the Arabian Nights. It is incredible that any civilized country should permit men to play fast and loose with other people's money as the directors and bankers of the Frisco have done. Yet this has been the story of railroad receiverships in the United States from the time of Jay Gould. It is the story of the St. Paul receivership, the largest in American history; it is the story of the Missouri Pacific receivership, the Frisco receivership. The Frisco borrowed money to pay dividends. It actually distributed more than $4,000,000 in dividends in the year preceding receivership. The men who did these things falter and mumble on the witness stand, but the facts speak; they tell the story.

The usual practice in the railroad reorganization racket has been to induce the investors to turn in old securities for new ones. When the new ones are all sold they are usually far in excess of the old ones. Thus the Frisco last went into receivership in 1913 because it could not support its funded indebtedness, and it emerged from receivership three years later with an even greater funded indebtedness. The Interstate Commerce Commission told the Frisco in 1928 that it had overvalued its property by more than $100,000,000. So reorganization upon the old lines is to head the road directly to another receivership. This has gone on year after year, and not until within the last two years has the nation done anything about it. We are now doing something. The worm has turned. The investor insists upon saving some part of his investment. He refuses to be sold out, which has usually been his lot.

The purpose of the bondholders who are fighting the Frisco reorganization is to keep the people who wrecked the railroad from reorganizing its finances and wrecking it again. They insist that the people who devised the financial set-up which brought the road to grief should have nothing to do with the financial reorganization. They believe that if this predatory interest can be kept out of the reorganization the investors' interests can be salvaged.

The battle in the Missouri Pacific reorganization is equally picturesque. There are five reorganization committees in the field. One of these, the so-called independent committee, is headed by Charles A. Beard, the historian. Mr. Beard says his committee purposes to find out "whether the business of investment and investment banking is to provide real capital for productive operations in industry or whether it is to gather up the savings of the people and pour a huge proportion of the total into private pockets through paper manipulation." He says his committee purposes to find out whether the people who have been chiefly responsible for the distress of the Missouri Pacific can be held to account for their acts.

This is also the purpose of the bondholders' inquiry in the Frisco, where there are six reorganization committees in the field. The investors in the Frisco case are seeking to discover if they cannot get back from the people who ruined the road the great sums taken out of the Frisco's earnings for purposes not in the interest of the investor. Mr. Beard says that his committee purposes to introduce a new note into railroad reorganizations, that is, the note of public interest. This is not to be just another "chapter of the Erie," says Mr. Beard.

This is laudatory, but not even with the aid of Congress can the investor successfully oppose the powerful interests which juggle railroad finances unless the investor himself can be rallied to his own defense. It is impossible for millions of railroad investors to understand the intricacies of railroad finance. It is easily understandable why, when they have been asked to exchange old holdings for new ones, they have readily succumbed to the wiles of the railroad bankers. The education of the investor is essential to this defense. This is why bondholders are organizing, and it has brought a new Richmond into a troubled field.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON.

Fifty years ago John J. Glennon was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church. In 1903 he became Archbishop of St. Louis at the age of 41, the youngest man in America to attain that distinction. In the administration of his powerful office, he has demonstrated rare qualities both as a spiritual leader and as a director of the church's mundane affairs.

It is impossible to measure his influence as a churchman except in the admiration, affection and loyalty of his co-religionists. But the evidence of his executive ability is plain in the hospitals, seminaries, schools, colleges and churches that have been built here since he came, and in the magnificent cathedral on Lindell boulevard.

Tonight the community, Catholics and non-Catholics alike, will honor the Archbishop at a great gathering in the Arena. We join in paying tribute to him as a strong and wise man, a citizen whose talents have earned him international repute, a human being with charm, a churchman sans peur et sans reproche.

TWO MORE ADVOCATES OF PUBLICITY.

The extent to which sentiment has grown for making public the names of persons who intercede with Federal authorities on behalf of criminals and suspects is indicated by two expressions at the third day of the national crime conference, in Washington.

Said Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney-General: "Names of all persons sponsoring paroles, as well as those of individuals writing to the authorities asking clemency for convicts, should be available to the public."

Said Frank Hague, for 22 years Mayor of Jersey City and long active in Democratic politics: "I don't see why any person who is willing to stand up for somebody in trouble shouldn't be willing to have his name made public."

These expressions, representative of two groups that would be directly affected by a publicity order, Federal officials and politicians, show that it is not the general public alone that would welcome a change. They present concisely the case for ending a practice that has placed a veil of secrecy around a matter of great concern in law enforcement, the identity of those who "front" for convicts and those accused of Federal offenses. Mr. Keenan's statement appears to put the Department of Justice on record as committed to a change in its widely criticised past policy.

The people will hope so. They would welcome formal confirmation by an order of the department providing for complete publicity in such cases.

ITALY'S DRASTIC CURRENCY SAFEGUARDS.

Our Government's drastic action last year in calling in all gold held in private hands brought considerable objection and controversy. The objectors can thank their stars, however, that they are not citizens of Italy who hold foreign credits. For the Italian Government, in an effort to maintain the stability of the lira and remain on the gold standard, has issued decrees of great severity.

All business firms holding foreign credits must "cede" them at once to the National Exchange Institution. If necessary, these will be sold and used by the institute to adjust Italy's foreign exchange balance. All citizens must declare the credits they hold abroad. All foreign currencies and similar credits must be ceded to the institute, which receives a monopoly on making payments outside of Italy.

The penalties? Confinement on the penal islands, a fine equal to the amount of credits not declared, as well as penalties otherwise provided in the law. To these has been added the threat that persons who circulate rumors to the effect that Italy is to leave the gold standard will be severely punished.

These steps are merely one skirmish in the great battle of the currencies, resulting from the confused world financial situation. They are a self-defensive measure on Italy's part that may prevent grave upsets at home as well as abroad. By contrast the gold orders of the United States Government appear benevolent.

IMMIGRATION LAW INEQUITIES.

Like most citizens, Daniel W. McCormack thought, when he took office last year as Commissioner of Naturalization, that the deportation laws were used to rid the country of undesirable aliens. He soon found, Mr. McCormack said in an address here recently, that they are often used to separate families, to create public charges and to send away desirable, hard-working persons for minor infractions of immigration regulations, by no means to be classed as crimes. At the same time, owing to other complications in the immigration laws, the Government is unable to deport hundreds of criminal aliens.

It is for these reasons that Mr. McCormack calls the situation horrifying and has committed himself to seek changes in the regulations to eliminate these inequities.

The proposals for revision of the immigration laws failed of action at the last Congress. They should by all means be pressed to passage at the next session. It is an intolerable condition when, as Mr. McCormack says, the Government often affords better protection to the criminal alien than to the desirable immigrant.

NOW FOR PRIVATE LENDING.

The Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which has held out a helping hand to more than 670,000 home owners, now has in progress a survey to determine whether private lending institutions are in a position to take over credit business of this character.

This suspension of the activities of the HOLC is both an answer and an invitation to private lending institutions. It is an answer in that it recognizes the complaint that the Federal Government is doing a lending business which banks and building and loan associations ought to be conducting. It is an invitation in that private agencies now have the opportunity to take over this business.

The future of the HOLC is uncertain, pending the outcome of this survey of home credit facilities, which is to be completed early in the new year. Presumably, if the investigators find that private lending institutions can and will take care of almost 500,000 applications which have not been acted on, the HOLC will consider its work completed as a lending agency and stay on the job only as a liquidating device. On the other hand, if the report finds credit facilities inadequate, it is probable that additional funds will be asked in the coming Congress to meet applications now on file.

In short, it would appear that the HOLC's survey period gives private lending just the chance it should have. There is every reason to hope that it will find itself able to measure up, for in a very real sense the normal movement of credit is a community's life blood.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Great Tale

CLEOPATRA'S DAUGHTER. By Beatrice Chanler. (Liveright Publishing Corporation, New York City.)

IT IS commonly assumed, as stated in the Encyclopedia Britannica, that Cleopatra the Great had only three children, presumably Caesarion, son of Julius Caesar, and Alexander and Ptolemy Philadelphus, sons of Mark Antony. Although historians are aware of the fact, it will doubtless surprise most readers to learn that the great Egyptian Queen had a daughter by Mark Antony, Cleopatra Selene, who reigned for many years as queen in Northwestern Africa, and whose life story, now perhaps more fully revealed than ever before, throws much light on the Augustan Age of Rome.

In the year 41 B. C., things were not going so well with the great Roman dream. There were defeats in the East and a "depression" at home, with hordes of unemployed. Egypt was a menace. The dissension between Octavian, later to be known as Augustus, and Antony was growing rapidly toward the open hostility that was to end tragically for the latter. It was in this year than Antony met Cleopatra and succumbed to her charms.

As always in such times of uncertainty and gloom, prophecy flourished; and by far the most famous of all the prophecies of the time, one that is even yet variously interpreted, was that of Virgil in the Fourth Eclogue. Virgil, it will be recalled, announced the birth of one with whom "from high heaven descends a worthier race of men," and "all the peaceful earth would be freed from everlasting fear."

There are scholars who insist that Virgil had in mind a son of Octavian soon to be born; but the "son," alas, turned out to be Julia, destined to scandalize even Roman society. The poet's prophecy, thus left completely up in the air by infamous Julia's appearance, was overlooked until, long after the poet's death, triumphant Christianity was persuaded to see in it an inspired announcement of the Savior's birth.

Beatrice Chanler, however, as the result of long and careful research, which she plans to make the basis of a separate work on the ancient controversy, contends that the prophetic Fourth Eclogue referred, not to the hoped-for son of Octavian, but to the issue of the romantic union of Antony and Cleopatra. The author is convinced that the significance of the Virgilian prophecy was well understood in Rome, and that it coincided with the prophetic utterances of the priests of Isis at Alexandria.

A divine child, destined to pacify and unify the world, was to come of "divine seed." Was not Cleopatra the "daughter of the goddess, Isis"? Had she not been enshrined by Julius Caesar in the temple of Venus Genetrix at Rome as Aphrodite? Was not Antony the descendant of Hercules, and was he not hailed as the god Dionysus on his triumphal tour after the victory at Philippi?

Curiously enough, the great event, presumably foretold by Virgil, occurred on Dec. 25 in the year 40—the day devoted to the festival of the winter solstice, the birthday of the sun god, Helios. There was, indeed, a son, as predicted; but the son was a twin, and the names of the pair were Alexander Helios, Son of the Sun, and Cleopatra Selene, Daughter of the Moon. Thus, at the time, it appeared that the fulfillment had even bettered the prophecy, and that so great was the destiny attendant upon this birth that nothing short of the male and female principles of the divinity in one could accomplish the divine task allotted!

Truly, during the brief heyday of Antony's and Cleopatra's dream, it did appear that both the Western and the Eastern worlds might come under the sway of Alexandria and that the children of the Sun and Moon might become omnipotent. But there were other gods than Egypt's, and if Virgil's prophecy fits anything at all, at long last the Christian fathers seem to have had the best of it.

The life story of Cleopatra Selene, involving the failure and tragic deaths of her father and mother, and the emergence, growth and incipient disintegration of Augustan Rome, is one of the most tremendous human stories imaginable. Better still, it is so overwhelming a tale, when read in its entirety, as Beatrice Chanler tells it, that had it not happened, its like could scarcely have been invented; for life at flood in its great historic moments can dwarf the most ambitious products of the creative imagination.

With her father and mother dead, two of her brothers slain, and the great dream shattered, Cleopatra, once "Queen of Cyrenaica and Libya," but now only a lonely, though still a haughty, little girl, was taken as a captive to grace the Roman triumph of her father's enemy, Octavian. But she seems to have had much, if not all, of her mother's powerful spirit and intelligence, as well as her beauty and fascination. She was adopted by Octavian and reared in the bosom of the imperial family.

At the age of 12 or 13, she was married to the scholarly Juba, an adopted Prince, son of the conquered Juba of Numidia; and the Kingdom of Mauritania in Northwestern Africa was created for the pair. Their capital, Caesarea (the modern Cherchel in Algiers), became one of the most opulent of its time, a center of Greek and Roman culture; and for years the Queen dreamed, even as her mother had dreamed, of somehow fulfilling the prophecies of the priests of Isis and of Virgil—the whole world united under Ptolemaic control. But all that was finished at Actium.

Few books this writer has read during the past year or so have made so deep an impression as this one, and the reason is to be found in the extraordinary powers of the author. How she has loved her subject matter and dreamed her way into the life of the time with which she deals! How like a gorgeous tapestry she weaves her tale; with what inspired patience and surpassing skill!

This is a book indeed, one that makes the touted novels of the day appear as cheap as in reality they are.

THE WORKS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. (Oxford University Press, New York City.)

HERE in a single octavo volume of 1264 pages are presented all the plays and poems of Shakespeare. The use of a thin opaque paper and a clear boldface type makes the volume very easy to read, and not at all unwieldy. The text is that which was prepared for the Shakespeare Head Press by A. H. Bullen. The old arrangement of the material under the headings comedy, history and tragedy, has been abandoned, and the works are presented in the chronological order of their composition, in keeping with the consensus of opinion on that point. Thus the reader may follow approximately the evolution of the poet's personality and genius.

Those who may be wondering about a suitable present for some book-loving friend might find a solution in this admirable volume, which is certainly not overpriced.

THE SECRET WAR. By F. C. Hanighen. (John Day Co., New York City.)

LOUIS FISCHER has ventured to assert that "the history of the next generation or two will be read in the light of the struggle for oil." Whether or not the statement be wholly true, the great importance of the international struggle for oil reserves is apparent, and here is told the story of that struggle up to date.

SHIPMATES. By Isabel Hopestill Carter. (William R. Scott, New York City.)

HERE is something rare, if not quite new, in sea stories, nearly all of which, naturally, have been written by men. It is a woman who tells this holding tale of the days when it was not uncommon for the wives of the captains of sailing ships to accompany their husbands all over the seven seas, bearing and rearing children amid the perils of the deep."

The author, Isabel Carter, is the daughter of an old sea captain, and up to the age of 10 years, she, with the rest of the family, sailed with the father. "Mother says I have rounded the Horn three times," she confides, "which entitles me to spit over the windward rail—a dubious privilege, I should say. . . . Four generations, at least, on both my father's and mother's sides, have followed the sea, built ships, been master mariners."

But the reader scarcely needs to be assured as to the author's qualifications for the writing of a sea story, such is the unmistakable "feel" of reality throughout the book. It hardly reads like fiction, and undoubtedly most of the incidents are remembered by the author, either from the talk of her elders or from her own experience, winnowed and intensified by the process of time.

The story is that of one Elizabeth Sparrow of Bath, Me., who, marrying the young shipmaster, Jim Brown, roves the sea with him, bearing and schooling her children on the long voyages, the only woman in her tiny floating world. There isn't any "plot" in the conventional sense of the term, but decidedly there is organic unity, and the reader is left with the cleansing sense of having experienced a complete cycle of life with something of its deeper meanings clarified.

Happiness and pain, calm and storm and shipwreck, love and loss—it is all here. There is nowhere any effort to achieve "fine writing" for its own sake; but there is always a deep sincerity in the writing that makes it truly fine.

Colby Says Europe's Bland Default On Debts to U. S. Precludes Progress in International Accord

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY,
Former Secretary of State of the United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—With the repetition of a general default by our European debtors on their obligations to the United States, the fifteenth of December bids fair to become known as default day. As the case now stands, the total of the war debts is $11,565,000,000. The arrearage under the funding agreements, including the latest defaulted payments, amounts approximately to $650,000,000.

Our debtors seem to have washed their hands of the matter—to have taken leave of the subject as if it had ceased to interest them. There is no sign that their defaults occasion them the least discomfort or any sense of reproach.

Default may be said to have been elevated by them to the dignity of "an instrument of national policy."

Evasion From the Start.

While there are certain economic impediments to the liquidation of these debts—which have been greatly and very artfully exaggerated—the questions remain:

1. Has there been such an effort to fulfill these obligations as satisfies the honor of the debtors and as should meet the expectations of the creditor?

2. Has there, on the other hand, been an effort to evade the obligations on this pretext or that, and to postpone payment with a view to the eventual defeat of collection?

The case of our debtors would present a better appearance if their deliberate intention to avoid the payment of their debts was not so clearly manifest throughout the record of their dealings with us, and almost from the moment that the debts were incurred. Before the Versailles treaty was signed, France was busy trying to blur the fact that the loans she had received from the United States were made in reliance upon a promise of repayment. The British were hardly less prompt and were more frank. As early as February, 1920, the British Exchequer formally proposed a general cancelation of the war debts, asserting England's willingness to relieve the Governments whose obligations she held, to the same extent that we released our debtors.

Letting America Pay.

It remained for Secretary of the Treasury Houston to point out that "such cancelation does not involve mutual sacrifices on the part of the nations concerned; it simply involves a contribution, mainly from the United States.*. . . A general cancelation as suggested would, while retaining the domestic obligations intact, throw upon the people of this country the exclusive burden of meeting the interest and of ultimately extinguishing the principal of our loans to the Allied Governments."

The British proposal, however, was renewed by Mr. Lloyd George, in a letter to President Wilson dated Aug. 5 1920, in which he maintained that the British Government could not think of paying its debt to the United States aside from a general settlement of the inter-governmental debts; that if Great Britain should remit (what she had promised unconditionally to pay the United States) without first receiving what her debtors owed her, "British public opinion would never support so one-sided an arrangement at its sole expense, and that if it were made, it could not fail to estrange and eventually embitter the relations between the American and the British people with calamitous results to the future of the world."

"One-Sided" Settlement.

It is not surprising that President Wilson in his reply reminded Lloyd George that the latter was departing from the agreement which Great Britain made at the time it received the American loans.

The reference made by Lloyd George to the difficulty which any British Government would experience from British public opinion should it make a "one-sided" settlement, as he called it, of Britain's debt to the United States, was countered in President Wilson's letter by a reference to American public opinion.

"It is highly improbable," wrote President Wilson, "that either the Congress or popular opinion in this country will ever permit a cancelation of any part of the debt of the British Government to the United States, in order to induce the British Government to remit in full or in part the debt to Great Britain of France or any other of the allied governments, or that it would consent to a cancelation or reduction in the debts of any of the allied governments as an inducement toward a practical settlement of the reparation claims."

Wilson on Cancellation.

Mr. Wilson then passed to the British suggestion of a total cancellation of its debt.

"You will recall," said he, "that suggestions looking to the cancellation or exchange of the indebtedness of Great Britain to the United States were made to me when I was in Paris. Like suggestions ewer again made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the early part of the present year. The United States Government, by its duly authorized representatives, has promptly and clearly stated its unwillingness to accept such suggestions each time they have been made, and has pointed out in detail the considerations which cause its decision. The views of the United States Government have not changed and it is not prepared to consent to the remission of any part of the debt of Great Britain to the United States."

France Wanted No "Gift."

An amusing sidelight on the rather light and airy manner in which France now repudiates her debt is afforded by an incident which took place while the war was still in progress and France did not think that she had yet exhausted the possibility of further loans from this country.

During a congressional debate on the first Liberty Loan Act, reference was made to the generosity with which France had come to the aid of the United States during our Revolutionary War, and the point was made that a large pecuniary gift by the United States would be only a suitable recognition of the aid we had received from France in a critical period of our own history.

France, however, promptly made known its unwillingness that our advances to her should be treated as gifts. In fact, the Secretary of State received a cable from the American Ambassador in France, in April, 1917, as follows: "The Premier personally expressed the hope to me that no resolution would be introduced or debated in Congress tending to make a gift to the Government of France from the United States, however much the sentiment of good will prompting it might be appreciated by the people." (Combined annual reports of the World War Foreign Debt Commission, 1927, pages 60, 61).

Repayment Promised.

The nature of the transactions was clearly understood and viewed alike by lender and borrowers.

They were simple in form. The engagements to repay were unqualified. The right of the creditor to receive, and the duty of the debtor to pay, were not dependent upon any contingency that was in the mind of any party to the transactions or which, from any cause or quarter, might arise.

They were loans, and nothing else, made to nations in good credit and in reliance upon their promises of repayment. These promises are now breached. They are ever denied.

And there the matter stands, with "default"—like the "damned spot" in Shakespeare's Macbeth, which would not "out"—stamped upon the pages of America's ledger accounts with Europe.

What the eventual outcome of these transactions is to be, time alone will tell.

But for the present, like a gaping wound in public faith, they preclude all prospect of genuine progress in international accords, and stand as a complete frustration of the hope of a world organized on the basis of mutual confidence among nations.

DOUGLAS, PLANE DESIGNER, TO GIVE WRIGHT LECTURE

Chosen to Speak at London in May Before Royal Aeronautical Society.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 15.—Donald Wills Douglas, American airplane manufacturer, has been chosen to stand under the original Wright airplane in the South Kensington Museum in London and deliver the 1935 Wilbur Wright memorial lecture to the Royal Aeronautical Society.

The lecture will be delivered in May. Douglas will speak on the new high speed transport airplanes.

Douglas, born in Brooklyn April 6, 1892 attended the United States Naval Academy and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and then became chief engineer for Glenn L. Martin's airplane factory in 1915. In 1916 he was chief designer for the United States Army.

In 1917 Douglas and Martin again became associated in building airplanes in Cleveland, but in 1920 Douglas struck out on his own. His plant is in Santa Monica.

The Wright lectures were established through an endowment raised in England.

INDIAN GUIDES OF ST. LOUIS HOLD THIRD ANNUAL POW-WOW

Father-and-Son Organization Exhibits Work at Webster Groves High School.

The Indian Guides of Greater St. Louis, a father-and-son organization, held its third annual pow-wow and exhibition last night in the Webster Groves High School gymnasium.

Many articles in woodcraft, pottery and Indian utensils made by members as a requirement for membership were displayed. Also exhibited were the tribes' various findings in the study of astronomy, insect life, woodcraft and aviation during this winter's course.

With the fathers and sons playing the characters, a stage show of the life of the Indians was given. An outstanding act was the "Peace Pipe" ceremony, under the direction of Chief Sunrise, a Sioux Indian. It depicted the calling of the tribal chiefs for council.

The Indian Guides, a national organization, was founded in St. Louis eight years ago. Harold S. Keltner, secretary of the South Side Y.M.C.A. is Big Chief.

year 1931, and regardless of the record ownership of said stock, A. W. Mellon continued to receive, purportedly as interest from the record holders, the entire amount of dividends declared and paid on said 3300 shares of said stock. Since the purported transfer of said stock to R. B. Mellon, the beneficial and equitable ownership of said stock has been at all times in A. W. Mellon, and the vote of said 3300 shares of stock and the disposition of said stock was at all times subject to his control. A. W. Mellon, through his stock control and that of his family, through his intimate friends and business associates, and through his relation as a customer and by reason of the great volume of banking business subject to his disposition, was in a position to and did dominate and control the said Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh."

Union Trust Co. Role.

The Union Trust Co. bought Mellon 123,622 shares of Pittsburgh Coal Stock "for a purported consideration of $500,000." On the same day that the stock was transferred to the trust company's nominee, the trust company gave a check to Mellon for $500,000. A. W. Mellon immediately returned said $500,000 to the Union Trust Co. to apply on a demand note owing by A. W. Mellon to the trust company. Thereby the Union Trust Co. was left in the same cash position which it had occupied prior to said transaction, no outlay of its cash assets having been required."

This sale was "not actual, but pretended," the Government alleges, and was "devised . . . in order to claim losses for income tax purposes and to reduce his income taxes for the year 1931." The supposed sale took place on Dec. 30, 1931. On April 25, 1932, the trust company transferred the coal stock to the Mellon family corporation, the Coalesced Co. "At the same time the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh lent to the Coalesced Co. $400,000 of the $517,278 (the price which Coalesced supposedly paid to Union Trust), taking the identical stock as collateral."

Mellon claimed an ordinary loss of $5766 and a capital loss of $5,672,189 from this transaction. Besides the block of Pittsburgh Coal Co. stock involved in this deal, Mellon had 54,000 additional shares. On March 23, 1932, the Government says, he gave Paul 27,000 shares and Ailso 27,000 shares and they in turn transferred the total of 54,000 shares to the Coalesced Co., "without consideration, to be joined in due course, on April 25, 1932, by the aforesaid 123,622 shares of common stock, thereby completing the transmission to his children of that portion of his estate represented by his holdings in the Pittsburgh Coal Co., free from and undiminished by gift or estate taxes," just 41 days after Mellon had filed his income tax return for 1931.

Similar transactions in other securities, the Government charges, were entered into with a similar purpose. Mellon claimed, the brief of the United States attorneys shows, a total of $383,527 in ordinary losses and $6,086,469 in capital losses. One of these deals was carried out, the Government contends, through the Ascalot Co., another family corporation, in which Ailsa held all the stock, with minor exceptions, "valued at in excess of $7,000,000."

Mellon Denies All Charges.

Mellon, in the two documents that his attorneys have filed thus far in the case, denies all the charges made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The fraud penalty is called "arbitrary and capricious, intended to color and distort the facts of the case, and is in law erroneous, illegal and void." He contends stoutly "that he has in fact overpaid his tax." The sale of Pittsburgh Coal Co. stock was a bono fide sale and the check was deposited to Mellon's personal account, Mellon's attorneys state, adding, "There was no arrangement, agreement or understanding of any character with the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, under or by which he was to have any right or option to purchase them (the stocks) at any later time.

In the latest document filed there is a statement which Government attorneys have taken to mean that in the event his 1931 return were found to be faulty, Mellon could put the blame on the accountants who prepared it. Reviewing the vast Mellon interests and the huge sums of money involved, the document says: "Petitioner (Mellon) upon being advised by his accountants that said return was a true and correct statement of his income tax liability and without any intent to evade tax, executed said return and the same was filed with the appropriate Collector of Internal Revenue as aforesaid."

Against the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh there is pending another tax case which Government attorneys say is very similar to the Mellon case. Union Trust has a subsidiary, the Union Savings Bank which, it happens, conveniently enough, is directly across the street from the parent company. R. B. Mellon was vice-president of both and both companies had the same directors.

Union Trust Sale to Subsidiary.

When it appeared, the Government charges, that the Union Trust would have to pay a tax on an income of about $4,500,000, a list of securities was made up for "sale" by the Union Trust to the Union Savings. These securities had a quoted market value on the date of the "sale" of $1,722,082 less than they had cost. But there was a little hitch in this "sale" the Government seeks to show. Union Savings did not have a strong enough cash position to take the securities without impairing the reserves required by law.

So the Union Trust lent its subsidiary enough money to make the purchase. The securities were transferred to the books of Union Savings on Nov. 8, 1930, and on Jan. 2 and 3, 1931, they were retransferred back to the Union Trust's books. Inclusion of the "loss" from this "sale" was done "falsely, fraudulently and with intent to evade tax," the Government alleges.

Moreover, the Government charges, the Union Trust Co. toward the close of 1931 "did repeat the same fraudulent plan to engage in a fictitious sale of securities and to report a fictitious loss for tax evasion purposes." This time the successful "sham sale," as the Government calls it, resulted in a "loss" to the Union Trust Co. of $2,347,411.

Game Played Both Ways.

What is even more striking is the fact that this game could be played both ways. The Union Trust was perfectly willing to act, the Government's brief sets forth, as "accommodation purchaser" for its subsidiary, the Union Savings Bank. This time the "deal" was in defaulted bonds of the Republic of Chile and in Cuban bonds. Union Savings was able to show a tidy "loss" of $190,204 on this transaction.

The Government's brief in the Union Trust case also sets forth the transactions involving Andrew Mellon and R. B. Mellon and charges that the company was well aware of the true nature of these transactions. A member of the board of directors of Mellon's Aluminum Co. of America, Roy A. Hunt, is also charged with going through a "fictitious" sale with Union Trust in order "to evade taxes," and so are William B. Schiller, a director of Union Trust, and John H. Nicholson, "a large customer" of the trust company.

In an early round in this fight the Government charged that it was through the special knowledge and skill he had gained as Secretary of the Treasury that Mellon was able to devise plans for reducing his income tax. In fact, the Government contends, it was during his regime as Secretary that he "devised and began the execution of a scheme to evade his Federal income taxes" which contemplated just those devices that he later resorted to.

C. D. Mitchell Case Recalled.

The nearest parallel to the Mellon case to come before the Board of Tax Appeals thus far, in the opinion of Government attorneys, is the case of Charles D. Mitchell. It will be recalled that Mitchell was tried criminally, but acquitted on charges that the sale of stock to his wife was not a bona fide sale. The Board of Tax Appeals is expected to pass very soon on whether or not Mitchell must pay the tax claimed by the Government.

Government attorneys are careful to point out that the methods used in the Mellon case differ in kind from those which such bankers as J. P. Morgan testified to in the Wall Street investigation. Morgan's deductions, for example, were scrutinized by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and pronounced bona fide, resulting from capital losses sustained under the provisions of the law.

However, the law was changed in 1934 so that such capital losses may now be taken only to offset capital gains. It is believed that this will make it impossible for men of great wealth to deduct losses taken on liquidated securities, in a period of shrinking values, from their real income and thereby show little or no income subject to taxation. This was just what Morgan and many others did. Government attorneys concede that there are still many holes to be plugged in the Federal tax laws; it is still possible to "avoid" if not actually to "evade" paying gift and inheritance taxes through one device or another.

The Mellon case will afford a clear cut test of many of the provisions of the income tax law. The Government's legal staff will be headed by Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue. He will have at least three special assistants. Mellon has enrolled both Pittsburgh and Washington attorneys. There will be no little drama in the hearing before the Board of Tax Appeals, particularly if the slender, shy-appearing financier from Pittsburgh takes the stand.

CHRISTMAS IN FOREIGN LANDS TO BE DEPICTED

Folk Festival Will Be Held This Afternoon in St. Louis U. Gymnasium.

Traditional Christmas customs of many countries will be portrayed by foreign groups of St. Louis at 2:30 p. m. today at the annual Christmas folk festival at St. Louis University gymnasium, 3672 West Pine boulevard.

Groups, representing Russia, Poland, England, Italy, Germany, France, Mexico, Sweden and several other countries, will participate in the program, under the auspices of the International Institute.

Carols, which have resounded from churches and castles of Russia for centuries, will be sung by the choir of St. Michael's Russian Orthodox Church.

The birth of Christ will be dramatized by an Italian group. The Deutches Club will enact the coming of Knecht Rupprecht, who makes his rounds on Christmas Eve in Germany giving gifts to all good children.

A Polish National Dance, the Mazur, will be demonstrated by the Paderewski Singing Society.

Christmas in Jugo-Slavia centers about the "Badjnak," log which is burned all night in each house. Each family takes cognizance of the Nativity and extends good wishes to the members of the community.

The Mexican Benefit Society will portray the Mexican custom, in which statues of Mary and Joseph are carried from door to door, seeking admission. After many refusals, the doors are opened and there is much rejoicing.

Folk songs and carols will be sung by the French, English and Ukrainian groups. Folk dances of Czecho-Slovakia and Sweden will be depicted.

How Memorial Day Originated.
By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 15.—Mrs. Mary A. Woodward, whose father, Col. Robert M. Moore, is said to have originated the idea of Memorial day, died last night. Her story was that after the Civil War, Col. Moore visited Spring Grove Cemetery here each year to pay tribute to soldiers buried there. In 1868, he suggested a nation-wide observance to Gen. John A. Logan, then commander of the G. A. R., and designation of May 30 as Memorial day resulted.

inals would be which busied itself with the caliber of cannons or the tonnage of cruisers!

A ministerial cabinet would be just as ridiculous if it decided to legislate in matters of theology or religious dogma. A State which does not wish to spread spiritual disturbance and create division among its citizens must guard against any intervention in matters which are strictly religious.

That which has happened in Germany in recent times is great proof of the worth of Fascist doctrine and practice. No State is more totalitarian and authoritarian than the Fascist State. No State is more jealous of its sovereignty and prestige, but especially for that the Fascist State does not feel the need of interfering in matters which are outside its jurisdiction and extraneous to its nature. All those who have traveled by that road have sooner or later been forced to recognize their error.

In my address before the annual assembly of the regime I declared intentionally that he who breaks or disturbs the religious unity of a people commits a crime of lese-nation.

10,000 CAROL SINGERS ENROLLED IN ST. LOUIS

Bands to Visit Almost Every Residential Neighborhood on Christmas Eve.

Ten thousand persons have enrolled as Christmas eve carolers with the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association. Many more recruits are expected, so that bands of singers are assured for almost every residential neighborhood, it was announced yesterday.

Four hundred organizations will take part in the singing. Beaumont High School leads in number of caroler bands, with 44, and many churches and schools have as many as 10. The number of churches taking part has increased, and 20 new bands have been added to the Negro division.

Costumed groups of carolers from church choirs, singing societies and school singing clubs will sing in the downtown hotels and restaurants at noon on the four days before Christmas. Other groups will be at Union Station during the late afternoon on the sams days. Singers will appear at outlying hotels and restaurants only on Saturday night.

A Christmas concert will be given at Central Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets, from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Saturday by a chorus of 250 voices from the musical clubs of Beaumont High School and the Holy Communion Choir. It will be under the direction of Ernest Prang Stamm.

William H. Danforth, president of the association, issued a warning that 'Many of our friends have been imposed upon in the past by outsiders who are actually singing and collecting for some purpose other than that of public charities which get the benefit of the carol collection." He asked contributors to make sure that collectors accompanying the carolers have the official large red and green button of the Carols Association.

Funds obtained by the associations' carolers are used for emergency chield relief through such agencies as the Children's Aid Society, the County Welfare Association, the Red Cross of Webster Groves, St. Mary's Dispensary and the Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

Lloyd George Says Saar Pact Presages Peace

the French it would seem justification for their half-forgotten belief that the Rhineland territories would welcome severance from the German state, and it would excite their ambition for annexations further north.

A small majority in favor of return to Germany would provoke a movement among French left-Rhiners in favor of intervention.

The article written by Senator Millerand, former President of France, recently is a sinister portent. He is clearly reluctant to contemplate the prospect of the Saar's once more becoming an integral part of the German Rhineland. He recalls memories of Marshal Foch's demand for restoration of the old Napoleonic regime on the left bank of the Rhine. The "Wacht am Rhein" is not altogether a German song. You can occasionally hear it hummed in Chauvinistic circles in Paris, and, if the Saar majority were too narrow, the strains would become much louder and then mischief would be afoot.

Compensation, Nothing More.

That demand was definitely overruled by those who framed the Treaty of Versailles—Clemenceau acquiescing in the decision. The assignment of the coal mines of the Saar to France for 15 years was an act well merited, a compensation to France for the injury to her coal mines inflicted by the Germans. But it was not intended to establish a new terra irredenta in the heart of Western Europe; and indeed, if today any considerable votes could be secured in the Saar for continued isolation, it would be dictated not by desire to continue separate from Germany, but by dislike of the Hitler regime and fear, excerbated by violent propaganda. If, in spite of that factor, the Saar population vote for return to the German Fatherland, I am confident that the League of Nations will restore this territory to Germany.

New 1935 Buick Cars, Shown in St. Louis Area, Little Changed in Style

Variety of Roomier Body Types Is Widest in Buick History—"Knee Action" Retained.

Four lines of Buick cars, announced by the Buick Motor Co. for 1935, and now being shown in the St. Louis area, cover the range from the low medium to the high medium price fields and offering the largest variety of body types in the history of the Buick organization. With the factory in full production, stocks are now in dealers' hands and representative models of the complete line are on display. Dealers, consequently, are able to make prompt deliveries.

For the first time, the Buick Motor Co. enters a new year with four distinct groups of automobiles, all similar in design and construction, varying only in details of dimension and price class.

The New Buicks.

The 1935 Buick cars consist of the following groups:

The new series 40 Buick on a 117-inch wheelbase, having a valve-in-head straight-eight engine developing 93 horsepower at 3200 revolutions per minute. This car, now being produced in six body types, is Buick's bid for the lower priced volume field. It is identical in appearance and fundamental features of design and construction with the higher priced lines.

The series 50 Buick for 1935 is on a 119-inch wheelbase chassis and is produced in five body types. Before the addition of the Series 40, this car bore Buick's lowest price tag. It now is the second Buick group. It has an 88-horsepower straight eight engine.

The Series 60 Buick is a fine car in six body types, including two convertibles. It has a 100-horsepower valve-in-head engine and 128-inch wheelbase chassis with roomy bodies and attractive interior appointments.

There are eight Series 90 body types, including a limousine and two convertibles. All models are virtually custom built to order and are available in an almost limitless number of options as to color combinations, interior trim and de luxe appointments. The car has 136-inch wheelbase and a Buick straight eight engine developing 116 horsepower.

Body Styling Little Changed.

The 1935 styling has been changed only in minor details. It is based on the principle of modern streamlining, with narrow V-shaped radiators, sweeping valanced fenders, bullet shaped headlamps, slanting windshields and tapered anti-suction backs. No obstructions, except thinly tapered door handles, protrude from the car body to cause wind noises.

More room has been provided in one sedan model by redesigning the front seat. Extensive changes have been made in upholstery and interior trim, particularly in the lower-priced groups. A new type of rubber engine mounting more effectively indulates the engine from the frame.

"Knee Action Retained."

The four outstanding mechanical features that combined to produce the Buick "gliding ride" are retained in the 1935 cars. They are "knee action" wheels, balanced springing and weight distribution, the sway stabilizer and low pressure tires. Independent front wheel suspension, pioneered in this country by Buick, is regarded by the company as having been tested in the proving ground of public use.

Body roll and side sway are minimized in the new Buicks by a sway stabilizer mounted across the frame near the rear cross member. This is a spring steel bar, the torsional action of which keeps a car body on even keel when rounding curves or on highly crowned roads.

There is generous room for the normal number of passengers in all body types and additional passengers can ride without crowding. Three persons can sit comfortably in the front seat of all except models with individual bucket seats, while the rear compartment in every sedan model is spacious with ample seating capacity and room to stretch legs.

The bodies, by Fisher, have no-draft ventilation. Interiors are completely appointed with robe rails, assist straps, arm rests, glove compartments, ash receivers and the like, standard in all models.

On the 50, 60 and 90 series Buicks double windshield wipers operate positively, by means of a vacuum booster, regardless of engine speed.

Airplane type instruments, indirectly lighted, are grouped in a panel at the left of the instrument board, directly in front of the driver. Control pedals and levers are within easy reach. The driver's seat is adjustable in all models.

Built-in trunks are on two or more models in each price group, except the 50 series.

New Buick Convertible.

Addition of a new convertible model to the lowest priced group of Buick cars is announced today simultaneously with the nationwide public showing of all Buick products for 1935. This new car, a convertible coupe in the Buick series 40, rounds out a line of automobiles with which the Buick Motor Co. has entered the automobile price field below $1000. Like other models in the series 40 line, the car is on a 117-inch wheelbase chassis with a 93-horsepower, valve-in-head straight eight engine of Buick design. The new model is a dashing sport roadster with the top down, and in blustering weather it is a snug coupe. Upholstered in attractive tan line-patterned Bedford whipcord or tan hand buffed leather, optional selections, the car is available in a number of colors. A seat accommodates two passengers.

Pontiac to Introduce Low Priced 'Six' Line, H. J. Klingler Admits

Rumors that a line of low priced sixes would be introduced by the Pontiac Motor Co., and inquiries, have caused H. J. Klingler, president and general manager, to admit their truth.

"The cat seems to be pretty well out of the bag," said Klingler, "and there doesn't seem to be any good reason for further denials. I don't know why, but it has been impossible to keep our plans a secret in regard to this new line of sixes. It simply goes to show the widespread interest that is taken in the low price field and particularly the quality six-cylinder field.

"Most of the good things that have been heard about this new six are true."

"Pepper" Martin's Camp Outfit

"Pepper" Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals and his family with their new Gilkie camp trailer, delivered to them by the Donnelly Auto Co., distributer. Martin and his family have been living in their trailer while he has been hunting in Texas and Mexico. The trailer is collapsible. It has a living room, bedroom and kitchenette. The beds can be changed into couches. The kitchenette table unfolds to form a cooking table with stove on one side and white enameled sink on the other. The trailer rides easily, and has a coupling device that works smoothly when it is running behind a car. Martin broke off his hunt to come to St. Louis the past week to have a piece of chipped bone removed from his left elbow.

Number of Autos Running 337,000 More Than Last Year

A preliminary check of motor vehicle registrations throughout the United States indicates that there are thousands more cars on the road this winter than last.

Incomplete figures from approximately 22 states show that registrations in 1934 are more than 337,000 ahead of last year, according to a bulletin by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc.

"Better economic conditions nationally have made it possible for many thousands of persons to drive cars this winter who could not afford to last year," the bulletin says. "While registration figures at this time are incomplete, figures received thus far from 22 states show 11,387,211 cars registered in comparison with 11,049,723 registered in these states in the same time last year.

"Preliminary reports show that sales of new Mobiloil Arctic, made by the Clearosol process, have far exceeded earlier quotas.

"Despite several 'cold snaps'—and the prediction that a very severe winter is at hand—the weather in many places has been unusually mild, and thus many motorists have neglected to drain their summer oil and properly winter-proof their cars for the cold weather season.

"Proper precaution at this time, the right kind of oil in the crankcase, the correct grade of grease for chassis, gears and differential, can save motorists millions of dollars by next spring."

Solid Steel Roofs for New Cars in 1935 Announced by Sloan

Protection of solid steel overhead is to be offered the motorist in the new cars. Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, announces development of "the turret top" by the Fisher Body Division of the corporation, in his quarterly message to stockholders.

E. F. Fisher, general manager of the Fisher Body Division, explains that the new "turret top" is a single sheet of seamless drawn steel that extends from the windshield to a point well below the rear window and is strengthened by heavy U-shaped metal bows underenath.

"The entire front end, from the instrument panel forward and including the corner posts at either side of the windshield, is a single steel assembly," he says. "There is no back panel. The one-piece steel roof is brought down to form the top of the steel frame around the enclosed luggage compartment opening. The quarter panels curve around to form the sides; the steel floor, with the necessary molding, the bottom.

The "turret top" body is insulated throughout. A layer of ¼-inch insulating material is secured to the underside of the steel roof and other parts of the metal sheathing. To seal out engine noise and heat, the dash is covered with a felt and fibre board deadener, while a layer of heavy jute covers the flooring from front to back. Windows and doors are tightly sealed."

Buick Dealers View 1935 Models, Learn Sales Promotion Plans

Wednesday night a meeting and dinner were held by the Buick dealers and salesmen in the St. Louis territory at the Coronado Hotel. The meeting was presided over by C. L. Anderson, St. Louis zone manager. Thirty-five of the new 1935 Buick models were shown to the dealers.

Alexander commented to the 100 dealers and salesmen who attended on the fact that it was the first exclusive Buick meeting held in three years. The purpose, he said, was to unfold the 1935 advertising plans as well as to show the dealers the new Buick cars. It also served to introduce the new members of the Buick organization to the dealers.

Alexander introduced O. V. Klemm, assistant zone manager, who has had a number of years' experience with the Buick organization in another region. Dave Castles, of the West Side Buick Co., and Harry Willcockson, of Willcockson Motors and Andy Burger, of the South Side Buick Co., spoke in behalf of the dealer organization and salesmen, as did C. C. Spiegelhalter of Willcockson Motors. D. O. McDonald, zone service and parts manager, and A. C. Ditz, the new city sales manager, were introduced.

A. C. Dietz, who is well known in the St. Louis territory as city salesmanager, outlined Buick's sales plan in detail and paid tribute to the 12 salesmen who qualified for the 1000 point club in 1934.

Alexander said that since 1932 Buick volume had steadily increased to 60,000 domestic retail sales in 11 months of this year as compared with 43,000 in all of last year, a gain of approximately 40 per cent, whereas the increase for the industry as a whole was 35 per cent. The public, he declared, has paid more dollars for Buick cars this year than for another make except Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouths. Buick, he said, estimated that its sales would be 100,000 cars in 1935.

George M. Berry Heads New Firm Distributing Nash, La Fayette Cars

The distribution of Nash and La Fayette cars in the St. Louis district has just been taken over by the newly organized Nash St. Louis Co., Locust at Twenty-second street.

George M. Berry, widely known as an automobile distributer, who has been in the business here for 12 years, is president of the new firm. Al Reeke, who has been with the Nash Motors Co. since it was organized and formerly was Nash manager in Cleveland, is sales manager of the firm.

Berry has assembled a sales and service organization of experienced Nash men. There are 11 of them in the firm's service department, among them Jack Kretzinger, A. F. ("Benny") Boenecke and E. J. ("Gene") Becker.

Berry and Reeke returned the other day from a meeting of Nash-La Fayette distributers at the Nash plant in Kenosha, Wis., where they saw the new models for 1935.

C. W. Nash, president of Nash Motors, speaking at the meeting, said that in 1934 Nash doubled its 1933 sales, and was planning to double its 1935 production over that of this year.

The Nash St. Louis Co. has 55 Missouri counties, 31 in Illinois and two in Arkansas in its territory as distributer.

Reports More Autos For Christmas Gifts Than One Year Ago

Reports of better retail business this month are borne out by the experience of the Oliver-Cadillac Motor Co., Race Wice, the salesmanager, says.

Wice states that the company has twice as many Cadillac and LaSalle cars ordered delivered to homes on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day as last year.

"Estimated New 1935 Dodge to be Worth Many Dollars Over Actual Price," says Russell Patterson; "So Much Style and Smartness Fooled Me."

"I know good looks when I see them," says Russell Patterson, famous artist, illustrator and beauty authority, "so it's no wonder that I guessed the price of the new 1935 Dodge too high.

"It's so smartly designed, has such trim modern lines that I guessed it would be a pretty high-priced car. I'll admit I never dreamed a car so good looking could be sold at such a low price."

Value authorities, style experts, purchasing agents—all have been fooled trying to guess the price of the new 1935 Dodge. They say it is so packed with value they cannot believe their own ears when they hear how little it costs. Watch for this new Dodge!

New DeSoto Models, Designed as Surprise, Shown to Dealers Here

Palmer Says They Will Cause As Much Comment As Did the 1934 Cars.

The DeSoto Motor Co. held a meeting and luncheon at the Coronado Hotel on Tuesday that was attended by more than 300 dealers and salesmen from Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

F. H. Huttmann, assistant regional salesmanager, introduced J. J. Palmer, assistant to Byron Foy, president of DeSoto Motors Corporation. D. L. Hazlehurst, assistant regional manager of the Atlantic Division, discussed specifications of the new DeSoto cars for 1935, which were shown at the meeting. The new models are said to be a complete surprise to the auto industry.

Palmer declared that DeSoto engineers, who set a style pace in 1934, had scored again in the design of the newest DeSotos. It is understood that the dealers will be able to begin showing the cars within a few weeks.

"DeSoto has another big surprise for the public in 1935," Palmer said. "The new DeSotos will attract just as much attention, and excite just as much comment as the present cars."

All automobiles constructed in Italy after July 1, 1935, must have left-hand steering.

St. Louis Auto Show Will Open on Jan. 6 and Continue for Week

First Display of the New Motor Cars for 1935 Scheduled in Middle West.

Preparations have virtually been completed for the annual St. Louis Auto Show, which will be held in the Mart Building, at Twelfth and Spruce streets, Sunday, Jan. 6, to Jan. 12.

This will be the first 1935 auto show in the Middle West. It will be held simultaneously with the New York auto show, which will be conducted by the New York auto dealers and not by the automobile manufacturers. So it will assume an even greater importance than the highly successful St. Louis exhibits of past years.

The auto show exhibits will occupy at least 70,000 square feet of space on the third floor of the Mart Building. The decorations will be elaborate, with an interior color scheme of gold and black and an exterior of red and blue. The outside of the Mart Building will be lighted brilliantly by a number of 1500-candlepower floodlights.

There will be more to see than at any previous St. Louis auto show, according to the show committee, as there will be changes in the body designs of every make of car and greater luxury and convenience in interiors than ever before. There also will be some interesting mechanical innovations. Visitors to the show will be the first in the country to see some of the new models.

The show will open at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Jan. 6, and close at 11 o'clock that night. On other days it will be open from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m., closing late Saturday night, Jan. 12.

It will be in charge of the show committee of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association, whose members are Joseph A. Schlecht, chairman; G. W. Oliver, president of the association; C. E. O'Meara, Ashley Papin and W. H. Willcockson. Jack H. Grosse, secretary-manager of the association, will be the show manager.

England has a national pedestrians' association with an aim to make walking less hazardous. Its slogan is "Alert today. Alive tomorrow."

Richberg and Aids to Address Annual N. A. D. A. Convention

J. G. Roberts, deputy administrator of the automotive section of NRA, and J. F. Delaney, assistant deputy, will speak at the annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers' Association in Detroit Jan. 14-15, President F. W. A. Vesper announces.

Donald R. Richberg, director of the President's National Emergency Council, will speak at the annual banquet the evening of Jan. 15.

Automatic Control Features Forecast by Dodge Engineer

A forecast of features of 1935 cars, made by George B. Allen, chief engineer of Dodge Brothers Corporation, say passenger cars become so "automatic" as to leave the driver little to do but start, steer and stop.

"The 1935 models—I am, of course, speaking more especially about the make with which I am most familiar—will relieve the driver of many duties. The choke button is no more, because there is a choke that attunes its action to the temperature of the engine and then attends, automatically, to whatever choking may be necessary for an instantaneous start.

"A spark timing control advances and retards the spark automatically in accordance with the work the engine is called upon to do. A carburetor heat control automatically doles out the precise amount of heat for the fuel mixture.

"Even the water circulation is provided with an automatic control that regulates the cooling effect as is necessary at a given moment.

"The grating noise, often heard in gear shifting, caused by the fact that gears revolve at different speeds, is eliminated. Transmissions are so arranged that the gears are made to turn automatically at the same speed at the moment the shift is made."

Graham Expected to Enter a Six in Lowest Price Field

The Graham-Paige Motors Corporation is reported to be preparing to be a contender in the lowest price field next year with a new Graham six.

The company's engineering laboratories are working in three shifts on tests of a low-priced car. Graham dealers, who have been expecting a Graham to sell in the lowest price range, expect a definite announcement about the time of the auto shows.

Reports are that the new Graham will feature unusual economy, advanced streamlining, hydraulic brakes, safety glass and other developments. It is understood that Graham will have three other models, including the Supercharged Eight, for 1935.

Chevrolet Separates Parts and Accessories From Service Division

The Chevrolet Motor Co. has reorganized its parts and service department to permit greater specialization.

The step creates two distinct departments, each with a complete staff of its own, in the central office and throughout the regional and zone organization. One, the service and mechanical department, will concentrate on service exclusively. The other, the parts and accessories merchandising department, will confine itself to that field.

The parts and accessories merchandising department will be headed by M. D. Douglas, who, as parts and service manager, has developed his organization to the point where division of functions becomes necessary.

The service and mechanical department will be headed by C. W. Wood, who has been associated with Douglas.

Willys Style Change for New Cars Being Built for Auto Shows

Willys Overland is planning to present three new models of the Willys 77, a sedan, coupe and panel delivery truck.

It is understood that the new models have been improved in body lines to conform to the currently popular designs.

The most definite change has been wrought in the forward section of the 1935 cars. Radiator lines, it is said, have been given a new treatment with other contour changes.

All of the new Willys models will be introduced at the New York, Detroit and other prominent automobile shows.

Pontiac Dealers Order 32,797 of New Cars for First 90 Days

The Pontiac Motor Co.'s 10-day sales convention is over. Less than half of 2000 dealers attending left behind them in the Pontiac sales department, it is stated, orders for 32,797 new cars, representing an investment of $24,597,750 and covering only their first 90-day requirements.

W. L. Gilpin, general sales manager of the company and chairman of the sales convention, said the meetings just closed were the most successful in the history of Pontiac.

Pontiac Car Division Established Here By Kuhs Buick Co.

The Kuhs Buick Co., 2837 North Grand avenue, has opened a new location for the Pontiac division of its business. The Pontiac is at 2916 North Grand avenue, and will be devoted to the Pontiac business exclusively.

W. C. KING.

V. E. Soehnlin, vice-president and general manager of the Kuhs Buick Co., says that this division will be known as the Kuhs Pontiac Co., and will be under supervision and management of W. C. King. King has been associated with the automobile business in St. Louis since 1919, and is very well known.

The new Pontiac building is two stories high, 50 feet by 100 feet, and is directly across the street from Sportsman's Park. The sales organization will be made up of five retail salesmen who have been with Kuhs Buick for some time.

Elaborate plans are being made for the presentation of the new Pontiac models at the time of their formal introduction by the Pontiac Motor Co.

Ab. Jenkins, Holder of Speed Records, Visits F. C. McDonald

Ab Jenkins, well known auto speed record breaker, recently passed through St. Louis driving an eight-cylinder Auburn cabriolet from Auburn, Ind., home of the Auburn Motor Car Co., to his home in Salt Lake City for Christmas.

Jenkins stopped at the Southwest Automobile Co., distributers of Auburn cars, to visit with Frank C. McDonald, president of the company. They discussed plans under way for next April, when Jenkins plans to break all auto records for performance and speed on his desert track near Salt Lake City.

After Christmas Jenkins will visit the coast, where he will see President Faulkner of the Auburn Automobile Co., to make definite arrangements for these runs next April.

Jenkins is also having built a special Dusenberg car, which will be powered with a Lycoming motor and will likewise be used for special tests on the Salt Lake desert next year.

Victor Announces
in time for your Christmas gift list a glorious new recording of the
BEETHOVEN FIFTH

Played by Serge Koussevitzky and the London Philharmonic Orchestra

The perfect gift for any music lover—A Victor Album surpassing any previous recording of Beethoven's masterpiece.

Some would call Beethoven's Fifth the greatest of his symphonies. No one can doubt that it is the best known and the best loved. Naturally, it was one of the very first symphonies to be recorded by Victor when electrical recording was first introduced, some ten years ago.

Why, then, a new recording at this time? Because another great advance has been made by RCA Victor in the art of recorded tone. All previous recordings of the "Fifth" are far surpassed by this one in glorious realism of orchestral tone.

Played by the London Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky, it is a Christmas gift that any music lover would delight in.

Or, if you prefer, there are many other fine recordings currently on the Victor lists that would make splendid gifts; gifts that will give immediate pleasure, and pleasure ever-renewed for years to come. Ask your Victor dealer to let you hear this new recording of the Beethoven Fifth, or any other Victor Records you'd like. He will, gladly.

Chorus to Be Used As Part of Orchestra.

A CHORUS of 26 mixed voices and a symphonic orchestra of 65 men will be used as one in a new series at 9:30 Friday nights on the WEAF chain. The voices will be used by Frank Black, director of the programs, at times to carry passages written for them accompanied by a single instrument, again as if they were musical instruments and thus part of the orchestra, and at other times in solo, quartet or octet phrases. Part of the programs will be made up of what Black calls "rhapsodic units," each consisting of popular melodies woven together with preludes and interludes and played without an announcer breaking in to tell the names of the pieces. New music will be used only when it has achieved such popularity that its name and melody are known to most listeners. The singers will rehearse three days a week before their voices are blended with the orchestral instruments, and there will be two complete rehearsals of each program. The series is planned with the idea that it shall be an important radio innovation.

New Technique in Radio Drama.

A NEW technique in presenting dramatic radio programs will be demonstrated for the first time at 7 o'clock Thursday night. The play will be "The Cottingham's Last Banshee," by Francis Wilson, NBC staff writer, which was carried on a network a few months with incidental music used only to bridge the scenes. In the new version, music will be used throughout as a background accompaniment, and choruses will cover the changes of scene and at the same time advance the action of the plot. Tom Bennett, radio composer and arranger, has written a complete score for the broadcast. The words have been cued to the music throughout, to build up the tension to its climaxes and to accent the action. Lyrics to be sung by the chorus between the scenes will add color.

A concert by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, Otto Klemperer conducting, will be carried by the CBS chain at 10:15 Christmas Day morning. Brahms' Fourth Symphony will be played.

The society raised $60,000 last year by the sales.

Beginning tomorrow the selling of health buttons will be begun in the Union Station, Civil and Municipal Courts, and the Clayton Courthouse. About 60 per cent of the income of the campaign is derived from the sale of the seals. The campaign will end Christmas eve.

JOSEPH BENTONELLI, the tenor who won listeners' favor in the opening performance of KSD's Sunday night grand opera in English series, will be in the cast with Elisabeth Rethberg of the Metropolitan Opera in tonight's production of "Madame Butterfly" at 7 o'clock. He will sing "Lieut. Pinkerton." Douglas Stanbury will be "Sharpless" and Norman Cordon the Bonze. Mme. Rethberg, who will sing the title role, was born in a village in the Erz Mountains, on the border between Saxony, Germany, and Bohemia. Before she was 19 years old, she made her debut in "The Gypsy Baron" in the Dresden Opera House. For seven years she sang at Dresden and made "guest appearances" at the Vienna Imperial Opera and noted German opera houses. She was engaged for the Metropolitan Opera in 1922, and since then has been one of the recognized great singers of the "Met." She was invited by Strauss to create the role of "Helen" in his "Egyptian Helen" in 1928, and created the role of "Rautendelein" in Respighi's "La Campana Sommersa." It will bring music by the same orchestras—those of Kel Murray, Benny Goodman and Xavier Cugat — and the regular "Let's Dance" soloists, among them Helen Ward, Frank Luther, Connie Gates and Jack Parker.

A change in time for KSD's Modern Kitchen programs will go into effect Jan. 1, on and after which they will be broadcast from 11:15 to 11:45 a. m. and a new network program will occupy the 11 to 11:15 a. m. period.

"The Mikado" will be sung in KSD's Light Opera Hour Tuesday night. John Barclay will play the role of "Koko." Barclay made his grand opera debut in London with a crash. Singing the high priest in "Samson and Delilah" in the Drury Lane Theater, he strode on the stage to point dramatically at the slain Abimelech. The King's Guard quartet is scheduled on KSD at 6:30 this evening, as Queena Mario's last concert was that of last Sunday.

Music from Handel's "Messiah" will be broadcast over KSD at 3:30 next Saturday.

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI

WHOSE last radio concert as conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra is set for next Friday afternoon.

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI, who has resigned as conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, will direct his last radio concert of the season next Friday from 2 to 4 o'clock on the CBS net (on KMOX until 3 o'clock).

Early in January, Stokowski and his family will depart on a tour of the Orient, where he plans to study Oriental music.

Stokowski has played an important part in the development of orchestral broadcasting. He has invented and developed devices which have materially aided the giving of radio concerts with realism.

For his Friday broadcast, he has programmed Handel's "Christmas Music," Brahm's First Symphony and the "Siegfried's Death" and "Brunnhilde's Immolation Scene" music from "Die Gotterdammerung."

Famous Artists, Conductors in New Series.

LILY PONS of the Metropolitan Opera will be the soloist in the Symphony concert at 7 o'clock next Sunday night on the WJZ net and KWK, and Louis Hasselmans of the "Met," will be the director. Lucrezia Bori probably will be the singer and Eugene Goosens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, the director, in the concerts of Dec. 30.

Sunday night, Jan. 6, at the same hour, another 13-week series of these concerts will open with some of the world's famous conductors and artists. Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony, will be among the conductors. Toscanini will conduct a special concert.

Of special interest will be a concert in which the soloist will be Feodor Chaliapin, the great Russian operatic basso, who will sing to a radio audience for the first time in several years. Yehudi Menuhin, the violinist, has been engaged. Jan Kubelik, the violinist, will be starred in a concert with his son, Rafael Kubelik, conductor of the Prague Symphony, leading the orchestra.

Other soloists under contract for the new series include Lauritz Melchior and Tito Schipa, tenors; Elisabeth Rethberg and Lotte Lehman, soprano, all among the Metropolitan Opera greats; Myra Hess, the pianist; Gladys Swarthout, of the "Met"; Arthur Schnabel, pianist; Nathan Milstein, violinist, and Bronislaw Huberman, violinist. George Gershwin will be the piano soloist and Paul Whiteman the conductor in one of the concerts.

In addition to Toscanini and Golschmann, conductors engaged are Bruno Walter of the New York Philharmonic; Sir Adrian Boult and Sir Hamilton Harty, the British directors; Igor Stravinsky, the famous Russian composer; Eugene Ormandy of the Minneapolis Symphony; Paul Kerby of the Vienna Symphony; Henry Hadley, Reginald Stewart, the Canadian; Hans Kindler of the Washington Symphony and Alexander Smallens of the Philadelphia Symphony.

Noted Actors to Broadcast

Helen Hayes, Grace Moore, Beatrice Lillie, Will Rogers To Have Programs—Fred Waring Will Get Full Hour.

CONGESTION of fine music on the major networks from 7 to 8 o'clock Sunday night probably will be diminished by a third on Jan. 6, when it is planned to replace the concerts by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on the CBS net and KMOX with a series from 7 to 7:30, featuring Helen Hayes, the actress; Greta Kellar, the Viennese singer, and Don Voorhees' orchestra, and another program from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, possibly continuing Voorhees' orchestra and Mme. Kellar with Donald Stewart. Miss Hayes originally was engaged for 13 weeks. Now it is said that she will play on the 7 to 7:30 Sunday night program until the first Sunday in February, when Eddie Cantor will take over this period for a 26-week radio run.

Helen Hayes.

Grace Moore has been signed for a 13-week series Tuesday nights on the WJZ chain and presumably KWK. Her half-hour program will come from Hollywood, and will start the night of Jan. 1. It was first reported that she would be on the Monday night schedule, and that Lawrence Tibbett's program would be reduced to 15 minutes to make room for a full half hour for her. Now it develops that Tibbett has signed a contract extending his Monday night concerts through the winter. In addition to his broadcasting, he is busy rehearsing for the season at Metropolitan Opera House, where he will have a role in a new opera, "In the Pasha's Garden," by John Lawrence Seymour of California, as well as sing the standard baritone parts.

Will Rogers will be back on the Headliners' program Sunday nights for six weeks, starting Dec. 23. When his six-week run is concluded, Stoopnagle and Budd probably will go back on the series.

Rosa Ponselle, Nino Martini and Grete Stueckgold's concerts are expected to be discontinued soon, the decision of their sponsor seemingly being not to renew their contracts.

A half-hour variety show starring Beatrice Lillie is scheduled to replace the 45 minutes in Hollywood series now on the CBS net and KMOX. The Lillie programs will be carried by the WJZ net and KWK at 7 o'clock Friday nights, beginning Jan. 4. This change will give the extra time on the CBS net and KMOX needed to extend Fred Waring's show to a full hour.

Tito Guizar, who sings as well as the press agents assert some other tenors do, has been engaged by Fox to appear with Tullio Carmanati in a new picture, "Adios Argentina." When he goes to Hollywood, his CBS network program will come from the West Coast.

The final regular Byrd Expedition broadcast on the CBS chain has been set for the night of Feb. 6, but a two-hour broadcast of its arrival in New York is being planned.

Mark Hellinger, the Broadway columnist and story teller, will have his wife, Gladys Glad, formerly a Ziegfeld Follies beauty; Peggy Flynn, the comedienne, a quartet, "guest" entertainers and Emil Coleman's orchestra on his 7 o'clock Wednesday night programs on the "Penthouse Parties" on WJZ net and KWK, starting Jan. 2. His series will replace the Wednesday night Crime Club, which thereafter will be broadcast only at 7 o'clock Tuesday nights.

Morton Downey On KWK at 3:30.

AIR COMMANDER P. F. M. Fellowes, who led the Houston air flight over Mount Everest, in the Himalaya Mountains of India, will be the Explorers' Club speaker on KWK at 4:30 today. Last April, with a 100-mile-an-hour gale blowing, he took his plane over the summit of the world's highest mountain, clearing the jagged top by a scant margin, with survey and movie cameras clicking furiously.

Aviator Fellowes

William Caxton and Victor Moore, the comedians, and Ethel Merman, the Broadway singer, will be the Hall of Fame "guests" at 9 o'clock tonight on the WEAF chain.

Morton Downey's return to the air is set for 3:30 today on the WJZ net and KWK. He will sing weekly at that time with an orchestra led by Ray Sinatra, and also at 6:15 Tuesdays. Guy Bates Post, the actor, will be the narrator on Downey's programs.

Part of Kate Smith's program at 2 o'clock Wednesday on the CBS net will come from Berne, Switzerland, where a Swiss festival will be in progress (2:30 on KMOX).

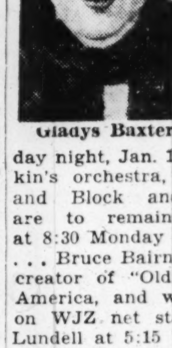
"A Scrap of Paper," a comedy adapted from Sardou's work, will be performed by the Radio Guild at 2 o'clock tomorrow on KWK.

The Carolina Folk Singers of the University of South Carolina will broadcast on KMOX at 9:45 a. m. Wednesday.

Education in its relation to the problems of life will be Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's topic at 6:45 this evening on KMOX. This will conclude her talks.

Gladys Baxter In Radio Series.

GLADYS BAXTER, well known to Muny Opera audiences, Walter Preston, baritone, and Victor Arden's orchestra are billed for a series at 6:30 Saturdays on KMOX and the CBS net, starting Jan. 5.



Gladys Baxter.

As will be recalled, Miss Baxter sang the title role in "Sweet Adeline" and that of "Roxanna" in "Cyrano de Bergerac" here last summer.

The Carefree Carnival is broadcast at 7:30 Monday nights on the WJZ net . . . Jackie Heller's series with Harry Kogen's orchestra is to begin Monday night, Jan. 14. . . . Lud Gluskin's orchestra, Gertrude Niessen, and Block and Sully program are to remain in the Big Show at 8:30 Monday nights on KMOX. . . . Bruce Bairnsfather, cartoonist, creator of "Old Bill," is back in America, and will be interviewed on WJZ net stations by William Lundell at 5:15 Thursday.

Playlets depicting a supposedly typical American family of moderate means in the process of realizing their dreams of building their own home may be heard in the "Little House Family" series at 3 o'clock Mondays and Thursdays on the CBS chain.

Studio Blaze Photographed For Future

By H. H. NIEMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.

WE didn't exactly fiddle while New York burned. Fiddling is not one of our accomplishments, or, at least, we never tried it. But we did stand around and eat hamburgers and watch the Bowery go up in smoke at the biggest fire the Hollywood movie studios have staged in many a year. It happened at Warners' you know, a week ago, and the flames wiped out some of the most historic streets and buildings, pictorially speaking, in this land of Make Believe.

The studio made the best of it with a flock of camera-men taking reel after reel of burning buildings and ships and things like that which will come in handy in some future pictures calling for fire scenes. If no such movies were scheduled at the time you can bet they will be soon for the far-sighted Warner boys are going to get something more than just the insurance out of it all.

The blaze started, where one might expect it to start, in the outdoor sets showing the dingy and crowded lower East Side of New York, switched around through the wholesale district of Manhattan, took in a Bowery pawn shop or two, switched again to the stationary—and largely stationery—water front, picked up a gigantic battleship and finally was brought to an end in front of some Fifth avenue mansions.

It wiped out, in a few minutes, the dance hall in which Bette Davis and Lyle Talbot danced for "Fog Over Frisco" for, by changing a few signs here and there a New York slum can be made to look like a San Francisco slum, or a London one or anywhere else for that matter.

NO doubt you have seen that dance hall and that street a lot of times in the past. It was built originally for the Richard Barthelmess—Constance Bennett picture. "Son of the Gods." After that it was repainted and enlarged for "The Hatchet Man," one of Edward G. Robinson's best films. Recently, again touched up with fresh paint, it saw service as the meeting place of Dick Powell and Josephine Hutchinson in "Happiness Ahead."

Nearby was Bagdad's wholesale district in which Jimmy Cagney started his thievery in "Public Enemy" and where Paul Muni had his big packing plant in "The World Changes." A few changes, only lately, made it do for Cagney again in "St. Louis Kid."

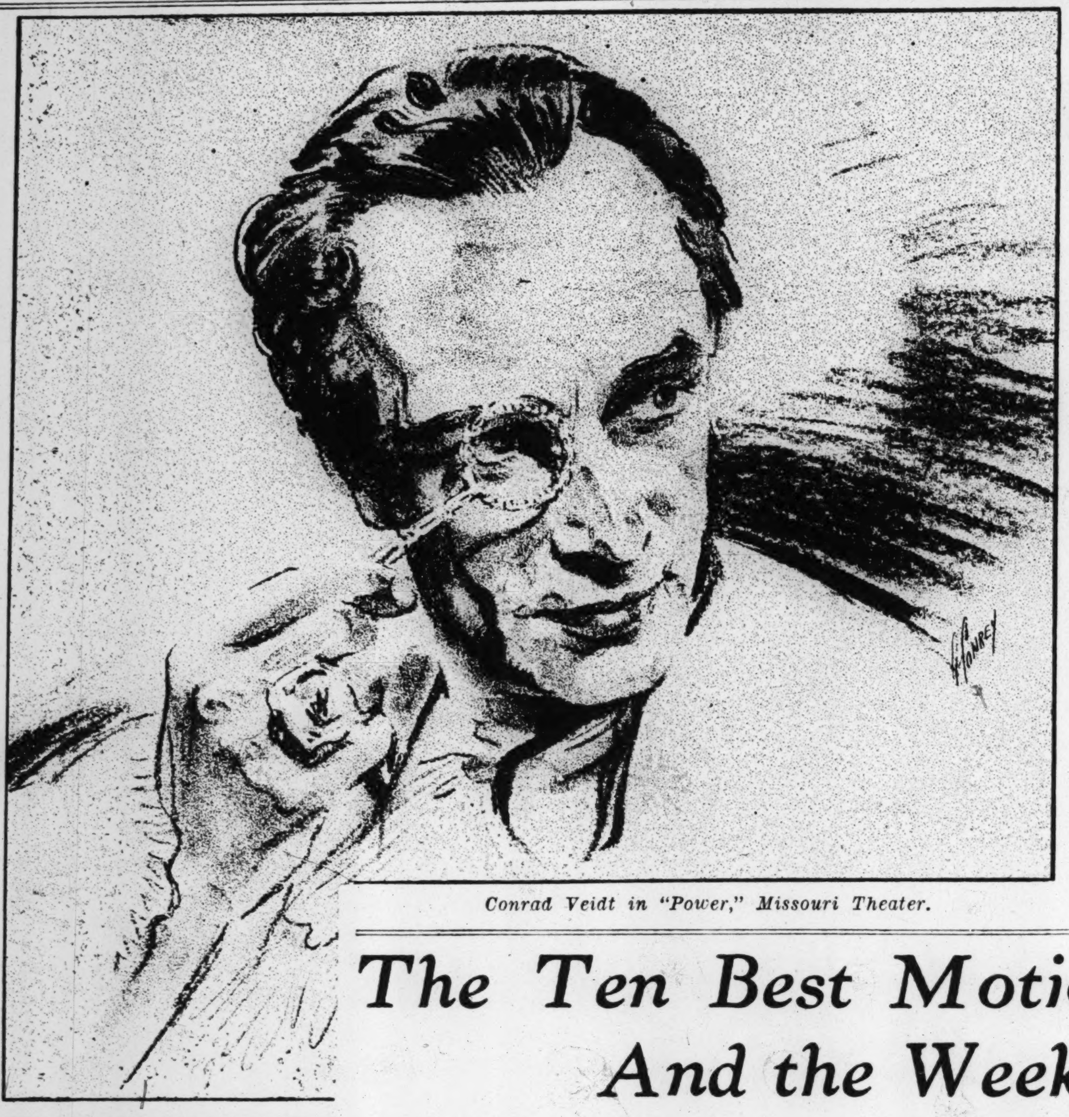
MOST of Hollywood's elite paraded up and down that pictured section of New York at one time or another. Bill Powell and Joan Blondell used it for "Lawyer Man" and Dick Barthelmess came to a tragic end at one of the corners in "The Finger Points." Automobiles in which Joe Cawthorne and Pat O'Brien rode met in a movie-made collision for "Twenty Million Sweethearts" nearby.

The jewelry store in which Bill Powell and Kay Francis operated in "The Jewel Robbery" only stood up before the flames for a minute or two and the imposing granite bank building, seen in hundreds of pictures showed that studio granite is far from fireproof.

It's all a tangled mass of plaster and wood ash now. But every big studio must have a New York street scene and the Warners will start building a new one as soon as the ruins can be carted away. But it won't be a newer and cleaner city section. Painstakingly Chinatown, the Bowery and Fifth avenue will be reconstructed to look as much like the old New York streets as possible. They will be flimsy props but while they stand up they will look like the real thing.

The Great New York fire of 1934 was pretty good while it lasted. You'll be seeing it, before long, in the movies.



Conrad Veidt in "Power," Missouri Theater.

All-Orchestral Program

RESPIGHI'S "Pines of Rome," probably the most popular of all modern creations in symphonic music, and Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" are dual features which Vladimir Golschmann and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will present at the Municipal Auditorium, Friday, at 2:30 p. m. and Saturday at 8:30 p. m.

Golschmann also has provided an interesting "first-time" number in Roger Sessions' suite "The Black Maskers." "The Black Maskers" Suite is the work of a young composer, who although born in Brooklyn, N. Y., is of New England blood, and of the New England tradition. Sessions is a graduate of Harvard, and the School of Music at Yale, and a former instructor in the music department at Smith College. After he left Smith College, the class of 1923 undertook the presentation of Andreyeff's symbolic drama, "The Black Maskers" and the instructor was invited to compose the incidental music.

"The Pines of Rome" is one of the most monumental works which Italy has contributed to the symphonic repertory. Respighi has found inspiration for a symphonic poem in the pines which are a feature of the Roman scene. The four movements suggest the life of Rome today and at the same time are dominated by the traditions of ancient Rome, while the final one, "The Pines of the Appian Way," rises to a rhythmic peak which is a celebration of the triumphant military spirit of the Roman Empire.

The complete program is:

Overture to "Coriolanus" Opus 62	Beethoven
Symphony No. 8 in B minor "Unfinished"	Schubert
I—Allegro moderato
II—Andante con moto
"Scherzo" from the music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream"	Mendelssohn
Intermission.
"Suite from "The Black Masters"	Sessions
a—Scene
b—Dirge
c—Finale.
(First St. Louis Performance).
Symphonic Poem "Pini di Roma" (The Pines of Rome")	Respighi
1—The Pines of the Villa Borghesi
II—The Pines near a Catacomb
III—The Pines of the Janiculum
IV—The Pines of the Appian Way.

Holiday Shows Start Busier Theater Season

"Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Roberta" to Be Followed by Ballet, Revue and Plays

A BUSIER theatrical season through the holidays, and after, is assured by bookings already announced and new ones made in the last week.

First to get under way, of course, will be Max Reinhardt's Shakespearean spectacle, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which opens at the Municipal Auditorium on Christmas night, for nine evening and seven matinee performances. "Roberta," the only musical comedy on tour in the United States, comes to the American on Sunday night, Dec. 30, for five nights and two matinees.

The Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, presented under the auspices of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will give three different programs at the Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 4 and 5, with a full Symphony Orchestra complement.

"As Thousands Cheer," top revue success of last season in New York, has announced that its Chicago engagement will be concluded on Jan. 5 and that it will immediately go on a tour which will include St. Louis. It is expected to play at the American.

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER is to give her impersonations at the American the week of Feb. 11 and the Abbey Players, in a repertory of Irish drama, will follow at the same house the week of Feb. 19. George M. Cohan in "Ah, Wilderness," still looks definite for January or February.

"Midsummer Night's Dream," with 18 carloads of scenery and a cast of 60 principals, will get into town tonight from Milwaukee, to be on hand for the re-carpentering of the Auditorium for the production.

Reinhardt's treatment of the Shakespeare play, with the incidental music of Mendelssohn's, is the same that he has offered for years at the Salzburg festivals in Germany and in California last summer. California trees, chemically treated to prevent deterioration, will be transported here as features of the elaborate stage set. Reinhardt, now making a movie version of the show, has been invited here for the presentation.

The principals, recruited largely from minor movie players, will appear familiar to St. Louis audiences. Arthur Pierson, who used to be here in stock company plays, has a leading role, as does Marion Schilling, former St. Louis girl. George Breakston, who usually gets sick and dies on the screen, has a greatly different opportunity as Puck.

"Roberta," which has been playing to exceptional business over its entire tour, will bring back to St. Louis an actress who was a contemporary of Weber and Fields, Lillian Russell, DeWolf Hopper, David Warfield and Marie Dressler. She is Fay Templeton, who has the role of Aunt Minnie, the modiste whose trade name is "Roberta." Miss Templeton, whose stage career began in 1869, can still claim a personal triumph in a "hit" show.

W. C. Handy, composer of "St. Louis Blues," on the stage at the Ambassador.

The Ten Best Motion Pictures of 1934 And the Week's New Films

By Colvin McPherson

BEGINNING about July every year, a movie critic allows himself the passing magnificence of selecting the 10 best pictures of the year. And along about this time, wishing to leave the desk in as good order as possible before approaching amnesia of New Year's eve, he issues the list.

As an incentive to argument, therefore, when nothing shall have been left but the merits of alcohol and anti-freeze, I submit these: "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "The Count of Monte Cristo," "Dinner at Eight," "It Happened One Night," "Little Women," "The Lost Patrol," "One Night of Love," "The Thin Man," "Twentieth Century" and "Viva, Villa!"

The winners, so to speak, are recruited from some which played in St. Louis before 1934 had its world premiere, but the selection is quite orthodox, in that the movie season, roughly considered, is from one Hallowe'en to the next.

THE listing is alphabetical, to prevent any wounded feelings should it be said that "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "One Night of Love" were the pick of the lot. Consolation prizes might also be awarded to "The Case of the Howling Dog," "Cleopatra," "Cradle Song," "Crime Without Passion," "Flying Down to Rio," "Grand Canary," "Here Comes the Navy," "House of Rothschild," "I Was a Spy," "Little Miss Marker," "Men in White," "The Old Fashioned Way," "One More River" and "The Merry Widow."

An analysis of the 10 best would show that four ("The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Dinner at Eight," "The Thin Man" and "Viva, Villa!") were from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, three ("One Night of Love," "It Happened One Night" and "Twentieth Century") from the up-and-coming Columbia organization: "Little Women" and "The Lost Patrol" from R-K-O and "The Count of Monte Cristo" by United Artists out of Reliance.

Loew's State Theater made a good deal of capital for its boast that "Loew's Has the Pictures." It played five of the 10. The Fox Theater played four and the St. Louis brought "Little Women" to Grand boulevard.

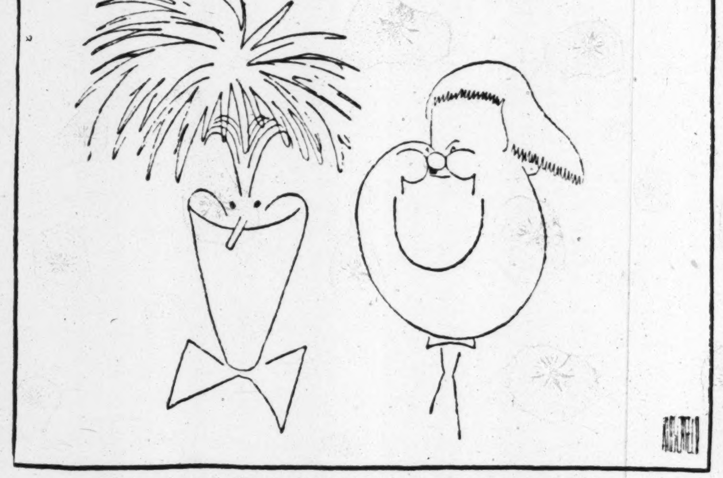
THERE can be no doubt that the last four or five months have seen a wealth of good motion pictures and that the industry has achieved all the respectability it needs. Advocates of the clean movie drive last summer are claiming credit for the improvement, but a study of the best 10 list would show many "objectionable" features, and "It Happened One Night," on which critics and exhibitors alike would agree, was not looked upon at all kindly by censors.

One big fat check-mark may be put to the credit of the clean-up. It did kill off such unlovely things as "Riptide," "The Life of Vergie Winters" and "Dr. Monica," which were stupid efforts at entertainment, regardless of subject material.

As between the so-called "adult entertainment" and those reels that are chock-full of vitamins for the kiddies, there are, as Mr. Will Hays says, "many dramatic values in life of profound interest to mature people which may be unsuitable for the young." They must be recognized.

A helpful change in policy, one which sprinkles formalin all over the place, is the new method of the advertising council of the Hays organization of producers. For more than a year it has been passing on every line of copy, layout, illustration, publicity release, photograph, poster sketch, display piece and stunt used by the 10 major companies. It is a generally admitted conclusion that movie advertising did a great deal to bring on the fumigating, and inoffensive pictures often received lurid exploitation.

The only change of great concern to the producers is one to be seen at the front door when the theater is open. The change has come. Pictures have been running two, three and four weeks over the country all this fall. It looks as if intelligence has a great future in the movies.



Laurel and Hardy in "Babes in Toyland," Loew's.

Power.

"THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD" will probably make favored lists all over the country, but I do not believe that anyone who sees "Power" at the Missouri Theater this week can fail to realize that the George Arliss picture fell short where "Power" has succeeded. "Power," a British picture, not only has fine acting and distinctive settings, it has a story to tell. The Arliss picture was scarcely more than a few frail crises. Arliss made a sly and composed financier, Conrad Veidt makes a sensitive soul whose persecution is something even his fine intelligence cannot bear. Veidt is Josef "Suss" Oppenheimer, an opulent German Jew who determines to sacrifice everything to achieve a puissance through which he may protect his people. He becomes the real ruler of the Duchy of Wurttemberg. The bold sketching of the picture, from a Lion Feuchtwanger novel, has allowed weaknesses in the man, however, which make his story a tragedy. His daughter, whose existence he has kept a secret, is discovered and kills herself to escape betrayal by the Duke. Oppenheimer's motive from then on is one of revenge. Without conscious attempt, apparently, the producers have achieved something of Shakespeare in the story. Oppenheimer's nobility rises as he is brought closer and closer to the gallows. His fate, which he accepts in the face of an all-conclusive defense he may offer, is one of the triumphant moments of the theater. "Girl O' My Dreams" is the name of the second picture—a college story which may be forgotten if seen ahead of "Power" or neglected if "Power" has proved an evening's entertainment.

Babes in Toyland.

THE Laurel and Hardy adaptation of "Babes in Toyland" is altogether charming. The Victor Herbert music and the spirit of the operetta edge aside gracefully to let a perfect pair of comics give a hilarious performance. To anyone who shudders at the thought of the movies laying hands on children's stories, "Babes in Toyland" is a genuine relief. It is an ideal children's picture and finds the common denominator to which adults like to be reduced at times. Next to Laurel and Hardy, I liked the Three Little Pigs, the droll mouse who accompanies the Cat and the Fiddle and who is more wallaby than mouse, and Old King Cole. The story loiters along and might easily come to a full stop once but goes ahead and the finish, a battle between the bogey men and the toy soldiers, is worthy of the best thrillers. "Have a Heart," with which Loew's two-times the public for just this week, is a saccharine romance involving Jean Parker, as little crippled girl, and Jimmie Dunn, nice boy suspected of burglary.

Behold My Wife.

SYLVIA SIDNEY'S perfectly-molded face (the experts are always talking about it in the fan magazines) allows her to be a clever Chinese or a good Indian at will. She looks like a prize squaw in "Behold My Wife," at the Orpheum. The story is hardly credible. Gene Raymond, son of H. B. Warner and Laura Hope Crews, gets annoyed at his family (he makes it hardly more than that) because they drive his sweetheart to suicide. "I'll show 'em," he says, and drives all the way from the big city to Arizona or some place. Thinking up a really dirty trick for his family, he marries Sylvia. But it turns out Sylvia has had a college education and she really goes over pretty big in gowns from Paris. There's a murder, which brings on the final clinch. "Silver Streak" has a melodramatic plot which may be skipped at this point, a wealth of shots of the new Burlington stream-lined train in action, some fine photographs of Boulder Dam construction.

Hat, Coat and Glove.

DEPENDABLE is the word for Ricardo Cortez, who can be put into routine Hollywood stories and give a flawless performance. He is best, probably, as professional man, although he can be a good jewel thief, gambler or newspaper columnist. In "Hat, Coat and Glove" he is a lawyer, separated from his wife, but still eager to have her come home. An involved set of circumstances puts him in the position of defending his wife's friend, John Beal, on a murder charge. The articles of apparel are evidence. Cortez comes pretty near convicting himself in a courtroom scene, but deftly wins his cases, professional and personal. "Down to Their Last Yacht" is too long for the telling. It is a kind of combination of "The Admirable Crichton," "We're Not Dressing" and what-not.

The Secret Bride.

"THE SECRET BRIDE" at the Shubert is a long and over-wrought tale about the Governor's daughter who marries the Attorney-General. The Governor is accused of accepting a bribe and everybody is in it up to his neck. Two murders and a suicide make up the list of exits. The courtroom angle is presented as a two-ring circus, with a murder trial and impeachment proceedings going on at the same time. "The Menace," a less pretentious effort, will probably be more entertaining to the regular attendance. It starts in Africa, where two men and a woman are partly to blame for a young man's death. Later an insane brother of the victim tracks the three to California. A game of Who's-It is played to reach the climax.

White Lies.

WITHOUT stopping to add up the courtroom scenes of the week (each theater appears to have its trials), two may be noted at the Ambassador in "White Lies." The other familiar film elements are an unscrupulous newspaper editor, a daughter, no mother, a young policeman in the manner of Spencer Tracy (it is Victor Jory), a murder. The stage show is a holiday party for white-haired veterans.

Many Offerings on Broadway

ADVICE from Broadway on what to see during a holiday trip there offers a wide choice of entertainment. The season has been so busy that it is even prophesied that all legitimate theaters available will be occupied by New Year's.

Musical shows are few but unanimously approved. "Anything Goes," with the happy idea of showing Victor Moore (vice-president in "Of Thee I Sing") as a gangster in clergyman's clothes, is regarded as the funniest, with "Say When" a close second. "The Great Waltz," Max Gordon's spectacle at the Rockefeller Center Theater, is the box-office leader.

"Revenge With Music," operetta with a Spanish setting, is closed temporarily because of an injury to Charles Winninger, but will reopen Christmas night. "Life Begins at 8:40," Shubert revue which got a head-start on the season, is still a highlight.

"The Children's Hour," tragedy of two school-mistresses maligned by a childish imp, has received exceptional praise from critics. "Merrily We Roll Along," reviewing the life of a successful playwright backward; "The Farmer Takes a Wife," story of Erie Canal days, and "Gold Eagle Guy," character study of a financial buccaneer, are also outstanding creations.

"Personal Appearance," satire on a motion-picture star, is the comedy leader. Other new plays with some distinction are "Page Miss Glory," "Post Road," "Dark Victory," "The Distaff Side," "Valley Forge," and "Within the Gates." "Dodsworth" and "Tobacco Road," last year's successes, are still going strong. Eva LeGalliene's company continues in repertory with "L'Aiglon" and "Cradle Song."

Sylvia Sidney in "Behold My Wife," at the Orpheum.

Bauer-Gabrilowitsch Recital

TWO of the world's greatest pianists, Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, unite in the dual recital with which the Civic Music League inaugurates its series of co-operative concerts at the Municipal Auditorium Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. Both pianists are familiar to music lovers in St. Louis—Bauer as solo recitalist and soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Gabrilowitsch in his triple role of recitalist, symphony soloist and conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

The program for the dual recital will present Mozart, Bach, Schubert, Schumann and Saint-Saens. Bauer, who began his career as a violinist, is a profound student of the musical classics and for many years was president of the Beethoven Association of America. Out of the casual association of the two artists has grown their collaboration.

Bauer has contributed largely to their joint recital by his own transposition of several works into a two-piano version. Among these are the Bach "Italian Concerto," the Franz Schubert "Andantino Varie" and "Rondo Brillant," which has been arranged especially for his own performance with Gabrilowitsch. A Schumann number, the "Two Etudes in Canon Form," was arranged for two pianos by the late Claude Debussy.

The complete program is:

Sonata in D	[illegible]
(a) Allegro
(b) Andante
(c) Allegro molto
Italian Concerto	J. S.
(a) Allegro
(b) Adagio
(c) Allegro

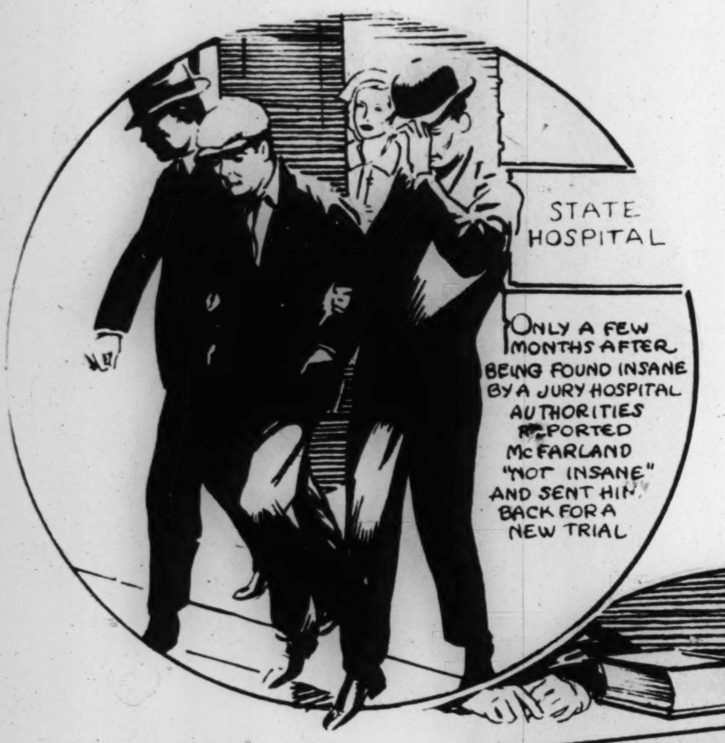
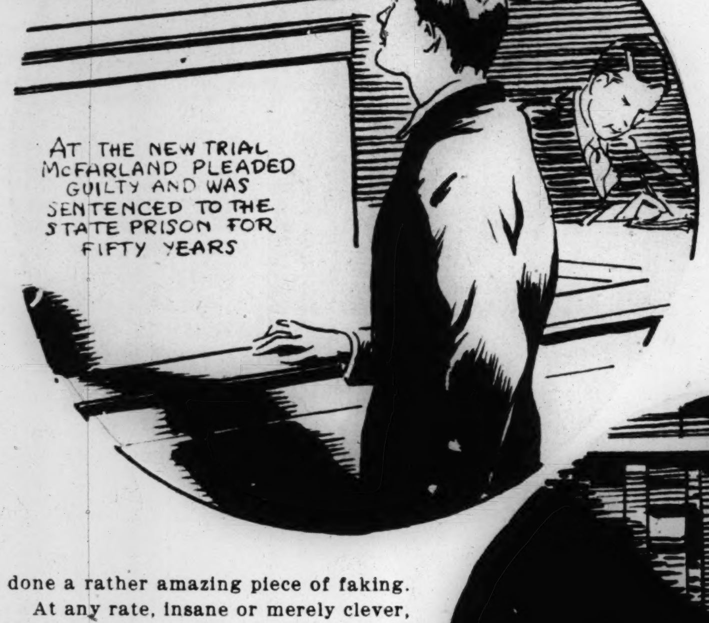
How a Confessed Murderer Proved He Was ILLEGALLY in PRISON

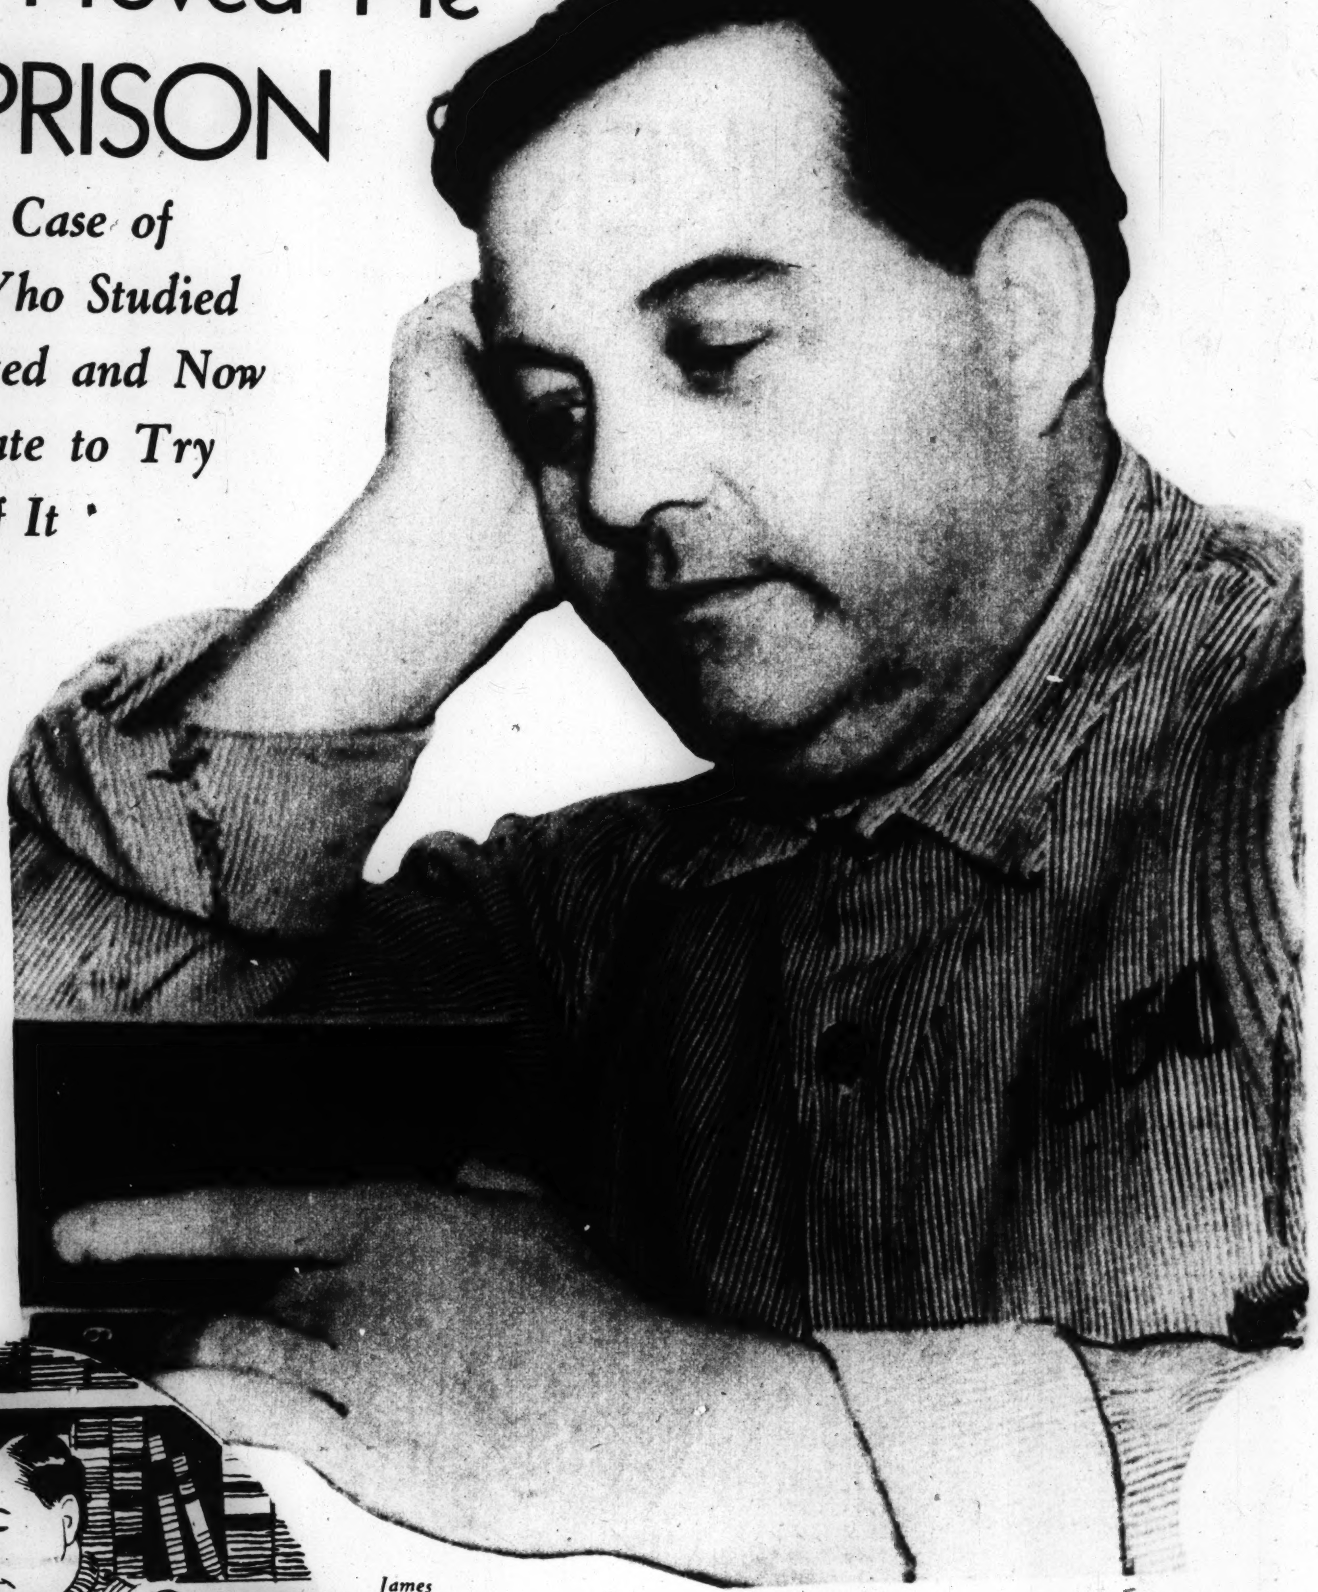
The Paradoxical Case of James McFarland Who Studied Law While Incarcerated and Now Has Forced the State to Try Him Again — If It Can Find Any Witnesses.



STATE HOSPITAL
ONLY A FEW MONTHS AFTER BEING FOUND INSANE BY A JURY HOSPITAL AUTHORITIES REPORTED McFARLAND "NOT INSANE" AND SENT HIM BACK FOR A NEW TRIAL



AT THE NEW TRIAL McFARLAND PLEADED GUILTY AND WAS SENTENCED TO THE STATE PRISON FOR FIFTY YEARS



James McFarland.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

FOLSOM, California.

THE story of James McFarland involves an amazing cluster of paradoxes. He was a day laborer who never even was graduated from grammar school, yet he is extensively educated in the law. He has been legally insane for most of his life, yet in all probability he was never insane at all. Although a confessed murderer, he seems likely to leave prison shortly, a free man, after serving half his sentence, and perhaps sue the State of California for 24 years of illegal imprisonment. Although a layman he has managed his own litigation so well that he seems likely to win his freedom on a point so obscure that most lawyers, even, would know nothing about it save for his own researches.

James McFarland's crime occurred in 1909, when he was only 24 years old. One day in September that year a Tassajara Valley rancher named Manuel Garcia was found murdered and robbed on his own ranch in Contra Costa County, Northern California. Garcia seemed to have been killed with an ax, and McFarland, who had disappeared after the body was found, was immediately suspected and sought.

A Sheriff's posse was organized and a general search of the countryside was conducted with great energy. But it took two weeks to locate the missing suspect. When they did catch him they charged him with murder in the first degree.

When the case came to trial in Superior Judge R. H. Latimer's court, McFarland's lawyer pleaded that his client, though he slew Garcia, was not guilty by reason of insanity. He claimed that McFarland was insane at the time of his arrest and at the time when he had committed the crime. The County Sanity Commission was ed in to examine the accused and nd McFarland insane.

Naturally, the State was not satis with this verdict and demanded a jury trial. Alienists were called on to testify and, strange to say, they were agreed that McFarland was real insane. There seems to have been doubt in anyone's mind, and the found accordingly. So on De ber 15, three months after the der had taken place, Judge Lati ordered that the young man be ned in the Stockton State Hospi or the Insane.

All this, of course, was properly re ed in the court records. McFar was taken to the State Hospital the case was quickly forgotten. But it was far from closed.

Only a few months later, in May, , the superintendent of the hos ordered McFarland released and back for another trial. The hos authorities entered into the rec simply the words, "Not insane." at is important, for if they had re ted that he was "cured" or "re ered," the ensuing story could not ve been written. For the court's dings had made McFarland legally sane; the hospital report had dis reed with the court records, but that d not make him sane again in the yes of the law. As a matter of fact, that is exactly what the psychiatrists had intended to say; they didn't think McFarland was insane, or that he had ver been. They thought he had done a rather amazing piece of faking.

At any rate, insane or merely clever, McFarland again appeared in Judge Latimer's court. The original charges were read again while he stood there, wondering what next.

"You have heard the charge against you," the Judge recited. "What is your plea, guilty or not guilty?"

"I plead guilty," said the prisoner.

"THEN it is the order of this court," Judge Latimer pronounced, "that you be confined in the State prison at Folsom for a period of 50 years." The young man winced as the significance of the words came home to him. Then he was led away.

When he entered prison here, McFarland grimly resolved that whatever happened to him he would be a model prisoner. He determined to obey every rule, go about his drudgery with cheerfulness, and try by every means in his power to earn a parole and get every possible credit for good behavior. With all he could do to shorten the sentence, it would be long enough. He was then 25 years old, and if he ever lived long enough to get out, he knew that he would be an old man, even if he earned his time off for good conduct.

McFarland spent his first years in prison here at hard labor. Mostly he did road work in the hot sun—and in this part of California the sun is hot, not the mild and moderate kind that is common along the coast. But through every hardship he managed to preserve a courageous spirit which gained him the admiration of his fellows and warders. After six years of hard work with pick and shovel, he won his reward. He was called into the Warden's office.

The head of the prison turned to him, a kindly gleam in his severe face. "Jim," he said, "you've done six years of your jolt. Your record's clean. You've obeyed the rules and done what you were told. How'd you like to be a trusty in the library?"

McFarland's face lit up. "I'd like it swell, Warden," he stuttered. "I—I've been a laborer all my life, you know. Not much education. I ain't read much. Maybe I could get interested in a book. It would help me do my time."

The new trusty didn't have a great deal of time every day for studying. At Folsom the prisoners are locked up every afternoon at 4:30. At 9 o'clock the lights are turned out in their cells. And this period of solitude is considerably broken up. McFarland had other difficulties, however, besides merely those of time. He did not read very fluently. He was continually running up against "hard words" which had to be looked up in the dictionary. In spite of these general difficulties of a man who has not been trained as a student, he began to do some voracious reading.

At first McFarland's reading was purely desultory; he read whatever seemed to interest him or appeal to his curiosity. Then he found the Blackstone. It was a musty old set of calf-bound law books, stuffed away on a dusty top shelf. Looking into the heavy tomes, he found little that meant anything to him. There were long, technical words, the unfamiliar legal constructions and the incomprehensible Latin phrases.

But a man who is in prison, especially if he has McFarland's attitude of resignation, develops powers which other men usually lack. McFarland had an immense fund of patience. When the idea occurred to him that these great, dull books might have something about his own case in them—that they might even give him a key to his freedom, he set about studying law with the same doggedness the fictitious Count of Monte Cristo used to carve through massive walls with a teaspoon. The task must have required incredible patience. For 18 years McFarland labored at his education, buoyed up by the tenacious hope that some day he would find something in his studies, some hint or phrase or point of view, that would enable him to win his way back into the world. By this time he had sent for all the records of his own case and had meditated on every conceivable aspect of it, sifting all the procedure and turning over every bit of evidence to try to locate some loophole. It was like a great puzzle.

And then the clew came. He was sitting alone in his cell, reading busily by the light of his single, glaring bulb. He was reading law, memorizing details, working back and forth on every sentence to digest it perfectly.

AND suddenly he had found what he was looking for, a case analogous to his own. In it a court had ruled that if a man be once declared insane, he cannot be sentenced to prison until the legal record shows that he has recovered his sanity.

McFarland buried himself in thought. When I was returned to the court, he told himself, they merely noted that I was "not insane." They said that I was faking. But they never declared me "cured" or "recovered." So I must still be legally insane.

Although he himself gradually became convinced that this legal technicality offered a plausible means of escape, McFarland was still at a loss how to revive the case so that the new angle could be brought into court. He began digging away at a furious rate to find some means whereby he could have this accomplished. He read dozens of cases where writs of habeas corpus, writs of review and other actions had been invoked to bring old cases into court again, but none of them seemed analogous to his own. It was a discouraging quest and he al-

IN THIS age of skepticism it isn't exactly unusual to have old textbook legends torn to pieces by matter-of-fact scholars. Debunking is getting to be a common motive for historical research. But even in this day of H. L. Mencken it is a little breathtaking when an historian bites off a particularly huge chunk of accepted fact and proclaims to the public that it tastes to him for all the world like gross fabrication and raw, involuntary errors.

Christopher Columbus, says the Reverend Michael Kenny, S. J., of Spring Hill College, near here, sailed for the new world armed with the maps of Irish explorers who had discovered America almost 1000 years before. Ponce de Leon didn't give a hang for the legends of a miraculous fountain of youth; he died in the cause of colonization. Captain John Smith didn't even bother to invent the fiction of his experiences with Pocahontas; he simply pirated an old tale and wrote the fake 16 years after it was supposed to have happened, because he was hard up. Jamestown, Virginia, wasn't settled in 1607 as the textbooks say, but in 1526; and not by the English but by the Spanish. Hendrik Hudson wasn't the first to discover the Hudson River; 89 years before his trip a Spaniard had sailed past Manhattan and at least as far north as Pompey Township. That paragon of chivalry, Sir Francis Drake, boasted of mistreating and torturing defenseless women and leaving them to starve with their children in a ruined island colony.

These are only a few of the contentions of Father Kenny, established Catholic scholar, in his new book, "The Romance of the Floridas," just published by the Bruce Publishing Company, New York. Father Kenny's latest book has the ecclesiastical sanction of Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch of Milwaukee.

The Irish explorer whom Columbus is supposed to have followed was the bold St. Brendan. Grammar school textbooks have usually spoken of Columbus as if he had sailed into the unknown West in 1492 endowed only with a firm belief that the world was round and that if he kept sailing westward he would reach India or the East Indies. Father Kenny shows him in a different light. His researches and those of several other scholars indicate that Brendan, an Irish mariner anxious to spread the gospel, sailed from Kerry's Headlands in about 535 A. D. He returned, describing "a lovely land with extensive meads decked with flowers and laved by many rivers; of thickly-set trees, fruit-laden, swaying before scented winds in a light that always shone." He explored the country "in every direction, and at last came to a great river which he was unable to cross." Recalling the early missions to Iceland and Greenland, Father Kenny comes to the following conclusion:

"The stories of St. Brendan's voyages had a wide vogue in pre-Columban days, and 'Brendan's Island' on ancient maps was seen and noted by Columbus, as was also the Irlan-a-Migla, or greater Ireland, the title applied by the Vikings to some of their early discoveries. . . ."

Father Kenny also believes that St. Brendan was the almost legendary white man who, "with a great cross fronting his girded mantle, preached the gospel of the Cross in Mexico, and whose promise that a successor would return in the fullness of days seemed realized to Montezuma in the advent of Cortez's white Conquistadores. . . ."

As to Ponce de Leon, whom conventional histories describe as setting sail in search of a magic fountain of youth, into which a man was said to be able to dip himself and gain eternal youth, Father Kenny is even more drastic in his debunking. After years of research he comes to the following conclusions:

"THERE is absolutely no historic evidence that this 'Fountain of Youth' story, which had been legendary in many lands and ages, had influenced Ponce de Leon in seeking a patent for the first official 'capitulation' of 1512, nor in the second of 1514, nor in his own letters and writings, concerning his own expeditions of 1513 and 1521, is there any mention whatsoever of this marvelous fountain. Its elaborations are first found in Herrera, who is wont to embellish his narrative with marvels of fictional adornment; nor would credulity receptive of such fictions accord with the career and character of Ponce de Leon." Father Kenny's own narrative is somewhat as follows:

Juan Ponce de Leon, of a noble family with royal antecedents, landed on the Florida mainland, somewhere near the modern St. Augustine, on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1513. In Spanish the name for Easter Sunday is Feast of Flowers, Pasqua Florida. Since the land he had discovered was a riot of flowers, he christened it, with double aptness, La Florida.

Ponce de Leon, who had accompanied Columbus on his second voyage, is described by a contemporary as "a man of recognized valor and experience." He was a supporter of the Spanish authority in Hispaniola, colonized Puerto Rico and was appointed its governor by King Charles V of Spain. When Diego, the son of Christopher Columbus, was appointed to succeed him as governor of Puerto Rico, he was rich, middle-aged and respected. Nevertheless he decided to leave his wife and children in San Juan, the capital he had founded, and go north to explore a large island of which the Indians had spoken.

"He was probably familiar with the fountain fables of the Lucayan Indians of the Bahamas," writes Father Kenny, "but this would have no determining influence on the sober judgment which this experienced navigator and practical explorer and colonizer demonstrated at every emergency."

When, in 1511 he petitioned King Charles V for authority to discover and colonize "the island of Beminy" (later referred to as Biminy), his purpose was to found and rule a colony and to Christianize the natives. In 1521, while colonizing the western coast of Florida, which he still believed to be a great island, his party were attacked by a fierce horde of Caloosa Indians. While leading his men against them he was wounded, and his men were forced to set sail for Havana. He died of his wounds and was buried in San Juan, Puerto Rico, leaving a deathbed statement that he had been motivated by missionary zeal on his Florida expedition.

Father Kenny claims that the Captain John Smith story is untrue from the ground up. The old version of the story, founded on Captain Smith's own report, is that this redoubtable colonist was captured by the Indian chief, Powhatan, condemned to death, and saved by Powhatan's daughter, Pocahontas, as the sentence was about to be executed.

According to Father Kenny, this story was stolen bodily from the accounts of a Spaniard, Juan Ortiz, who was discovered and rescued by Hernando de Soto in 1528, shortly before De Soto himself met his death. While searching for the vanished chief of the Ucita Indians, De Soto came across a naked, tatooed white man, who ran toward his party shouting for protection when his Indian companions ran away. This Juan Ortiz was the last survivor of the Panfilo de Narvaez expedition of some 15 years before and a member of a prominent Seville family.

"Captured 12 years before De Soto found him, by Hirriga, the vanished chief of the Ucita whom De Soto was now seeking, Ortiz," according to Father Kenny's account, "was bound to stakes over a lighted fire when Hirriga's daughter took pity on him and his life was saved at her supplications. He was kept, however, in cruel bondage by day and sent at night to their burial grounds to guard the corpses from the wolves. Once a wolf carried off a newly-buried child, and though Ortiz killed the animal and rescued the body, Hirriga sentenced him to death to appease the outraged spirit.

"FAILING in her new supplications that his life be spared, the Princess had Ortiz spirited away to the Chief Mococo, her fiance, who protected him until the arrival of De Soto, 11 years later."

Father Kenny goes on to say that the Princess lost her fiance by her merciful act, but that there is nothing in the story to correspond with Smith's alleged marriage with Pocahontas. Smith's tale, written 96 years later, is an embellishment of the Ortiz story, Father Kenny contends. Strangely enough nothing was said of Powhatan and Pocahontas in his first account, except that they asked him to release to them his Indian prisoners. Unfortunately the name of Ortiz's Princess is nowhere recorded, though it is said that De Soto made a special trip to Chief Mococo to thank him for his kindness to Ortiz and to promise him friendship and protection.

While it in no way discredits the generally accepted story of the founding of Jamestown in 1607, Father Kenny's story of the founding of the original Spanish town on that site is of considerable historic interest. According to this, the original founder was Lucas Vasquez de Ayllon, a knight from Toledo who left a judgeship to become an explorer and colonist.

The settlement which De Ayllon founded on the banks of the James River was named San Miguel de Gualdape when the Spanish party landed in 1526, 81 years before the arrival of the English. They built a chapel and houses almost as soon as they landed and Father Kenny credits them with building the first ship ever built by Europeans on the mainland of North America.

But the colony De Ayllon had founded was destined to be a failure. These southerners found the Virginia climate intensely cold. Supplies were scanty and there was much sickness. After the winter 150 half-frozen, half-starved survivors headed back to San Domingo. The same year Lucas Vasquez de Ayllon died and was buried at sea.

It was during the same period in Spanish exploring, Father Kenny says, that other adventurers discovered the Hudson River—89 years before the arrival of Hendrik Hudson, whose three-hundredth anniversary was celebrated in New York in 1909. The river's first European name was Rio de San Antonio, a verbal relic of perhaps as many as three Spanish expeditions to New York and Pennsylvania.

The proofs? Father Kenny cites first of all the Pompey Stone in Onondaga County, New York, a monolith bearing the inscription "Leo de Lon, VI, 1520."

Then there is the ruin of what is supposed to have been a Spanish fort on Castle Island near Albany and some ramparts on Tioga River. These and other bits of evidence indicate to Father Kenny that De Lon's, Ayllon's or Gomez's expeditions—if not all of them—reached and penetrated the northeastern coast in the early sixteenth century.

Father Kenny's information about Sir Francis Drake comes as less of a surprise to those who are at all acquainted with the character of English society in the glamorous days of Elizabeth. Drake, it will be remembered, earned his knighthood by his epic circumnavigation of the globe in the Golden Hind during the years from 1577 to 1580. Aside from his fame as a brave navigator, however, modern historians regard him as little more than a very picturesque, licensed pirate, whose depredations gained a little color of respectability because they were directed against his country's enemies.

In the eyes of modern humanitarians, however, he is damned in his own words by the report which he sent to Queen Elizabeth in 1593. Seven years earlier he had attacked a Spanish settlement at San Juan de Pines and captured a Spanish captain. Here is how Father Kenny quotes him as describing the aftermath of the bloody affair.

"Having set up a gallows, we hanged him in a chain by the middle and afterwards consumed with fire gallows and all. The good God was most merciful in that He permitted us to kill 18 Spaniards. . . . We further wasted the country and brought it to utter ruin. . . . Having in mind the merciful disposition of your gracious Majesty, we did not kill the women and children, but having destroyed upon the island all their provisions and property, and taken away all their weapons, we left them to starve."

Father Kenny reprints some further comments about this from the privateer's report:

"The women were ungracious," Drake wrote, "perchance from their husbands having been killed before their eyes, and wickedly refused to answer until after we had burned a hole with a hot iron through the tongue of the most venomous." So much says Father Kenny for the chivalry of an Elizabethan hero!

FATHER KENNY tells the story of a hardened Spanish soldier called on by the Indians to work miracles in order to prove that white men were really gods. Father Kenny quotes one of them, Cabeza de Vaca, as being very much astonished when his faith healing worked successfully and created a favorable impression on the Indians.

He had been brought an Indian who was ostensibly dead and told to revive him. After reciting the usual prayers and breathing upon the man and rubbing his arms, the Spaniard was amazed to find that he awoke and seemed cured.

"I am not a saint, nor a holy priest nor even a lay brother," the astonished soldier wrote afterwards. "I am only a soldier and a miserable sinner. O, sinner that I am, is it not most likely that the man was only in a trance, and my breathings and rubbings chafed back the life into his heart?" And thus Father Kenny quotes from one of the few miracle workers who debunked their own miracles.

This historian who tells so many surprising tales and knocks out the pedestals from under so many favorite schoolroom heroes, isn't a writer who can be taken lightly. His record as student, educator and author is imposing.

Mrs. Marie Curtis' Suit Against the Indiana Ice King's Estate and Why She Believes That She and Elmer Manning Are His Unacknowledged Children.

A woman got off the train with a baby in her arms.

VINCENNES, Indiana.

THE 9 o'clock train from Evansville stopped at Vincennes station and a woman who had traveled in the day coach descended to the platform, holding closely in her arms a well-wrapped baby, for the night was cold. On her arm she carried a basket.

Hurrying along the platform she dropped her handkerchief. A man picked it up and returned it to her. As she thanked him the station lights fell on her face and something that he saw there appealed to his protective interest.

"The way is dark," he said, "are you not afraid to go alone?" But she said she was only going a little piece, and hurried away.

The woman went far that winter night in 1895 to a cigar factory neighborhood in North Vincennes. Edward Neff and his family lived in the neighborhood, in a cottage there, at Fourth and Depot streets. Late that night Mrs. Neff was awakened by an infant's cries. She called her husband. They struck a light and on the doorstep they found a baby in a basket. . . . In the darkness across the street a woman waited and watched until she saw the light in the Neff cottage and the door opened and the baby taken inside, and then she went away.

Now Mrs. Marie Curtis, who was the doorstep baby, is contesting the will of Lawrence Ebner, ice capitalist of Western Indiana and Eastern Illinois, claiming that he was her father, and a man known as Elmer Manning, who is said to be her brother, is joined with her in the court proceeding, claiming that he is the son of the late Lawrence Ebner. On January [illegible] they will go into court here and offer proof that they are the children of Lawrence Ebner and Mayme Baker, born before Mayme Baker became the wife of Ebner.

The baby left on the Neff doorstep was a forlorn waif, poorly nourished and ill. The neighbors who came to see it looked at its wizened face and shook their heads, wondering whether it would live. Mrs. Neff had children of her own and did not see how she could keep it, but the women of the neighborhood took counsel together and agreed, concerning the matter, that a certain responsibility rested on them and that, although the baby that had come among them had been invited, they would not send it away. Mrs. Harvey Andress said she would take it and the other women promised to help her care for it.

For a few months Mrs. Andress kept the waif, but she found it too great a care and the neighborhood women hardly knew what to do next. Then Mrs. Charlie Bamber took a hand. Her husband, who was a Baltimore & Ohio engineer, had told her that Joe Schmidt, when they had their beer and lunch together at a little place across from Schmidt's cigar factory, was always saying he wished he had a baby at his house. And Mrs. Bamber, in her determined way, said she was going to see to it that the baby got into the family where it belonged, a saying that was not cryptic to the neighborhood women, who thought they knew who the baby's mother was and who its father was.

Mrs. Bamber went to see Mrs. Schmidt, who was Lawrence Ebner's sister, and Mrs. Schmidt said if they thought it was her duty to take the baby, she would take it. Mrs. Bamber, by all accounts, was a convincing person. Anyway, Mrs. Schmidt took the baby and Joe Schmidt had his wish. After that he spent less time with Charlie Bamber and his other cronies and more time with Mrs. Schmidt and the baby. They were rewarded, both of them, for Marie grew into a beautiful child and was greatly beloved by the couple who had been childless before she came. There came a time when Lawrence Ebner's parents, attracted to the child, wanted to take her into their own home, but Joe Schmidt, being a man of positive speech, said he'd be "damned" if they could have her.

The child, as an infant, had been christened at the historic old cathedral as Marie Andress, but when the Schmidts took her they gave her their name, and she grew to womanhood in Vincennes, known as Marie Schmidt. Until she was 8 years old she supposed she was their child. Then, one day at school, there was a quarrel with a playmate and Marie found out what the other children knew, for the other girl said: "You don't need to be so smart, Marie Schmidt, for you ain't got your own papa and mamma. You are Mayme Baker's child."

MARIE went to Joseph Schmidt about it, for it was to him that she always went when she was in trouble—they were such good pals—and he said: "Well, I'll tell you how it was, Marie, we found you on the doorstep, but that doesn't make any difference with us." And Marie said it didn't make any difference with her either, and Joseph Schmidt was proud of her for taking it that way.

Now Marie Schmidt was 18 and she had a sweetheart, David Miller. He wanted to marry her and she told him he would have to talk to Father Schmidt first. He went to see Father Schmidt, who deemed it his duty to tell Miller everything. He brought from his strong box a faded newspaper clipping that had been kept by one of the women of the cigar factory neighborhood and had come to them, along with the baby, as a sort of validation. It told about the woman who had arrived on the 9 o'clock Evansville train 18 years before and about the baby that had been found on the Neff doorstep. "That was Marie," he said. "If you still want her you can have her."

David Miller stood up very straight and said all of that made no difference to him.

"I want Marie," he said.

"Then take her," said Joseph Schmidt.

Mother Schmidt cried and carried on. She was willing for David Miller to have Marie, but she did not want to have her go away. So it was arranged for Marie and her husband to live with them.

Two children were born to Mrs. Miller and when they heard something from other children and asked their mother about it, she told them.

While Mrs. Schmidt lived, nothing was ever said about Marie's parentage. "It hurt her," says Marie, now twice widowed and the mother of four children, and she adds: "It was a matter of holding up the family name."

Elmer Manning.

Miller died and after a time Mrs. Miller was married to Edward Curtis. With her second husband she continued to live at the Schmidt home. In his later years Joseph Schmidt was blind. Mrs. Curtis attended him devotedly. They had long talks together and she declares he told her things that she did not at the time fully understand. Once Lawrence Ebner was visiting him and Schmidt said: "Whatever you do, look after Marie," and Ebner said he would.

Not until after Ebner's death, January 1, this year, was Mrs. Curtis told that "Ebner was her father."

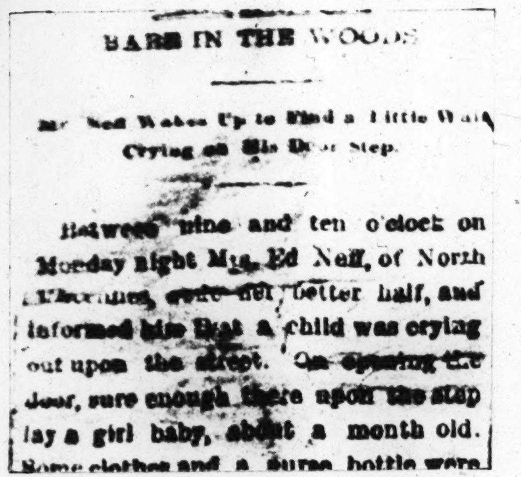
She had always called Lawrence Ebner Uncle Lawrence. After Schmidt's death she was guided by Ebner's advice in her affairs. She had never doubted that Ebner's wife was her mother. The women met in their homes and socially, for they belonged to the same church and the same clubs. They called each other "Mayme" and "Marie." No word was ever spoken about relationship. "We were matter-of-fact about it," says Mrs. Curtis now. "It was simply something that we could not talk about."

Something might have been said before Mrs. Ebner died, but her death was sudden. She had just returned to her home from a church affair of some kind and died as she was entering the house.

Ebner had become one of the outstanding men of Western Indiana in business and civic affairs. Following the death of his father and an older brother, he had come into full control of the ice and cold storage company founded by his father, which had grown until there were branches in half a dozen Indiana and Illinois cities.

Through the years Mrs. Curtis had cherished the clipping that was given to her first husband by Joseph Schmidt. Against the possibility that she might die before Mrs. Ebner, she wrote on the margin:

"This babe was me, left by Mayme Baker, now Mrs. Lawrence Ebner. She herself has always denied it, but her sister, Vi, has told me all. When I die please show this to Mayme so she will be convinced that I have never lived all these years without knowing the truth."



BABE IN THE WOODS

Mr. Neff Wakes Up to Find a Little Waif Crying on His Door Step.

Between nine and ten o'clock on Monday night Mrs. Ed Neff, of North [illegible] better half, and informed him that a child was crying out upon the street. On opening the door, sure enough there upon the step lay a girl baby, about a month old. Some clothes and a nurse bottle were Newspaper clipping of the story, which appeared at the time of the baby's abandonment.

Within a few months after the death of his first wife, Ebner married Miss Aline Robinson, secretary of the Vincennes Chamber of Commerce. The day before they started on a Mediterranean trip Ebner made his will. A short time after they returned he died. After his death Mrs. Curtis heard rumors. One was that Ebner had left her $20,000 by his will. Friends who before had refrained from speaking now asked her if, in the event that Ebner had not provided for her, she would contest the will.

Mrs. Curtis had always understood that her Aunt Vi (now Mrs. Richard Huff of St. Louis), knew who her father was. After Ebner's funeral, Mrs. Curtis said to her: "If you know anything, now is the time to talk." Mrs. Huff told her what she has since told in the form of a deposition. When she had finished, Mrs. Huff said: "I have something else to tell you. Elmer is your brother. He too belongs to Lawrence and Mayme."

Then she told Mrs. Curtis the story of Elmer Manning, whom she had reared and to whom she had given her name. Her story was that a year or two after Marie was found on the doorstep, when Mrs. Huff was Mrs. Smith Manning, Mayme Baker and Lawrence Ebner, youngest son of the wealthy John Ebner, ice manufacturer, came to her home at North Little Rock, Ark., and made arrangements for her to take care of Mayme Baker's second baby.

"If Elmer is my brother," said Mrs. Curtis, "we will fight together for our rights."

So, on May 1, 1934, in the Circuit Court of Knox County, Indiana, there was filed by Attorneys A. J. and D. H. Padgett the suit of Marie Curtis and Elmer W. Manning, styling themselves the sole and only children of Lawrence A. Ebner, against Aline Ebner, widow and executrix; St. Meinard's College, Margaret Lee, Rachael Schaller, Georgia Rose Hatcher and the John Hancock Life Insurance Co., praying that the will of Lawrence A. Ebner be set aside and declared null and void on the ground that Ebner, when the will was made, was an invalid and of unsound mind and under undue influence of others.

The will, which did not mention Marie Curtis or Elmer Manning, left the household goods to his second wife, 60 shares of preferred stock of the Ebner Ice and Cold Storage Co. to St. Meinard's College to be applied to the education of priests; to Margaret Lee, niece, 200 shares; to Rachael Schaller, niece, 200 shares; to Georgia Rose Hatcher, niece, 100 shares; to Mrs. Ebner, first mortgage bonds of the company, par value $32,500, the home at Perry and Fourth streets and a business block, all the common stock of the company, income from two $10,000 life insurance policies, and the residue of the estate.

The deposition of Mrs. Viola Huff, which has been filed in court, recites that her sister, Mayme, told her that when her first baby was born at an Evansville hospital, she left it on the porch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neff, in the early part of 1890, and that Lawrence Ebner was the father of the child.

About April 1, 1896, she deposed, Lawrence Ebner and Mayme came to her home in Little Rock, Ark., and made arrangements for her to care for another infant of which Ebner said he was the father. They intended to get married in a short time, she quoted him as saying, but did not want his parents to know. She kept the boy, she said, until he was 18 years old, and gave him the name of Elmer Manning.

About four months after the second baby was born, Mrs. Huff said in her deposition, she heard that Lawrence and Mayme had been married and went to see them at Seymour, Ind., taking the baby with her. Continuing her deposition, she said:

"I SAID to Lawrence in the presence of Mayme that he couldn't deny that Elmer belonged to him nor that he was Elmer's father, that he looked so much like him. Lawrence said: 'No, I don't deny it and Elmer does resemble me.' He said: 'I don't deny him and I can't deny him. I am his father.'

"Then I said: 'Why don't you take him in your home and raise him in your home?' He said he couldn't do that on account of his people, that he was afraid it would cause trouble.

"I told them I thought they ought to take both children, Marie and Elmer, and raise them in their own home and give him a name.

"Lawrence said he would be glad if he could take the child and raise it in his own home but that he didn't think his people would stand for it, and that he thought his sister, Mrs. Schmidt, had become so attached to Marie that she wouldn't want to give her up.

"When Mayme died I came to Vincennes and I said: 'Lawrence, have you made any provision for Elmer, so that he will be properly cared for in the event of your death, and he said: 'I have, and Elmer will be well provided for.' "

It is something more than the Ebner estate that Mrs. Curtis is fighting for. Under Indiana law, marriage after the birth of a child makes the birth legitimate. That is the heritage she covets most, for herself and for her children.

New Flood of Girl Spies Unloosed in Europe

PARIS.

"ONE HUNDRED arrested in Budapest spy round-up" . . . "Swiss expel German" . . . "Italian courts convict 29 of espionage" . . . "Russia executes eight, imprisons 15" . . . "La Belle Sophie sentenced" . . . "Spies seek stratosphere secrets" . . . "Alleged spy attempts suicide" . . . "Suspect espionage, expel German nudists"——

Every day or so, now, one reads news of spies. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, Americans, are held here, implicated in an international ring in which 29 arrests were made in France and others in Finland. In the third week of November, three Persian officers, one at an arms plant in Switzerland and two at a Krupp factory in Sweden, killed themselves. In this hectic atmosphere of espionage and counter-espionage, but one inference was clear—each had been duped by some silken espionne.

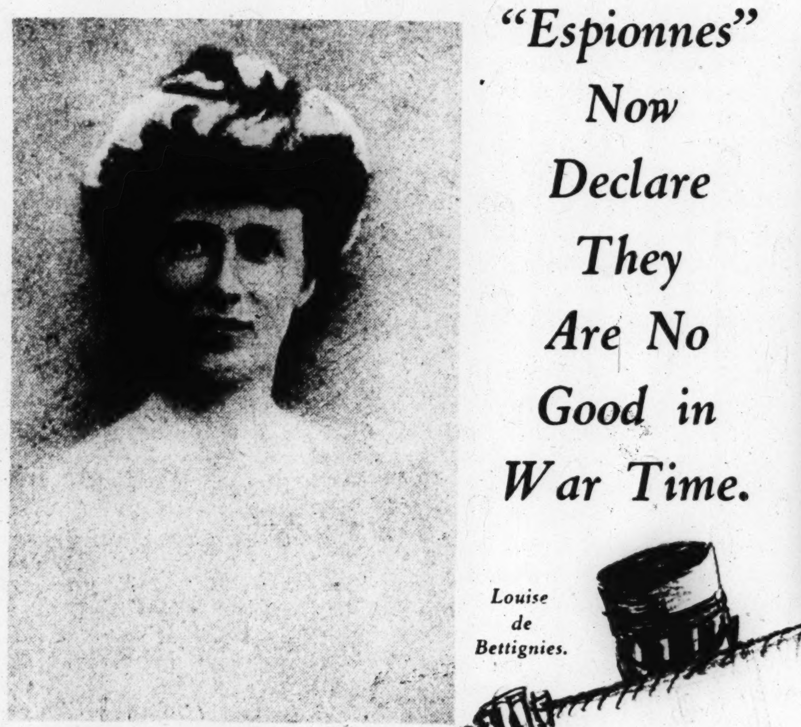
There's peace now in Europe. But with peace goes the planning of fortifications, the invention of new weapons the ordering of munitions. Therein lies the opportunity for the lip-stick strategy of the lady spy, and evidently the call has gone out along the tango trails for young women of striking profile, willing to flirt with men and danger and capable of handling both.

Diplomats and journalists of every capital in Europe concede that the Continent is over-run with a new flood of espionnes, but, as disclosures long after the world war throw a new light on the value of girl spies in that conflict, one wonders why. Perhaps they are more effective in time of peace. It may require no less finesse now to trip up an Oriental in Europe for war planes and take away his blueprints, but certainly there's less strain on the nerves.

And certainly the wartime exploits of the espionnes, as revalued in a vast amount of authentic material now coming to light, seem to have been much less profitable for the nations at war than for fiction and the films. The debunking process has extended beyond their military adventures to the amorous. Take Mata Hari—she was too fat to dance!

The story of this Dutch "Danseuse Rouge," with her amber-bronze skin, sybylline ways, black magic and Oriental lures which caused the divorce of a French War Minister, is one of the war's most cherished legends.

The lowdown on the Mata Hari case, as a French writer, Paul Allard, has at last exposed it, is that she was actually on the payroll of the French and German espionnage services, and possibly the British also. She was working them rather than working for them. As a courtesan above all else, since her girth interfered with her public career, she traveled back and forth between the capitals, tattling to one lover what the last one had told her. And they watched their tongues when they talked to her. They all guessed that she was "working" for the others, but they hoped that some day she would let something of importance slip out. German spy chiefs paid her, but the money was probably for personal debts. As a spy she was a dud; as a grafter she let nothing get by. If she hadn't offended Ledoux, chief of the French espionage service, one of her own bosses, one day—but both are dead and no one will ever know what happened between them. It wasn't any sentimental business. She was forty-one and looked fifty, and her state of health was anything but poetic.



Louise de Bettignies.

Marthe Richard.

A real espionne of the purest water was a scholarly French girl, Louise de Bettignies, of Lille, born in 1880, Oxford graduate and governess, speaking English, German, Italian.

The British Intelligence service picked her out of some refugees at Folkestone, noting her unusual intelligence and qualifications. At their demand, she slipped back into occupied France in the early part of 1915, and organized a vast network of spies. At times she had more than a hundred dependable persons reporting German train and troop movements to the front. She compiled long and precise reports and risked her life scores of times smuggling them into Holland, with different disguises and always with false German pass cards. Later she made her way across Belgium, traveling by day, with 3000 words in microscopic characters photographed on a coat of invisible gelatine on her eyeglasses. Still later, British planes dropped parachute crates of carrier pigeons on a country house she frequented, and the pigeons would carry her reports to their dovecote in England.

Unfortunately, when the Germans captured her a year later, she had a crisis of nerves, due to fear and fatigue. She led them directly to a French chemist who had secretly done all her coding and technical work. He escaped by a miracle. In prison she fell into the hands of a stool pigeon and gave away her closest associates. She died in a German prison in November, 1918.

A wealthy and well educated young German woman, Maria Lebendall, married to a Spanish officer named de Gimeno-Sanchez, was probably the most capable German secret agent sent to France during the war, but her career ended tragically and quickly. Senora de Gimeno-Sanchez went to Nice in 1915 and began to smuggle out reports of French naval and transport movements in the Mediterranean, via Barcelona.

She confessed everything to a French woman stool pigeon who posed as a German agent, especially sent to help her. She was shot at Marseilles on January 18, 1917, a victim of her imprudence.

A little French actress, Maroussia Destrelle, attached to the Theatre des Mathurins of Paris, got an engagement as a pseudo French-Swiss in Germany in 1916 and sent some reports from munitions cities. The Germans suspected her but too late. On her return to the Geneva base, a German, posing as an actor, invited her for a moonlight ride in a rowboat on the lake. Unwisely, she accepted. As they passed the present site of the League of Nations he leaped and stabbed her to death.

Almost unique—for she can actually be found in flesh and blood today—was a young French war widow, Marthe Richard, afterwards Crompton, known as "The Lark."

Gay, daring, beautiful, twenty-one and an air pilot when war broke out, she lost her husband at the front a few weeks later. Applying to Captain Ledoux, French counter-espionage chief, for some perilous service, he sent her to Spain, a key point, for German submarines were raiding from the Spanish coasts, German agents stirring up trouble in Morocco and paralyzing munition plants.

She threw herself in the path of Baron von Krohn, German naval attache at Madrid, and lived in his intimacy for eighteen months. "The Lark" was a "double," getting him (retarded) information from France, actually supplied by the French War Ministry, and at the same time getting information for France.

For Von Krohn she opened a beauty shop, called the "Lark's Mirror," where the naval attache could look over a fancy clientele and pick out some likely ones for spying in France.

Through her Ledoux cleverly discovered the German code. He supplied her with correct but obsolete military information for Von Krohn, putting in names of towns, ships and depots which could not be changed into synonymous words. The naval attache shot this information to Berlin over the radio at once. The Eiffel Tower picked it up. Knowing positively that these names were in the German messages, French experts worked through double and triple transposition systems until the code was known. And for months and months they read every word that the German Embassy in Madrid sent to Berlin, including an order to pay Mata Hari 15,000 pesetas.

Ledoux pulled "The Lark" out of Madrid a year and a half later for the same thing that befalls all "doubles" —he feared she was becoming too friendly with the enemy — but soon after his death a year ago she received the Legion of Honor "for extraordinary services to her country."

But "The Lark" was an exception. Among the records of hundreds and hundreds of girl spies used by the different armies, one can hardly find a dozen authentic records of accomplishment. Most of them cracked at some crucial moment. The strain was too intense. Latin women were too temperamental, Teutons too much the opposite. The very best of them fell into traps set by mere men. The gay but dangerous young Austrian and Hungarian noblewomen who glide through fiction never existed. If they had, their chiefs would have kept them at headquarters to while away dull hours.

Then, this correspondent asked a noted espionage officer, why bother with them at all?

"IT'S tradition. It's de rigueur. It's the perquisite of the profession. It's a pretext to put one's past, present and prospective girl friends, and the girl friends of superior officers, politicians and what not—on the payroll, and, in a few rare cases, to put an old one on the spot.

"Imagine a spy shot without a flock of nightingales—such heresy would ruin the chief at once! Besides, the nation pays for their services, lingerie, lunches, makeup and taxis—and she needs consolation."

"Consolation?"

"The chief has a hard life. [illegible] offensive breaks through he ge[illegible] credit, if it breaks down he hol[illegible] sack. Then 75 per cent of his [illegible] turn out to be in the enemy's [illegible] at least 95 per cent are fan[illegible] liars, and in the end, 100 per [illegible] including the chief, go cuckoo."

"But won't his nightingale [illegible] time have to cross the line into en[illegible] country?"

"Not if she has youth and a [illegible] Only if she loses her freshness, [illegible] temper, and the boss wants a free[illegible] for a new flame."

"But the espionnes who do [illegible] one-way ticket across the lines [illegible] do they think?"

"They don't have time to [illegible] even if they know how. The [illegible] knows women, or he wouldn[illegible] chief. He dazzles them with s[illegible] lot of new clothes—on expense [illegible] count, of course—that the qu[illegible] never occurs to them."

"But when one of them faces [illegible] ing squad—won't she suspect the [illegible] has handed her a hot one?"

"Perhaps, if she's exceptional. [illegible] it's too late, then."

Mysterious Eugenie Cedarholm
DECLARED LEGALLY DEAD

Edward Lawrence Hall.

Eugenie Cedarholm.

August Cedarholm, Eugenie's father.

NEW YORK.

THE State of New York declared Eugenie Cedarholm legally dead the other day and thus pigeonholed one of the most baffling disappearances in its police annals. Although morally certain that the young Swedish boarding house proprietress was murdered, authorities have never succeeded in turning up the slightest trace of her. The woman simply vanished.

Wasting away the few remaining years of his life within the gray walls of Sing Sing is the one man who, authorities believe, could draw aside the veil from the mystery. He is Edward Lawrence Hall, a tall, silver-haired man in his seventies. Hall, a boarder in the Cedarholm establishment, was the person last seen with her. He lived with her for a time on Long Island. He was arrested more than a year after her disappearance and sentenced to 20 years for forging the missing woman's name. Repeated questioning merely bring the insistent reply that the woman is still alive and that to reveal her whereabouts would expose her to her "enemies." The convict goes about his prison tasks blithely, apparently content to die within the penitentiary gates and take his secret with him. Meanwhile, the State has disposed of Eugenie Cedarholm's [illegible] estate.

was an oddly assorted crowd of ders—sailors, Orientals, jobless erers, foreigners—that made up the clientele of the high-ceiled Vic- n brownstone house at 338 Scher- rn street, Brooklyn. Much to the regret of her hard-ed boarders, Mrs. Cedarholm died in the summer of 1927, duly and legally bestowing her possessions on Eugenie, who was then 26 years old. There were bank deposits of $8000, the house, which was appraised at $9000, and the ground, which was valued at $17,000. It was with real relief that the paying patrons received assurance a few days after the funeral that the establishment would be continued under the management of the daughter.

"A month later Jerge was murdered as he sat in his automobile in the heart of Times Square, Manhattan, chatting with a woman."

Appearing at dinner, Eugenie told her hearers: "I will continue as your landlady, for a while, at least—until I make up my mind what to do."

A month later Jerge was murdered as he sat in his automobile in the heart of Times Square, Manhattan, chatting with a woman. As the shots thudded into his torso, the woman fled. Some said the woman was Eugenie Cedarholm, but this was never proved.

JERGE'S killers were never caught. Police chalked the murder up to warfare over the illicit dope traffic, and they may have been right.

Hall danced attendance on the new proprietress with increasing ardor. The ill-assorted pair made the rounds of the night clubs and dance halls and spent many week-ends in the Adirondacks. When they returned from their jaunts, no one dared question where they had been or what had transpired. Hall's position as king consort was solid and sound.

In September, Eugenie and Hall left the house arm in arm and said they were going to Freeport, Long Island, to live. There was nothing said of marriage, but everyone naturally assumed that there would be a wedding.

She removed her personal furniture, including a few pieces her mother had left, and used it to furnish the cottage which the pair had leased at 27 Prince street, Freeport.

Six weeks later, Mrs. Carson received a letter, purporting to come from Eugenie, in which she was informed that a Mrs. Alexander Reid would take over management of the house. Mrs. Reid was to pay $200 a month, depositing it to the account of Eugenie in a nearby bank. The letter was in script that very much resembled Eugenie's, but a few of the boarders suspected it had been forged.

This suspicion was confirmed when Eugenie paid a visit a few days later to the Schermerhorn street house and flew into a rage when shown the letter. She immediately dispatched a telegram to Hall, as follows: "Deal is off if you do not come at once. G." The G stood for Gene, a pet name bestowed by Mrs. Cedarholm and adopted by Hall as his amours progressed. The significance of the telegram never has been learned.

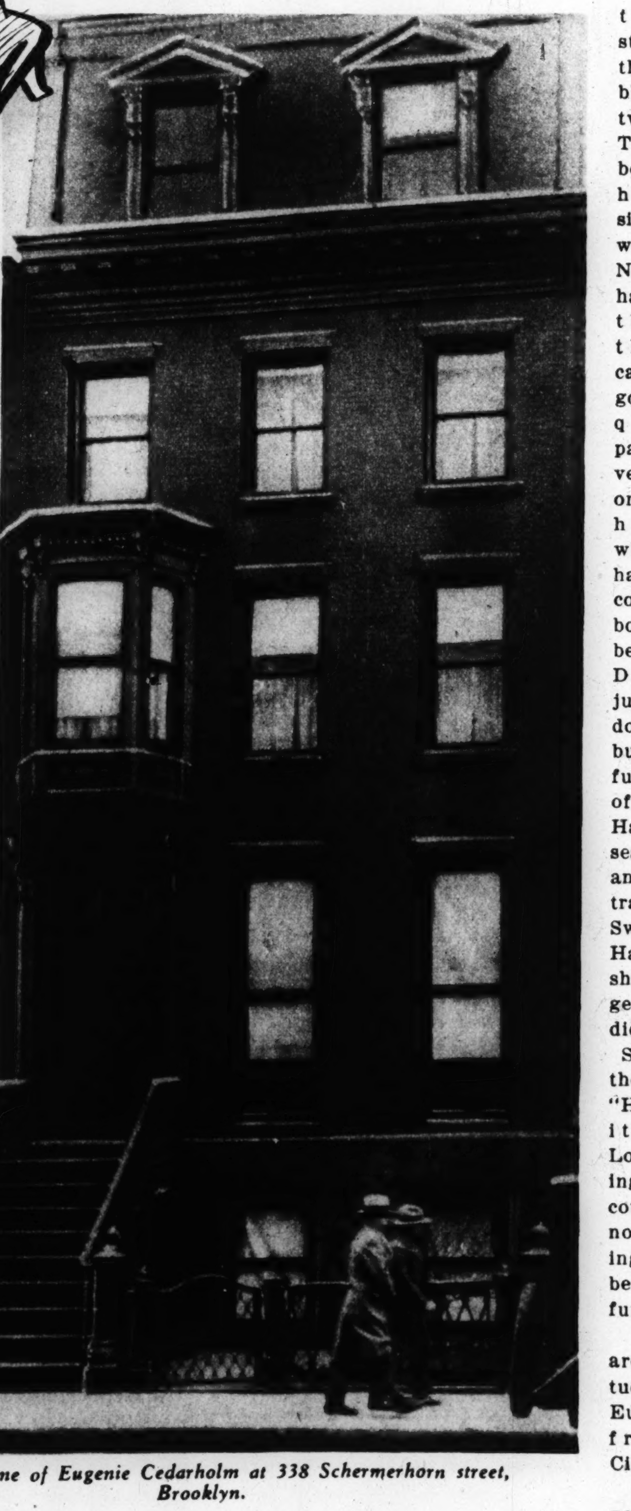
When Eugenie left the boarding house that night, presumably for Freeport, it was the last time her friends ever saw her. Mrs. Reid assumed charge, despite the owner's protest, and the boarders wondered.

Mrs. Reid, who bought control of the establishment in good faith, did some wondering herself early in 1928, when she received another letter signed Eugenie Cedarholm instructing her to stop depositing the $200 monthly in the bank and telling her instead to put the cash in Eugenie's safe deposit box. Puzzled, Mrs. Reid went to the safe deposit company and learned that Eugenie had owned a box there for some time, but that recently, on receipt of a letter purporting to come from her, the box had been recorded as held jointly by Miss Eugenie Cedarholm and Edward Lawrence Hall.

For many weeks Mrs. Reid worried and fretted over the matter and several times was on the verge of going to the office of District Attorney Charles J. Dodd. But while she wavered, the new city subway butted its way into the situation and knocked it wide open. The Victorian house, standing in the way of the new development, had been condemned and the city was looking for Eugenie Cedarholm to present her with a $60,000 condemnation award. A bank and the Public Administrator were pressed into service, and then came the police.

A dash to Freeport found the cottage on Prince street deserted. On the dining room table was a meal for two, half-finished The dishes had not been washed nor had the kitchen sink. The beds were unmade. Neighbors said they had seen nothing of the "Halls" for three days. It caused quite a lot of gossip because the queerly matched pair had seemed very happy. The only unhappy note had been struck when the dog Duke had disappeared, according to a neighbor named Swanberg. Hall told her Duke had just jumped out the window and run away, but the woman refused to believe it of the faithful pet. Hall helped her search the woods and swamps, but no trace was found. Swanberg said that Hall predicted that she would soon forget Duke. But she didn't.

But Edward Lawrence Hall, Once Accused of Slaying Her and Now Serving Out a Prison Sentence for Forging Her Name, Says He Knows She's Still Alive.



Former home of Eugenie Cedarholm at 338 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

Several days after the departure of the "Halls," Jerry Verity of Baldwin, Long Island, renting agent for the cottage, received a note from Hall asking that the house be closed and the furniture stored.

"My wife and I are going to Kentucky and then to Europe," he wrote from New York City.

Frantic efforts by police to catch up with Hall met with blind trails. Marriage records were searched for a fragment of a clew. No record of their marriage was found. Hotels, trains, boats and garages were checked without success. Then it developed that no one was sure that the woman seen leaving the cottage with the elderly man was Eugenie Cedarholm. It was dusk when they left and their figures were indistinct.

Now the hunt became even more frenzied. Stumped in their attempts to locate a clew, police took axes to the cottage and almost tore it apart. Then they dug up the cellar and the back yard. Ashes were taken from the furnace and the fireplace and sifted for a telltale button or strand of hair. None was found.

The same procedure was gone through at the brownstone house on Schermerhorn street with the same lack of result.

The police decided to sit back and wait.

"Maybe she isn't dead, after all," they said hopefully, patching up the wrecked dwelling as best they could.

It was in March, 1929, that the case again became active. Two checks bearing Eugenie's indorsement came to her bank in Brooklyn within a week. They had been written in Philadelphia and cashed there. One of the signatures was plainly spurious. The police sent out a general alarm.

Within two weeks the gray-haired dishwasher was arrested in a Philadelphia boarding house and brought back with much fanfare to Brooklyn.

"MY wife and baby are in Florida," he said innocently. "This matter is entirely a personal affair and none of your business." He refused to supply the Florida address on the ground that it would be valuable to his "wife's" enemies. Since there was no evidence to show he had written the fake checks or murdered Eugenie Cedarholm, he was released.

At this point, Eugenie's father, August Cedarholm, a mild-mannered man with handlebar mustaches, arrived from Oslow, Norway, but his arrival proved unimportant. Not having seen either his wife or child for 25 years, he could help little. He almost fainted when told of the estate his daughter had accumulated.

Hall was picked up again when it was discovered that he had forged Eugenie's signature to the lease obtained by Mrs. Reid for the boarding house. Almost triumphantly, the authorities clapped a 20-year sentence on him, confident that within a few years the "break" in the case would come. During the trial it became known that Hall had once served a term in Minnesota for grand larceny and assault.

Once when questioned in his cell he stated that he had lived with his "wife" in Chicago and other cities and that they had three children. Asked to furnish the names of the attending doctors, Hall proudly claimed that he had officiated at each birth, since he had had some medical training. A former wife, dug up by detectives, confirmed his claim to obstetrical talent. She said she had borne five children and that he had delivered them all.

So the mystery ends as it started—nowhere. August Cedarholm got the $60,000 and took it back to Oslo when Eugenie was declared legally dead. Hall, from his cell, insists she is still alive. As he progresses into senility, he seems to revel more and more in his position of mystery.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

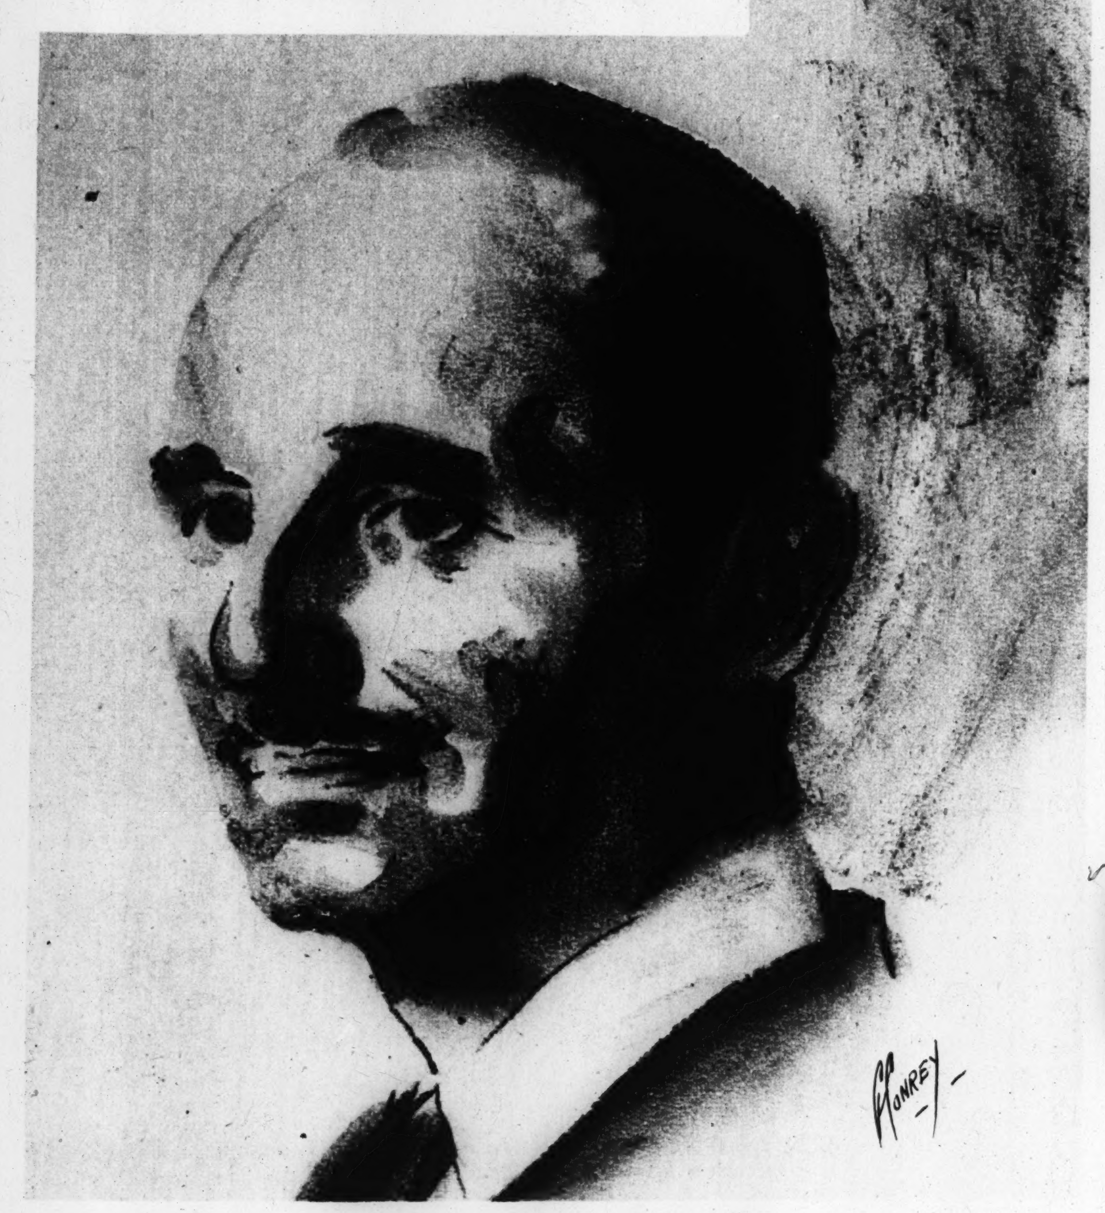
FRANCIS B. BIDDLE
CAPTAIN TARABOTTO

A Philadelphia Biddle Becomes Chief of the National Labor Relations Board



Francis B. Biddle.

WHEN the appointment of Francis B. Biddle as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, one of the most important of the New Deal agencies, was announced in Washington on November 16, it was greeted with cheers from liberals and protests from the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor. Nor was this dissension unnatural in these parlous times, since it is the business of the Board to maintain an industrial peace by settling labor disputes as well as to interpret Section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

As soon as Biddle, whose fame as an attorney and a man interested in public welfare has reached far beyond the city of Philadelphia where his family has lived for more than two centuries, arrived in the capital to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Lloyd K. Garrison, who gave up the chairmanship and returned to the University of Wisconsin as Acting Dean of the Law School, he made his position clear.

"I consider the work of the National Labor Relations Board extremely important and interesting," Biddle said in his first press conference. "I fully endorse the Garrison interpretation of Section 7A of the NIRA, requiring collective bargaining when the majority of the employes demand it.

"Through the Board, which was created by an Act of Congress for a year, but which I believe will be made permanent with some necessary changes, I expect that a definite system for dealing with labor troubles will come. It is important to have one major tribunal of appeal and, in my opinion, the jurisdiction and the power of the National Labor Relations Board will increase."

Nor did Francis Biddle lose any time in putting his ideas into practice. He immediately tackled the case of the Houde Engineering Company of Buffalo and declared that they must bargain exclusively with the union representing the majority of workers. What is more, he asked for action from the Department of Justice which till that time had delayed in enforcing the collective bargaining clause as interpreted by Garrison and Biddle in opposition to those employers who want to deal through the medium of the company union.

Biddle's method of dealing with the Houde Company seemed to be an answer to organized labor, which feared him as chairman of the Board because he had acted as attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad and other large corporations. It was also an added comfort to those liberal-minded citizens who considered Biddle a man whose sense of justice fits him for a difficult job.

To Philadelphians the name of Biddle is as well known as that of William Penn, for the first of the clan, William Biddle, came to New Jersey back in 1681, bought a 12,000-acre tract of land and laid the cornerstone for the sons, grandsons and great-grandsons, the Johns, Clements, Alexanders, Georges and Anthonys, who were to follow.

At present there are upwards of 70 Biddles in the Philadelphia social register, twice as many in the city directory, not counting all the others who reside at New York, Narragansett Pier, Paris and the Riviera. Only two years ago, on the 250th anniversary of the landing of that first William, 300 Biddles held their first family reunion in the stately halls of the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

Francis B. Biddle, square-jawed, bullet-headed, freckled, and his charming, talented wife, the former Katherine Garrison Chapin, were both there. They, not unlike other Biddles, have refused to live the effete life and have chosen instead to take an active interest in public service as well as in art and letters.

AS a matter of fact, Francis Biddle had a wholly unconventional childhood. While he counts among his most famous ancestors such men as Edmund Randolph, first Attorney-General of the United States, and Nicholas Biddle, first president of the Bank of the United States in the time of Stephen Girard, his own father, A. Sydney Biddle, resigned his post as Professor of Law at the University of Pennsylvania to go to Paris with his wife, the former Francis Robinson, to live among the works of art that he loved above all else.

There Francis Biddle was born 48 years ago and there his brother George, now famous as an ultra-modern sculptor and painter, also saw the light of day. But as soon as the boys were ready for their schooling, they were packed off to the United States. They both went to Groton School and it is an interesting coincidence that while Francis Biddle was a "second-former" at Groton, Franklin Delano Roosevelt was a "sixth-former."

From Groton Francis Biddle entered Harvard and there too he knew Franklin Roosevelt as an undergraduate. As a matter of fact, Biddle has known the President well ever since their school days together.

Perhaps the legal ability of Francis Biddle's grandfather, the George W. B. Biddle who served as counsel in the famous Tilden-Hayes election contest, was in the young man's blood. He entered Harvard Law School on a scholarship, was graduated cum laude and in 1911 was made private secretary for a year to former Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court, of whom he is a great admirer.

Only recently Francis Biddle said, when asked if he would pick the law as his profession if he had it to do over again: "Law in the hands of a great person like Holmes becomes rich and sufficient. The name of the great liberal Cardozo is a symbol of hope. Law to be valid must have its roots in life like all culture and the expressions of culture: science, religion, poetry and government.

"Yes, I would choose law again today. It is a changing, not a static study, and its aspect today is skeptical, realistic and empirical. If the principles of physics are relative; so are the morals of the law."

After his secretaryship, Francis Biddle had his first taste of public affairs. He was made vice-president of the Public Education Association of Pennsylvania, helped to draft the Vocational Training Act in 1913, and worked on the Child Labor Laws in 1915. The next year he went out west to live with the Philadelphia novelist, Struthers Burt, on a ranch in Wyoming. On his return east in 1917 he opened law offices and at present he has taken a leave of absence from his firm, known as Barnes, Biddle & Morris.

In the past 17 years Biddle has been an extremely busy person. Not only has he served as an assistant United States District Attorney for Eastern Pennsylvania, as a member of the County Board of Law Examiners, a member of the Committee of Censors of the Philadelphia Bar Association, a director of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs and a member of Governor Pinchot's Commission on Special Policing in Industry, but he has also organized the Philadelphia branch of the Foreign Policy Association and has been its active chairman for ten years.

Nor has this multitude of activities prevented him from following the creative arts. While his wife is the author of numerous magazine articles and a collected volume of verse called "Outside the World," Biddle himself, in addition to short stories and poems, has written a novel, "The Llanfear Pattern," which was published in 1927.

IN his book Biddle satirized society life and pictured Philadelphia, the citadel of all the Biddles, as a corrupt and lazy place where tradition prevents individuals from developing the best that is in them. The novel had a large sale and outraged many blue-blooded scions, but here Francis Biddle was following family tradition.

Hadn't Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle Jr., otherwise known as "Tony," created a furore by trying to elevate boxing to the status of a refined sport; hadn't his father founded a movement known as Athletic Christianity and made buddies out of "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Corbett; and hadn't Craig Biddle Jr. tried for fame as a Hollywood extra?

But Francis Biddle did not write his book just to be shocking. He really meant all he said about the weight of family tradition, for he wanted to be known as a real liberal who frankly discussed the political, financial, civic and social life of old Philadelphia with which he was intimately familiar. And even though the book caused a flurry, Francis Biddle retained his prestige in the community, with no difficulty, and perhaps some added aplomb.

His new post, however, puts him in a more strategic place than he has ever occupied. Politically, he always registered as a Republican until the spring of 1934. During Theodore Roosevelt's campaign he worked for the Progressive movement.

Later he voted for Alfred E. Smith and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, although he had been registered as a Republican all the time.

Now Francis Biddle is a Democrat and a staunch champion of the New Deal.

Francis Biddle has two sons, Edmund Randolph Biddle and Garrison Chapin Biddle. They are both away at school now, and their father thinks the law would be an excellent profession for them to follow.

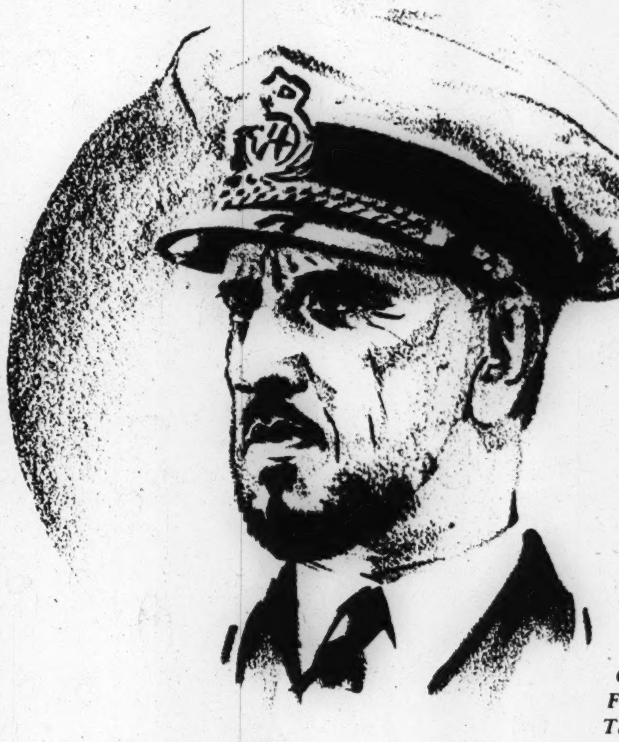
THE CHEWING-GUM LAXATIVE



Captain Francesco Tarabotto.

The Spartan Captain of the World's Fastest Liner

NEW YORK.

THE late Joseph Conrad would have chewed many pencils trying to find his kind of marine adventure and high romance aboard a modern luxury liner. With the captain of today not much more than an expert disciplinarian and business executive and the hands mere tradesmen and hotel employes, the going would have been very rough indeed. Perhaps no other master and no other ship illustrates this better than Captain Francesco Tarabotto and the Italian liner Rex, fastest vessel on the Atlantic.

Taller than six feet and handsome in a patrician way, Tarabotto seems grossly miscast. He was built for a toga and a seat in the old Roman Senate but Fate has cast him in the role of symbol of the Fascist State's high-pitched efficiency. The humblest Italian factory worker or farmer can appreciate his political significance. In Italy he is known as one of "the three beards that conquered America," the other two being Dino Grandi and Italo Balbo. Il Duce spends a pretty sum annually keeping the Rex afloat as an advertisement and Tarabotto's selection as master of Italy's beloved white elephant is an indication of the trust the leader has in him.

Tarabotto's chief job is maintaining discipline and knowing exactly what is going on in every part of his floating domain. At 6:45 o'clock every morning, he is handed the night's news dispatches. He takes them to the bridge and reads them. After a chat with the officer on the bridge, he returns for his breakfast which is, invariably, two pounds of fruit. Nothing else.

Then begins a series of conferences with department heads, arranged in advance by the chief purser. Except for the locale, the cabin might be the office of a corporation president. Stewards, engineers and seamen bob into the room, report in detail all that has happened, get their orders and depart. If a passenger in cabin X-15 is complaining of a draft, the master demands that the compartment be overhauled. The ship's surgeon reports on his patients, the radio man on the night's messages. The chief engineer must tell how much oil the Rex has used in the past 24 hours. The third class purser reports on the new baby in his section, whom Tarabotto is expected to christen. A time is set for the ceremony. And so on.

AT noon the captain holds an informal reception for the more distinguished passengers. This event, which has become something of a ritual, supplants the old custom of having certain of the guests sit at the Captain's table in the dining room. On the Rex the captain eats only with his officers. The line does not permit mingling of captain and passengers at meal times.

For the rest of the day Tarabotto may pop up anywhere from the bridge to the hold. The uncertainty keeps the crew on its toes.

Tarabotto is a bachelor and if you ask him why, he will reply that the Rex is his only love, with the possible exception of his dog Lily, a perky terrier that roams the bridge and officers' quarters like a privileged character. The captain never drinks or smokes. He avoids coffee and tea, except for a half cup of coffee he takes at noon just to show his men he is not trying to be super-human.

"It is just a habit of mine not to have any habits," he explains.

JACK ALEXANDER.

most gave up in disappointment and disgust. There seemed to be no use in knowing the door that might lead him to liberty if he didn't know the combination with which to unlock it.

But finally he found what he was looking for. It was a reference to an ancient writ in the English common law. Blackstone had a good deal to say about it. The writ was called "coram nobis," an appeal directly to the Crown (in English law), whereby a special case could be heard immediately in the upper courts, without repeated appeals to lower courts. It had been very seldom invoked, he found, in recent years. But he was sure such an appeal would be valid in his own case and he determined to try it.

By this time it was about 18 years since he had begun his legal reading and McFarland had reached the age of 49. This year he began to draft his petition for retrial. He made a good many false starts before he was satisfied with his work, but finally the paper was sufficiently perfect to suit him. He asked for his release on a writ of coram nobis, on the ground that he was still legally an insane person and therefore not liable to imprisonment in a State prison. He sent the petition to the Superior Court of Contra Costa County. The Superior Judge who had originally sentenced McFarland had died since.

When the day for the hearing came, the trusty was dressed in civilian clothes and taken from Folsom Prison to Martinez, the county seat of Contra Costa. Being a prisoner, he had no legal status before the court, so two attorneys were appointed to act for him.

THE Judge was Thomas D. Johnson. Attorneys George Carmody and W. L. Wollitz presented the argument. The case was taken under advisement and McFarland went back to prison to await a verdict.

Judge Johnson's decision came a few weeks later and was in thorough agreement with the petition. It ruled that McFarland had been sentenced illegally, that the hospital officials had reported him "not insane," but that no entry had been made in the court records to the effect that he was cured or recovered. Therefore Judge Johnson declared that the prisoner was still insane according to the law. The formal declaration said in substance:

There was certain correspondence from the hospital superintendent, indicating that he had been of the opinion that McFarland had simulated insanity. No certificate was ever issued to the sheriff or the district attorney indicating that he had recovered nor was any order of that nature issued to the court.

For these reasons, Judge Johnson ordered that the judgment of the court and McFarland's sentence to imprisonment be "vacated." This did not free the prisoner, but it made a retrial of the case possible.

"The next step," Judge Johnson explained in his chambers, "would seem to be that MacFarland should face another jury to determine his sanity. And if he is sane he should face trial again on the original murder charge."

District Attorney James F. Hoey immediately announced his intention to block any move to free McFarland. The first technicality he raised was that the prisoner should have been present in court when the decision was made public. Judge Johnson agreed to this and signed an order for McFarland's temporary transfer to the Contra Costa County court. Then he proposed to read the decision again.

One Saturday toward the end of November McFarland was again taken from the prison. That was an experience in itself—driving from here to Martinez, seeing the hills, the bay, the lovely countryside from which he had been shut out for almost a quarter of a century.

TWO days later, on Monday, the prisoner came before Judge Johnson again and heard the judgment which he considers the first step in a long fight for freedom. For McFarland has studied enough law to know that he has no easy task before him. He knows that there will be many twists, that every legal technicality which the State's attorneys know will be brought to bear to defeat him.

The broad grin of triumph which overspread the prisoner's face when he heard the decision, faded away into a serious frown as he heard the District Attorney file verbal notice of his intention to appeal the decision.

Afterwards Hoey announced: "Public welfare and justice demand McFarland's incarceration. He was rightly sentenced and I believe that justice demands that he remain incarcerated. I shall fight every step of the way against his liberation!"

But latest developments make it seem unlikely that the District Attorney will succeed in having Judge Johnson's decision set aside. The Sanity Commission has again examined McFarland and has found him sane. Judge Johnson has ordered a new trial. And the sheriff is now engaged in looking for the witnesses who will be called upon to testify against McFarland. Since the crime took place such a long time ago and since the witnesses have probably drifted away, died or forgotten the details of the case, it will be very difficult to get a conviction.

But years in prison have given McFarland a deep inner well of patience. He has made up his mind that it will be a hard fight, but it has taken him 24 years to get this far in it. He has no intention of backing down now, with 26 years of his sentence still to run.

Christmas Presents

ONE advantage of last-minute gifts: they certainly can be up to date! Here are some of Paris' day-before-yesterday creations in a wide range of taste and cost, the counterparts of which may be found in St. Louis stores.

Would you give jewelry? Then be original—select Dilkusha's heavy copper belt, touching up a simple gown at the upper left; or Marcel Rochas' necklace of white enameled fleurs de lys; or Heim's mirth-provoking green enameled birdcage worn around the neck on a black silk cord; or Maggy Rouff's barbaric gold bracelet at the left.

Would you give accessories? What about Schiaparelli's black chenille chin veil, Maggy Rouff's yard-and-a-half wool scarf or handkerchiefs with name embroidered from end to end? Then there is Max's short monkey fur cape and Aileen Rice's scarlet jersey blouse.

Smith has a memo pad which really fills the bill; it has space for morning, luncheon, afternoon, dinner and evening appointments, with a division for names of those who called while you were out. Lucien Lelong contributes a navy and red scarf-handkerchief set guaranteed to put dash into any suit costume. And look at Heim's white ermine hand-bag muff!

They are all illustrated on this page—you'll find them if you look—with purses, gloves, cigarette cases, clip earrings, lingerie, scarf-pins, Swedish candles, muffs and fur capes as well. No excuse for lack of originality in those gifts you dash out to get on Christmas Eve!

EVENING TRAFFIC—Although one would suspect from this photograph that the Memorial Plaza was deserted when the picture was made, it actually shows the stream of lighted cars passing before a lens open for several seconds in a "time exposure" at rush hour. Beads of light on the lines tell where cars paused or stopped, while one pair of lines records a traffic law violation—the driver crossed a center line.

NOTICE TO NON-PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHERS

The Post-Dispatch Rotogravure Section proposes to publish from time to time, beginning at an early date, a page of pictures by non-professional photographers. These will be paid for at the rate of three dollars apiece, though more will be paid for photographs of extraordinary merit.

There are no restrictions as to subject or location. The pictures will be judged on the basis of their originality in choice of subjects, artistic composition, pictorial effectiveness and general public interest. The prints should be ordinarily at least four by five inches in size, but exceptions will be made for photographs of unusual clarity and sharpness. Glossy finish is preferable. Contributions should be addressed to the Sunday Editor, and may be submitted from now on. It is requested they include return postage. Full name and address and a description of the photograph should be attached to each print.

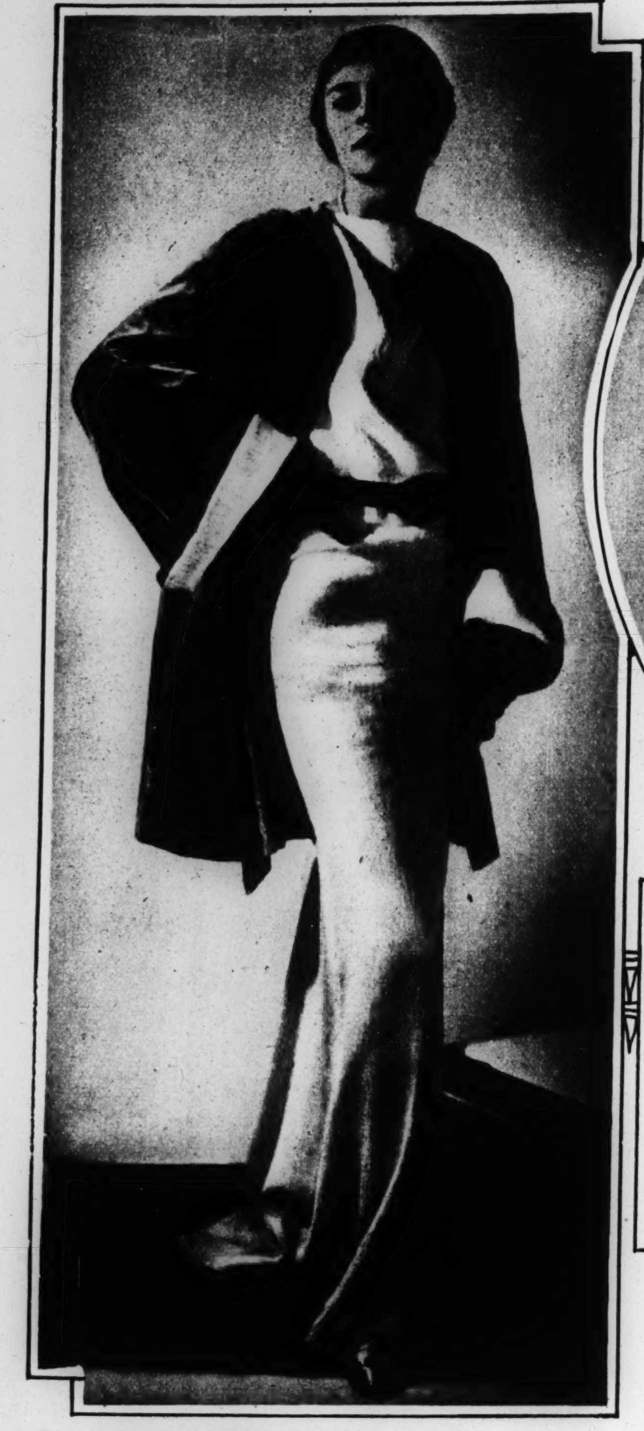
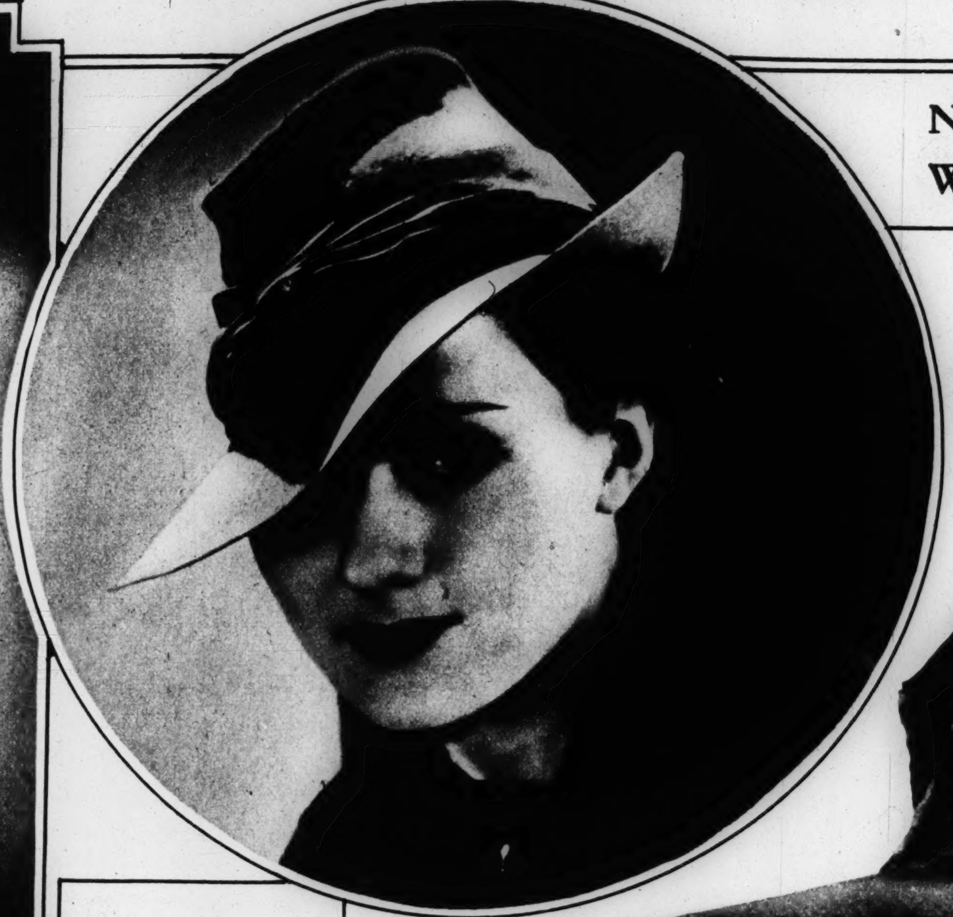
NOTES ON THE WINTER'S STYLES



From the Trousseau of a Princess: This pale rose crepe evening gown and beige velvet wrap were designed in Paris for Princess Marina, now the Duchess of Kent.



Brimful of Nonchalance: This casual model in velour has a slouchy elegance in its high, sloping crown, draped crepe band, and dipping brim. It is from Paris, and is the color of bananas.

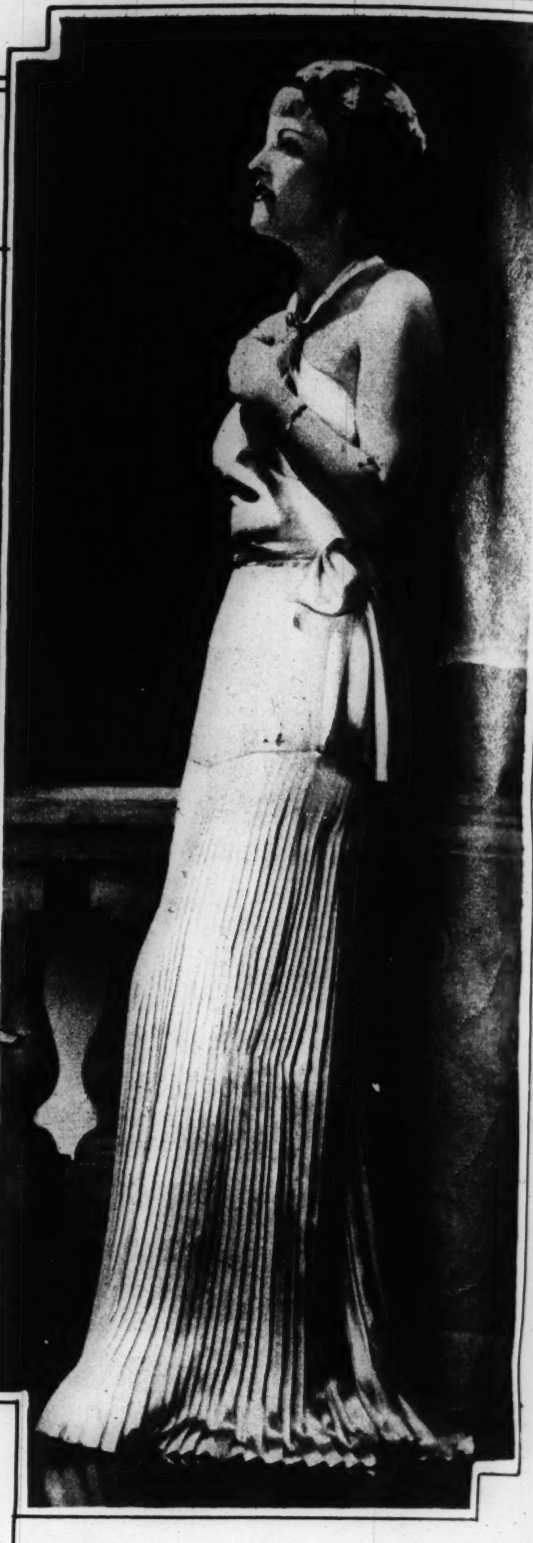
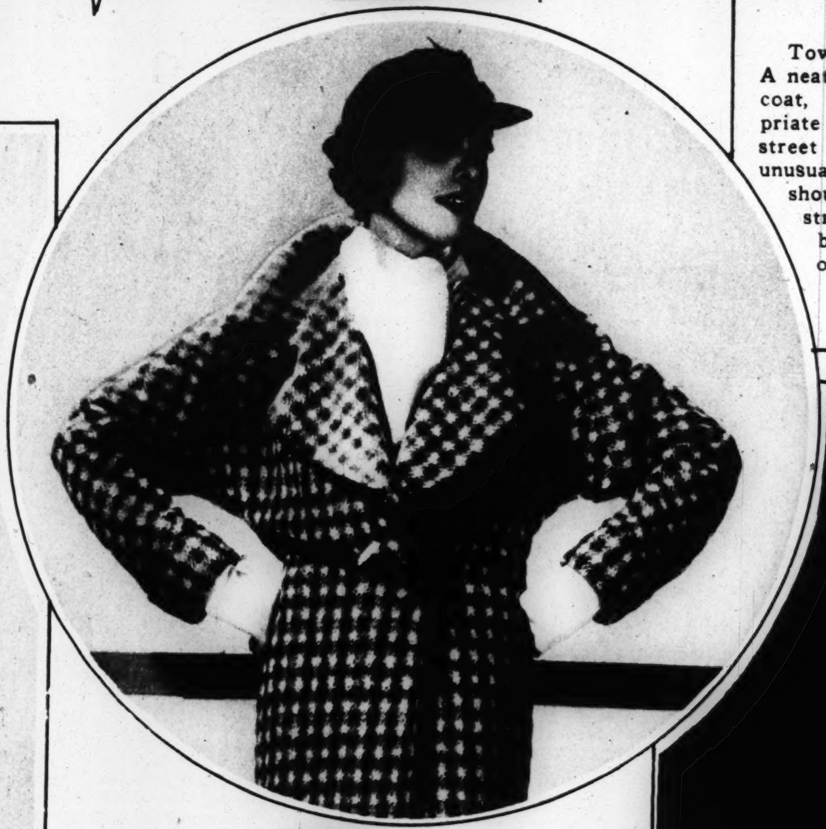
Olive Green Throughout: Even the fur lining is dyed to match and the tailored suit is of the same wool cloth as the coat. Note incidentally the star-shaped silver buttons and miniature turn-down jacket collar.



Pale Blue and Statuesque: A sculptured evening gown in satin, with knife-pleated, unfettered skirt.



Town or Country: A neatly tailored, tweed coat, equally appropriate for sport or street wear. Note the unusual hang of the shoulders, the almost straight cut from elbows to waist. Colors are brown and white.

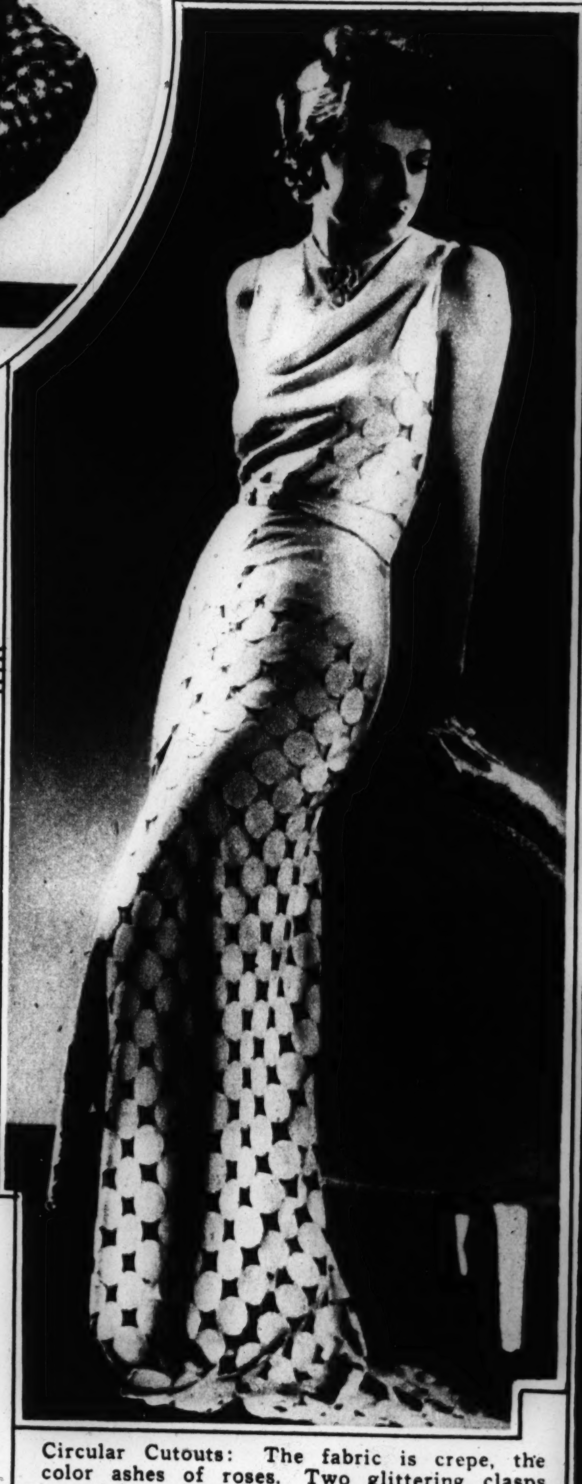
A la Boheme: Although few besides "Bohemians" might care to risk the sensation of shopping in these heavy shoes, abbreviated socks and the blanket-like cape, the costume is really of Tyrolean origin. Colors, beige and dark red.



Circular Cutouts: The fabric is crepe, the color ashes of roses. Two glittering clasps provide periods to the high neckline and accentuated waistline. —Associated Press photo.

Design for Athletes: Specifically intended as skiing costumes, both of these outfits are worn with the usual trousers. The little jacket at left is a double-breasted gabardine; the flannel lumberjack is worn with gray leather britelles, very Alpine.

PRACTICALLY PERPETUAL MOTION

It is called a vapor turbine power plant, and utilizes the difference in temperature between an ordinary thermometer and a "wet bulb" thermometer. The plant consists of a boiler in which steam is generated by heat of the surrounding atmosphere and a nozzle through which steam jets upon a turbine wheel. But the "wet bulb" thermometer must be kept wetted by a wick dipped in water.

COMING TO ST. LOUIS—MAX REINHARDT'S PRODUCTION OF "A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM"

AMAZING NEW LIGHT reduces danger of eyestrain

Reading, sewing, studying are made easier under the abundant, glareless light of an I. E. S. Better Sight Lamp. There are both table and floor models.

THOUSANDS upon thousands of school children and college students are studying, writing, working night after night in light that puts a cruel strain on eyes and nerves.

Business men work at desks on dark afternoons or read their evening papers in light that is far below the safety level for comfortable seeing. Women use up precious energy in sewing or darning under inadequate light.

Here, then, is good news! An entirely new type of lamp has been designed by the Illuminating Engineering Society. It is called the I. E. S. Better Sight Lamp. Revolutionary in principle, this new lamp gives several times as much useful light as an ordinary lamp. There is no glare—because the bulb is hidden in an opal glass bowl. The shade has a special inside finish to reflect the maximum light. Its open top adds the indirect light so necessary in preventing eyestrain. The height is scientifically correct.

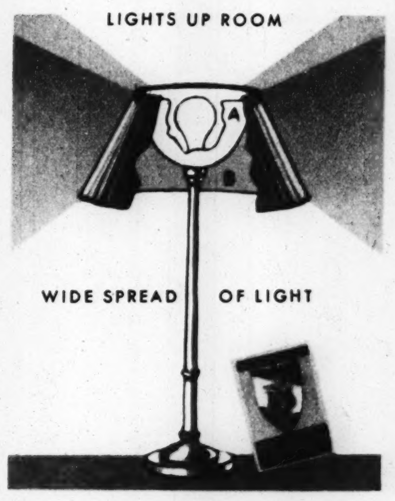
I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps are good-looking as well as good for your eyes. They have a simple, stately beauty that adds to the attractiveness of any room. Shades are parchment—silk—or paper as you prefer, and there is a wide variety of styles and finishes.

These lamps are made by many manufacturers. See them today at your department or furniture store, lighting company, or lighting fixture dealer. Look for the I. E. S. approval tag when you buy.

General Electric does not manufacture the new I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps, but is glad to contribute this information in the interest of better sight.

Throughout America stores are featuring new I. E. S. BETTER SIGHT LAMPS For Christmas

Science has come to the aid of eyesight! With twenty school children and forty college students in every hundred already suffering from defective vision, parents everywhere are welcoming these new sight-saving lamps designed especially to reduce eyestrain. Prices are low . . . designs attractive. Both table and floor models are available.



Features of the I. E. S. Better Sight Lamp

The opal glass reflector (A) gives soft, diffused, glareless light, and reflects light to the ceiling for general illumination.
The special inside reflecting surface of the shade (B) reflects twice as much useful light as an ordinary shade.
The extra height insures good light, properly distributed over a wide working area.
The Approval Tag shown beside the lamp is your means of identifying I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps. Look for it when you buy.

WHY DON'T YOU GO BACK IN A VERY SENSIBLE WAY AND ASK HER POINT-BLANK WHAT SHE DID WITH YOUR DOLLAR? YOU ADMIT IT'S GONE, DON'T YOU?

YOU'RE TOO MUCH OF A GENTLEMAN IN THESE AFFAIRS. THAT'S ALWAYS BEEN YOUR WEAKNESS. YOU ADMIT THAT DON'T YOU? LISTEN, WALK IN AGAIN AND..
O.K! I CERTAINLY WILL.
LISTEN JO, ABOUT THAT DOLLAR.

JACK FINDS NEW FUN FOR DULL DAYS
CAN'T WE GO OUT, MOM?
THE STORM'S LETTING UP AND IT'S NO FUN STAYING IN - WHY DON'T YOU POP SOME CORN?
OH, WE'VE NEVER HAD ANY LUCK TRYING TO POP CORN!
I KNOW, BUT I JUST ORDERED SOME JOLLY TIME POP CORN - IT'S GUARANTEED TO POP!
GEE, MOM, THIS JOLLY TIME POP CORN CERTAINLY POPS SWELL!
POP! POP! POP! POP! POP! POP! POP! POP!
IT TASTES SWELL, TOO!
YES, AND SEE THE DANDY POP CORN CHAINS WE HUNG ON THE CHRISTMAS TREE!
DID YOU HAVE ALL YOU WANTED TO EAT?

"Say, Mom, I never knew any corn could pop like Jolly Time does. What makes it so much better?"

"Well, dear, the grocer tells me that pop corn must contain exactly the right amount of moisture in order to pop perfectly. The trouble with the corn we used to get, packed in paper, was that it dried out, so no wonder we couldn't pop it. A special patented process, called the Volumized process, puts Jolly Time Pop Corn in perfect popping condition, and makes it more tender."

"But why doesn't Jolly Time dry out?"

"Because, after being Volumized, Jolly Time Pop Corn is sealed in air-tight tins, so the moisture-content just can't escape. That's why every tin of Jolly Time is absolutely guaranteed to pop, and half the fun of pop corn is in popping it."

"After this, we'll buy Jolly Time Pop Corn every time, won't we?"

Jolly Time is a special variety of the finest hulless pop corn. That's why it's free from annoying hulls and tough fibers. Every tin absolutely guaranteed to pop perfectly. Get Jolly Time from your grocer, and enjoy the finest pop corn you ever tasted.
